"TEDDY'S ARMY" ROUTED IN ITS FIRST BATTLE

Third Term Fighters Run Up Against the Big Stick and Disband.

TRIED TO SELL A SONG

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 9.—"Teddy's Army," recently organized here to sell a third term song, "Teddy, the Tried and the True," has disbanded. The first battle was too strenuous for the new fighting organization, for it ran up against the big stick. The music of "Teddy, the Tried and the True" had not the power to soothe the savage beast in Washington, and the "army," concluding that it were better to be right than boom a President, went down and out.

The last council of war was held today. The "army" knew it was under investigation by the Postoffice Department, acting under orders from Teddy, the Tried and the True. The officers, President W. W. Finn, Vice President M. F. Johnson, Secretary Joseph H. Rittenhouse and Treasurer W. S. Campbell, voted to muster the army out and withdraw the song from the market.

Back to the Factory.

The composer of "Teddy, the Tried and the True," who is a bookkeeper in a stocking factory and who has never before attempted to elect a President, was not at the meeting. He had agreed to turn over a part of his royalties to the "Army's" officers, but as the Postoffice Department got to Norristown before the song was sold, there were no royalties. So the composer decided to let Roosevelt run his own campaign and went back to his stockings.

There is no excitement in the city. Norristown did not know it had been occupied by an army until Inspector Cortelyou's men began to call the roll. There had been no flare of trumpets, no tread of martial feet through the city's thoroughfares. It seems that the officers of the army had dispensed with all ostentation and were simply and quietly trying to sell that song.

The Postoffice investigation was concluded Tuesday and the report probably will be given out in Washington Friday. In the face of the fact that there is no longer any "army" to move against, it is not expected that Roosevelt will send the Rough Riders to Norristown.

Why the Army Formed.

As explained in the circular, which newspapers were asked to publish free, and which brought about the downfall of the organization, "Teddy's Army" was formed by certain admirers of President Roosevelt who wanted all the other admirers in the country to join them in launching a boom for a third term. The only condition of this amiable arrangement was that the party of the second part—the "other admirers"—purchase of the party of the first part—the original admirers—the song "Teddy, the Tried and the True," at 25 cents per copy. The circular explained how anybody could become a "captain" in the army by selling 10 of these songs, which, to quote the circular again, the public would buy at sight. The music may have been good music—Norristown has not heard it—but the verses—well, the verses were written by the bookkeeper in the stocking factory, at odd moments, when he had nothing else to do.

President Roosevelt's attention was first called to "Teddy, the Tried and True," in a telegram from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. According to Washington dispatches, Mr. Roosevelt denied indignantly that he knew anything about the army's organization or the bookkeper's song, and ordered the Postoffice Department to get busy. The investigation was conducted by Chief Inspector Cortelyou, a brother of the Secretary of the Treasury.

BOASTS OF HIS AGE, DROPS DEAD IN COURT.

Witness Had Just Said He Would Live 20 Years.

DES MOINES, Io., May 9.—"I am 65, but sound as a dollar and good for at least 85."

With these words, James Hadfield, a pioneer of Polk County, testifying today as a witness in a civil action, gave a sudden gasp, slipped forward in the chair and dropped to the floor dead.

Heart disease was the cause of his death. Apparently Hadfield was in the best of health. He was in the act of answering the usual instruction as to age put to a witness when he jocularly boasted of the future. The tragedy created a scene about the courtroom.

Boy Killed by Switch Engine.

LEXINGTON, Mo., May 9.—Chesley Bray Jr., the 14-year-old son of Charley Bray, was instantly killed this morning while trying to board a switch engine in the yards at Myrick. Bray swung on the passing engine and was struck by a coal chute and dragged about thirty yards.

SOUGHT DEATH RATHER THAN FACE FATHER

Women Who Had Transgressed Tried to Jump From Ship.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., May 9.—Mrs. Henry Stutz and her young sister, Miss Nellie Greenstreet, attempted suicide by jumping over the side of the Old Dominion steamship Berkeley. They were saved from death by the timely watchfulness of the steward of the boat and a negro porter, who caught hold of their dresses just as they were disappearing over the side.

The two women, who are little more than girls, left Richmond Sunday night aboard the steamer Berkeley in company with John Miller and George Wright. They registered in the list of the ship's passengers as husbands and wives. They remained in Norfolk until last night when they again boarded the steamer on their way back to Richmond.

Just as the passengers were leaving the boat the two women saw their father waiting for them at the gangplank. They rushed back through the saloon and onto the deck and over the rail. When the steward and the porter clutched their gowns the women fought desperately and it was only after a prolonged struggle that they were at last gotten into a stateroom. Miller ran from the boat and escaped, but was later captured. Wright expressed his determination to stand by the women and take the consequences of his acts.

LAWYER, JUDGE AND SHERIFF ARE FAKES

Two Iowa Men Buncoed Out of $150 by Novel Scheme.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBUS, O., May 9.—A dispatch from Marietta tells of novel bunco methods by which Horace and Edward Napier of Burlington, Io., were beaten out of $150 there. The Napiers had come to Marietta to foreclose a small mortgage, and were met by a man who introduced himself as an attorney and offered to manage their case. His services were accepted and the young men were taken into an alleged courtroom, where, in the presence of a fake Judge and Sheriff, judgment was given and an execution issued. The attorney's fees and costs amounted to $150, which the Napiers paid, only to find that the whole transaction was bogus.

SWALLOWED 40 RAW EGGS IN 25 MINUTES

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 9.—Swallowing forty raw eggs in 15 minutes and receiving a crisp $1 bill for his feat, is the record of Alfred Martin, who is employed in one of the local potteries. After the 40 eggs were finished Martin declared that he could easily make it 50. He also believes that with a little practice he can eat 100 raw eggs in less than one hour.

Some time ago Martin read in the newspapers of a man at McKeesport, Pa., who swallowed 25 raw eggs in 20 minutes. He asserted that he could beat this record and since then there have been many arguments between Martin and other employes of the pottery. At noon yesterday August Sewisckley offered Martin a dollar if he could eat 25 eggs in 25 minutes. They went to a nearby saloon where the hen fruit was procured. Sewickley broke the eggs and Martin swallowed them down two and three at a gulp until the 40 had disappeared and the egg supply exhausted. After performing his feat Martin went back to work.

HAYWOOD PUT ON TRIAL; JURY QUIZ IS BEGUN

TWELVE MEN IN JURY BOX

Challenges by Both Sides Developed Early in the Examination.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOISE, Idaho, May 9.—The trial of W. D. Haywood, former secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, who is charged with conspiring with Chas. H. Moyer and George A. Pettibone to cause the murder of Gov. Steunenberg, began at 10:05 o'clock this morning, when the prisoner was formally called to the bar. Ten minutes later both sides announced "ready." The final effort of counsel to obtain any further advantage was defeated yesterday when Judge Fremont Wood denied their motion for a bill of particulars, which would have compelled the State to disclose the character of the evidence upon which a conviction will be asked.

Examination of Talesmen.

The examination of talesmen began at 11:27 a. m., when 12 names were called and all of the empty jury seats were filled before the examination of any of the talesmen was begun.

A. L. Ewing, a gray-bearded carpenter, who sat in the foreman's chair, was the first of the panel questioned by Mr. Hawley for the State. The attorney inquired first as to the residence of the proposed juror. He said he had lived here a number of years, having come from Oregon. He was a native, however, of Indiana.

"Are you a member of the Carpenters' Union?" asked Mr. Hawley.

"No, sir."

"Are you a member of any union anywhere?"

"No, sir."

"Have you heard this case discussed by anyone who pretended to know the facts?"

"No, sir."

"Were you acquainted with Gov. Steunenberg?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long had you known him?"

"About four years."

"Ever had any business relations with him?"

"Yes, I held an appointment at the Soldiers' Home for a while, but for political reasons my term of office ceased."

"You were discharged."

"Yes."

"Then I take it you and Gov. Steunenberg had a difference?"

"I differed with him politically at that time."

Ewin said he had read of the case pretty thoroughly in all the papers; that he was a married man and knew none of the defendants. Ewin said he had talked with his grown son regarding the cvase and the procedure.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mr. Hawley, quickly.

"I mean," said the proposed juror, "that we talked about the length of time it would take to try the case."

"Have you formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused?"

"I don't think I ever have."

"Have you any opinion now?"

"Well," said the talesman, "I don't think I have, although it sounds like a wooden man to say so."

Ewing said he had served as a juror but once in a capital case, and that was at the present term of court.

"Have you any prejudice against circumstantial evidence?"

"No, not exactly, but I would be very careful in arriving at a decision on such evidence."

Would Follow Court's Instruction.

"Would the fact that the defendant was not in the State at the time of the killing, but was shown to have advised, encouraged and aided in the killing—would that influence your verdict, provided the Court instructed you that such a person was equally responsible with the man who actually did the killing?"

"I would take the instruction of the Court."

The examination of Ewing was here dropped temporarily and Mr. Hawley passed on to the second man. It then became apparent that he would go through the panel of 12 men before the defense undertook its examination of the proposed jurors.

The second man, James L. Ayres, said he was a farmer, married and had lived in this county since 1881. He came to this State from Tennessee. Ayres had a passing acquaintance with Gov. Steunenberg.

"Do you read any of the Socialist papers published in this country?" asked Mr. Hawley.

"I do not, but they have been sent to me in the past few months."

Ayres said some of the papers came to him by mail, while others were thrown into his yard.

"How long has that condition existed?"

"We object to that," interrupted Mr. Darrow for the defense. "The only question here is the bias of this proposed juror. There is nothing to show

BABY GERTRUDE EBERLE.

MRS. CORA EBERLE.

LAURIE MYSTERY MAY BE CLEARED

Woman Much Like Her Was Seen Walking Near the River Des Peres.

A man and a woman seen walking south of the River Des Perss April 25 may have been Miss Agnes Laurie and an escort, the police think, and they have notified Henry Jeude, a milkman, who saw them, to go to the Four Courts and tell all he can about them. They hope to obtain from him some information that may help clear the mystery around the death of Miss Laurie, who was found in the Mississippi River at the mouth of the Des Peres the same afternoon Jeude thinks he saw the couple.

The inconsiderable quantity of water found in Miss Laurie's lungs convinced Deputy Coroner Lloyd that she had not died from drowning, and marks on her neck led him to believe she had strangled or had been garroted. He returned this verdict Wednesday afternoon.

"Death resulted from asphyxiation, due to violence at the time, place and hands of parties unknown."

Mrs. Sadie Doussel of 7802 Water street, who is a daughter of the woman with whom Miss Laurie boarded at 3303 Morgan street, was told by Jeude of the couple he had seen, and it was through her the police obtained this clew. Mrs. Doussel mentioned to Jeude, when he delivered some milk a week ago, her mother's interest in the case, and Jeude told her about the couple he had seen.

Not Certain of Identity.

The woman, he said, carried a black handbag, answering closely the description of the one Miss Laurie carried the day she died, but when Mrs. Doussel described herself Jeude said he thought the woman he saw was younger and perhaps slenderer. For this reason Mrs. Doussel did not thing it worth while to report the matter to the police and it was only by chance that they learned of it.

The couple Jeude saw was walking along South Broadway, south of the River des Peres, and had crossed the bridge. This is not the Red Bridge, from which Miss Laurie may have been thrown, but is east of it. Jeude thought the couple might be bound for one of the wine gardens in that neighborhood. Inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday in all the gardens south of the river to Jefferson Barracks failed to reveal any trace of the couple's having visited them.

Miss Laurie was a native of Glasgow, Scotland. She had an independent income, and was about to leave St. Louis for New York when her death occurred. A lawsuit over the furnishings of a boarding house she had conducted had detained her here. At 1 o'clock the afternoon she was killed she left the Morgan street address. No definite trace of her from that time until her body was found a few hours later has been found by the police. No motive has been discovered for murder.

SUFFERING WIFE'S MIND WEAKENED

Mrs. Cora Eberle Sat With Her Baby in the Union Station Two Days.

A laughing brown-haired, brown-eyed baby dominates the infant ward at the City Hospital while her mother, irrational from long suffering and hunger, is confined on the floor above for observation. For nearly 48 hours the unfortunate woman sat in the woman's waiting room at the Union Station before her pitiable condition was noticed by a woman traveler who first took up a collection and then called a station policeman's attention to the case.

Entered on the hospital records as Mrs. Cora Brown, the woman says her correct name is Mrs. Cora Eberle and that she came to St. Louis from Sheldon, Mo., in an endeavor to find a home for herself and child, who were deserted about a year after her marriage by the husband and father.

The woman's story, told with a difficulty showing her inability to concentrate her mind, is indefinite as to dates and localities. To a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday she said that she came to St. Louis from Sheldon, "some time" ago, just when she is not certain, though the Union Station attaches say she was in the station fully 48 hours. A woman traveler saw her Wednesday night weeping, questioned her and with some difficulty drew from her that she had had nothing to eat for two days and had rested only as the station waiting room accommodations permitted.

Deserted by Her Husband.

The story was repeated to waiting travelers and about $7 collected in a few minutes. Then Policeman Murphy was called and he had the woman and her baby sent to the Central Dispensary, where examination showed that Mrs. Eberle was extremely weak from hunger, so weak that her mind showed the effects.

Forwarded to the hospital, Mrs. Eberle was placed in the observation ward while the little girl, whose name is Gertrude, proceeded to capture the infant ward, where she has been named "Miss Jinks." Round lives up to the title in the merry chase she gives the attendants.

Mrs. Eberle, telling her story Thursday, said she was married at Kansas City about three years ago. Her husband, William Eberle, she said was constantly jealous and deserted her about a year after the marriage. She went to a farmer, in Clinton County, Iowa, whose name she does not recall, to work. Just how long she stayed there she is unable to tell, but she says that since Christmas she has been working at Sheldon, Mo., whence she started for St. Louis in the hope of finding a home for herself and baby.

She said that when she got here she had but a few cents and with no place to go and no money she stayed in the station until her plight appealed to the woman traveler who undertook to help her. Her mental condition shows the strain she has been under, but the hospital physicians think that rest and food will restore her. Little "Miss Jinks," however, shows no sign of the distress of her mother and owns the ward in which she is cared for.

UNITED RYS. CO. FINED FOR NEGLECT

Failed to Run Seventh Street Cars on Three-Minute Schedule.

The United Railways Co. was fined $25 by Judge Tracy in the City Hall Police Court Thursday for failure to run Seventh street cars on a three-minute schedule. The prosecution was in the hands of the Affiliated Business Men's Association, which has asked all persons having complaints against the system to report to it.

Christian Brinkop of 3026 Keokuk street and D. Eltzmann of 3826 Virginia avenue testfied that between 4 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., April 20, they timed Seventh street cars on Clark avenue, and that they ran at intervals of from 10 to 15 minutes each way. They presented a schedule showing the exact minute at which cars bound each way passed that point.

C. J. Anderson, attorney for the association, conducted the prosecution. Glen D. Arnold was present for the United Railways. He put General Manager McCulloch on the stand to testify that the charter of the old Central Traction Co., absorbed by the United Railways Co., permitted a 15-minute schedule. Capt. McCulloch said this charter was still effective.

Judge Tracy held that the provisions of the charter in conflict with any city ordinance passed after it was granted could not remain operative, and that the company was guilty. The fine for this offense is from $5 to $500.

"PROMISED TO FAKE, LIED AND FOUGHT," SAYS TOMMY BURNS

MANAGER OF FIGHT CLUB CONFIRMS HIS STATEMENT

Burns Says That to Get O'Brien in Ring He Agreed to "Lay Down," But Broke His Word and Scared Philadelphian.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—In a statement today, Tommy Burns, the winner of last night's fight, declares that he promised to lay down and let O'Brien win the fight.

He said there was no chance otherwise to get O'Brien into the ring.

Burns said he resolved as soon as the gong sounded the first round to break his promise and determined to go in and win.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 9.—Tommy Burns and Jack O'Brien were about to begin, last night, their fight for the heavyweight championship, when Referee Eyton waved them to their corners.

Turning to the surprised spectators, the referee announced that all bets made on the outcome of the fight were off. Without further explanation he motioned the men to the center of the ring and the fight was on. Burns received the decision at the end of 20 rounds.

Referee Eyton said, after the fight: "It appears that Billy Nolan, who is acting as business manager for O'Brien, had a large amount of money bet on O'Brien and had come to the conclusion that O'Brien would not win. In order to save his money, it is alleged, he circulated stories to the effect that there was something crooked connected with the bout. McCarey, to save the reputation of his club, and not wishing to take chances of a fake, ordered me to declare all bets off."

Tommy Burns makes the announcement today that he had agreed to let O'Brien win, but broke his word; that his intention to fight fairly became known to the O'Brien managers and that this was the reason why bets were called off.

Here is Burns' statement:

"Jack O'Brien was caught in one of his own traps. I could not get him to agree to enter the arena until I had promised to lay down and let him win the fight. I pretended to be willing to do this, because I wanted to show the country that I was O'Brien's master. In the first round O'Brien was taken off his feet and was scared to death. He knew I had planned too cunningly for them all, and that he was due for a beating.

"As for the bets being called off, I was instrumental in having that done for the protection of the public. I wanted to make this explanation afterwards, and I did not want to see the public tricked into losing any of its money. The calling off of the bets cost me $3800, for I stood to win that amount myself."

The disgust of the sporting world over the affair is great. Referee Charles Eyton said today:

"Burns' statement today is the first intimation I had about any agreement between the men. I am not surprised, however, at the revelation, as there were plenty of suspicious circumstances. I called off all bets last night after a conference with Manager McCarey. I am glad, personally, that the exposure has been made, for it will help to shut some of those out of the boxing game who are in it for dishonest purposes."

The fight drew the greatest crowd that ever turned out for a battle in this city and the promoters cleared a good sum over the $30,000 purse.

O'Brien was first to enter the ring. With him were Billy Nolan, Bub Ward, Abdul, the Turk, and Swanson, his valet. Burns came along within half a minute, accompanied by Jimmy Burns, Frank Lewis and Billy Woods. The Sullivan twins sat near O'Brien's corner.

FIGHT SUMMARIZED BY THE ROUNDS.

As was forecast, O'Brien was the fleet-of-foot dodger, while Burns bore in and by sheer battering scored his points—whenever the Philadelphian would stand still long enough. Only once did Nolan's man meet the Canadian with hammer and tongs tactics and that was near the end, when he was trying to retrieve his poor showing.

Burns opened his smashing offense after O'Brien had placed a light tap in the first round and then Jack began his galloping over the ring. No damage was done in this inning and O'Brien went to his corner showing more plainly than in any of his many battles that he believed he had met his master.

O'Brien screwed up his courage a bit as he came out for the second and was rewarded by being knocked nearly through the ropes. After a chase and a pile-up on the floor, O'Brien stood ground and slugged a minute, but it was not until Burns cornered his opponent at the end of the round that some heavy slugging was exchanged.

Burns was after an early finish in the third, which opened with some heavy firing on both sides. O'Brien scored two smashes, but they seemed to invigorate the Canadian. The first blood was spilled in the next round, when O'Brien reached in a couple of vicious left jabs and for the only time of the fight Burns stopped slugging and went to sparring for relief.

O'Brien, evidently braced by the sight of his opponent's blood, drew more claret in the fifth by jabbing. Burns, to meet the Philadelphian's attack, stood up and boxed so cleverly he forced O'Brien to break. The race ended at the gong with Burns cutting across and smashing a hard right under the ear.

The Philadelphian evidently attempted to wind Burns in the next four rounds and chased about the ring while the crowd hooted and hissed. Once it looked as though Burns had put over the sleeper for O'Brien reeled away and was evidently riding in a heavy sea. He clinched and stalled, however, and saved the final wallop from connecting. To further save himself he did not come out at close covering up for the next three rounds.

The twelfth round saw the fiercest fighting to date. Burns tried hard for the dreamland tap. He cut O'Brien's eye open and swayed Old Foxy Legs back and forth across the arena. O'Brien staggered to his rest at the gong. The Philadelphian, however, came back in the next round refreshed and slugged with Burns. The first suggestion of foul came here when O'Brien hit low.

Seeing Burns' eyes puffing in the fourteenth O'Brien rallied into hard effort to chop down his opponent, but Burns withstood the taps like a root runs rain. So repeatedly did O'Brien break ground in the fifteenth that Burns said "Come on you dog gone fight." This gingered up Jack a bit, but he was fairly off his feet from smashing blows when the gong again came as sweet music.

So thoroughly did Burns rip Jack in the sixteenth that he was streaming with blood when he came out for the next round. He was riding now on his nerve. In the next two rounds O'Brien tried to show flashes of boxing to gain points, but he was outclassed in every department.

Burns rushed O'Brien off his feet in the last round and it was only by the most evasive boxing that saved him from being dumped on the floor

LOVE LED MAN SEEKING FATHER TO PRISON DOOR

FINDS BANK DEFAULTER

Will Visit Joliet Penitentiary if N. C. Dougherty Is Man He Seeks.

Love of a St. Louis girl, who promised to become his wife, but whose father withheld consent because the wooer was unable to prove his ancestry, has impelled Augustus Dougherty to seek far and wide for his father, who deserted his mother, himself and a brother in New York 25 years ago. He now declares that he believes that N. C. Dougherty, convicted bank wrecker of Peoria, Ill., who is confined in the Joliet Penitentiary, is that father.

Dougherty, who is now 31 years old, and employed as a gardener on the truck farm of Joseph Gelle, at 8447 Newby street, in Baden, confident that his quest, extending over a period of eight or ten years, is now at an end, is sorely disappointed with that end, but he says that he feels that it is much better to have found his father, even in the person of a convict, than to go through life uncertain who his father was.

Dougherty says that when he has made a thorough investigation of his relationship to the former banker, now confined at Joliet, he will lay the facts before the young woman and renew his suit for her hand.

Search Has Been Long.

Dougherty says he has written and received hundreds of letters from people in different parts of the country since he began the search for his father, and that he has visited many points where various information seemed to indicate that his parent might be located. During his travels he has worked as cook in hotels, horseman, gardener, railroad chef and at other callings, and has only lingered long enough in any locality to satisfy himself that he was on the wrong trail.

Pictures Like Memories.

Only one point has been of special interest, and that was St. Louis. Here he met the girl, whom he asked to be his wife, and here he tarried.

"I believe that N. C. Dougherty is my father," said Dougherty to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday. "I have been in communication with people living in Peoria, where he made his home, and the information that I have received convinces me that I am right.

"The descriptions that have been sent me and the pictures that I have seen in the papers are strong reminders of the picture of my father that I remember seeing many years ago. The same manner of goatee, the same general build and the fact that this Dougherty came from Canada.

"My father deserted my mother, myself and my brother William in New York, when I was between 5 and 6 years old. He went to Canada, and we never heard from him.

"He left us with considerable means, and we had everything that we desired. Mother lived only a short time after he went away. After her death I and my brother were placed in the New York Juvenile Asylum, and from that institution were sent to Illinois.

"Brother William went to live with Alexander Peck at Vandalia, Ill., and I was given into the family of Fred Lang, whose home was at Hoffman, Clinton County, Ill. I left him in 1896 and came to St. Louis.

Wants to Clear Mystery.

"I was never able to locate my brother during his lifetime, and that was a matter that always worried me. I found out, several years after his death, that he died in Vandalia in 1898. My address must have been known, but no one ever took the trouble to tell me of my brother's death.

"It is my purpose to write to the Warden of the Joliet Penitentiary for a full description and history of N. C. Dougherty.

"If it shall be proven that he is my father I shall go to Joliet to see him—not that he can do me any great good, but he can clear up things that I desire to know concerning my past, then I shall have something to live for.

"Until I decided to get married I did not care very much, but I appreciate the responsibility resting upon the father of a girl who thinks of getting married, and his right to know something about the man who seeks to become her husband. That is why I want to know something concerning myself, and I will never rest until I am in possession of the information."

Dougherty is of medium stature and attractive appearance. He wears good clothes, and is well informed. In his room are numbers of books and magazines, and he says that he puts in all of his spare time nights and on rainy days reading.

Delmar Garden Season Opens Saturday.

Delmar Garden opens for the season next Saturday, following the big Charity Carnival to be held there Friday. All the concessions are ready and will be in active operation, both at the Charity Carnival and on Saturday, and from that time forward. There will be concerts by Bafunno's band and the popular resort will be found more attractive than ever. The Delmar Garden Theater will open May 26.

Stolen Oranges Found.

Henry Frederick, 22 years old, who lives at the foot of Destrehan street, was locked up in the North Market Street Police Station Thursday, charged with the theft of a box of oranges from a freight car near his home. The police say they found the fruit in Frederick's possession.

that anyone connected with this case had anything to do with these papers. They have nothing to do with the case."

"I have decided to allow wide latitude in this matter," said Judge Wood, "and for that reason the objection is overruled."

Ayres said the papers had been coming for several months. He read one of them for a time, but stopped.

"Why?" asked Mr. Hawley.

Challenged by the Prosecution.

Ayres then said he had formed and expressed an opinion and he was challenged by the prosecution.

The defense resisted the challenge and Mr. Richardson of Haywood's counsel took up the examination of the talesmen. He drew from Ayres the statement that he felt that he could render a fair verdict, but it would take considerable evidence to change his present opinion.

The prosecution insisted upon the challenge and it was sustained. As Ayres stepped out of the box the defense noted an exception.

John G. Breckenridge was called. Breckinridge said he was a grocer and had discussed the case pretty thoroughly with his customers. He had discussed also the method of bringing the prisoners to Idaho from Colorado and had formed and expressed a decided opinion, based upon what he had read in the newspapers. If the evidence were different from what he had read, he thought he could change his opinion. He was not ready, without hearing the evidence, to decide the fate of the prisoner.

Breckinridge was challenged by the prosecution. The defense joined in the challenge and the talesman was promptly excused.

"I am glad we agree on something," said Mr. Hawley, laughingly.

Capt. J. E. Yates, president of the Boise Bank of Commerce, was next examined. Capt. Yates was blunt and monosyllabic in his answers. He said he had read about the case and discussed it. What he had heard, however, would not influence his verdict. He said he had no bias or feeling against the prisoners personally.

Mr. Hawley passed Capt. Yates without a challenge and went on with the examination of Henry W. Baker, a grocer, who sat in chair No. 5.

Baker, who was excused for cause, was the third to lose his seat in the box. The other two, however, had not been finally questioned by the defense.

George Walker, a butcher, in chair No. 6, when questioned, said he knew Gov. Steunenberg only by sight.

Senator Borah conducted the examination of Walker. Walker said he had formed an opinion to a certain extent—one that would require pretty strong evidence to remove.

Walker said he was opposed to capital punishment when circumstantial evidence entered into the matter. He was thereupon challenged by the prosecution. The defense resisted and reserved the right to question the proposed juror later. Senator Borah withdrew the State's challenge temporarily.

George H. McIntyre, a farmer residing in the county for 10 years, was being questioned when the luncheon recess until 2 o'clock was ordered.

Notwithstanding the fact that the 12 men in the jury box had not been sworn, Judge Wood ordered that they be kept together.

ROOSEVELT DECLARES HE MEANT TO DRIVE WEDGE

PITTSBURG, May 9.—John D. Pringle, editor of the Labor World of Pittsburg, last night received the following letter from President Roosevelt, in acknowledgment of an editorial recently published in his paper in connection with the Moyer-Haywood controversy:

"My Dear Mr. Pringle—Nothing that has been spoken or written, that I have seen of the Moyer-Haywood controversy, has pleased me as much as you letter and editorial.

"In my letter I wished to drive a wedge in between the honest, law-abiding man—with whom I feel such hearty sympathy—and those worst foes of the movement, who preach anarchy and lawless violence; just as I wish to see a wedge driven between the capitalist who is an oppressor or swindler and the capitalist who strives to do right by all his fellows—the man who is an American citizen first and a capitalist second. Above all, I want to express my absolute agreement your final paragraph, running as follows:

"'The Labor World has not a word to utter regarding the guilt or innocence of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, in their present terrible position. We hope they are innocent and will be proved to be so, but what we want to point out is that their innocense of the preferred charge against them will not, in our estimation, exonerate them from the charge of preaching an industrial and social policy that is damning to the best interests of the wage workers of the country.'

"With all good wishes, believe me, sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

License for Saloon Refused.

Because of defects in his petition B. F. Caldwell was denied a license for a saloon at 915 Locust street, adjoining the Board of Education Building, Thursday. Excise Commissioner Mulvihill told Caldwell that his next petition would have to be mandatory—that is, signed by two-thirds of the taxpayers in the block. This action will be taken because of the objections raised to the proximity of the saloon to the Public Library.

STRIKE FIGHT AT NELSON'S PLANT

Workmen in Leclaire Shops Have Clash and One Man Is Arrested.

The first violence at the N. O. Nelson plant at Leclaire, Ill., where the machinists are on strike, occurred Thursday. Paul Strearth, one of the non-striking employes, endeavored to get a boy away from a committee of union men who were trying to induce him to join them.

A fight followed an argument and Strearth, it is said, knocked down James McCormick, one of the strikers. Several other strikers who were witnesses to the trouble made a rush for Strearth, who is said to have drawn a revolver.

A State warrant was issued for Strearth and his hearing was set for 2 p. m. before Justice Edmonds of Edwardsville.

REYBURN GARAGE SOLD TO MISSISSIPPI CO.

Henry S. Turner, representing the Mississippi Valley Automobile Co., purchased Thursday from the Reyburn Motor Car Co. its fireproof garage and the 100 feet of ground on the north side of Delmar boulevard, west of King's highway, on which it stands. The price is said to be about $40,000.

The building will be occupied by the Mississippi Valley Automobile Co., whose building on the north side of Olive, west of Vandeventer avenue, was recently destroyed by fire.

Former Judge Valle Reyburn represented the grantor in the transaction.

RACING BILL WINS; TO KILL HANDBOOKS

Hadley Says Betting Can Now Be Suppressed Under Revised Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—The Senate today concurred in the House amendments to the anti-racetrack gambling law and passed it without a dissenting vote. The amendments, which were prepared under the direction of Attorney-General Hadley, are designed to cure the defects pointed out by the Supreme Court in the Oldham cases. It will not be a felony for any person to act as custodian of money used for the purpose of betting on a horse race regardless of whether the bet is registered.

Gov. Folk will sign the bill some time during the day. Under the anti-betting law, as now revised, Attorney-General Hadley believes that it will be possible to suppress handbooks.

CAR COULDN'T DODGE BROADWAY PUDDLE.

So Policeman Hickey and Six Others Suffered Spraying.

The trapdoor of car 2385 of the Broadway line was jarred open Tuesday night as the car was passing over a mud-puddle at North Broadway and Red Bud avenue, and a shower of mud from below spattered the clothing of seven passengers, among them Patrolman Bartholomew Hickey, noted for shining brass buttons and carefully groomed attire.

Hickey's indignation, shared by other victims, became history in the Police Department when the officer reported the following passengers as suffering from the spray: Miss Clara Meyer, 5033 Church road; Miss Mabel Schneider, 4240 North Broadway; C. C. Thompson, 821 McLaren avenue; Joseph Perrin, 4613 Bulwer avenue; Frederick Gatermann, 40— North Twentieth street; George Mative, 1235 South Broadway, and Patrolman Bartholomew Hickey.

The bill of particulars further names A. G. Richards, 2621 Osage street, as conductor, and F. H. Reles, 4005 South Broadway, as the motorman who couldn't dodge a mudpuddle.

BURLINGTON TRAIN WRECKED AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO Ill., May 9.—A suburban Burlington passenger train was wrecked here today and one passenger was killed and many others injured.

After leaving the rails the engine slid along the track for 50 feet and then overturned. It rolled down the bank, dragging with it the first passenger coach and baggage car. The coaches in the rear left the rails, but remained on the embankment. The roof of the first car was smashed in and all the passengers were injured more or less severely. The wreckage caught fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished by an engine company which reached the scene within a few minutes. The steam from the engine burned some of the passengers, but the injuries from this cause were not severe.

BEHOLD CENSUSES TAKE YOUR PICK

Latest Estimate, by Health Department, Places Population at 710,000.

MILLION CLUB, 699,058

FIGURES BY

Health Department	710,000
The Police	704,953
Million Club	699,058
City Directory	731,990
Federal Census Bureau	644,000
Federal Census (1900)	575,238

The very latest estimate of the population of St. Louis is 710,000. This is the official estimate of the Board of Health. It is more than the police estimate, less than the Million Club's estimate.

The Board of Health divides St. Louis into seven sanitary divisions, and has officers and inspectors in each of them. Daily reports are made on improvements in these districts, on the erection of new buildings and any noticeable increase or decrease in the population.

With the aid of these and of the mortality reports of births and deaths, the Board of Health arrives at what it believes is an accurate estimate. Assistant Health Commissioner Winn and Chief Clerk Pallen are in charge of the work.

The Board of Health's estimate for 1906 was 695,000.

The Million Club announced late Wednesday that the police returns showed a population for St. Louis of 699,058. This is 55,000 more than the census Bureau at Washington gives.

The result did not come up to the expectations of the members of the club, and when the figures were given out, they were accompanied by a letter suggesting that a count be taken yearly by the police, as the bluecoats then would soon become proficient census takers and get accurate results.

Figures by Districts.

Following is a table showing the population as it is divided among the various police districts:

First District	26,370
Second District	74,678
Third District	82,781
Fourth District	64,301
Fifth District	68,039
Sixth District	88,051
Seventh District	41,825
Eighth District	41,075
Ninth District	71,482
Tenth District	29,292
Eleventh District	23,589
Central District	89,181
Mounted District	67,784
Total	699,058

The figures show that since the 1900 census, St. Louis has increased its population about 125,000, which is more than 3 per cent a year. The normal annual increase in population—that is, the excess of births over deaths—is usually only 1 1-3 per cent.

In conclusion the club's statement says:

"Notwithstanding this gratifying growth, the Million Population Club should find a new incentive in these figures, and all good citizens should cooperate with us in the work, namely, the bringing about of such municipal reforms, improvements and attractions as will make our city increasingly attractive to both capital and labor coming from the outside."

PURSUER INSTEAD OF PURSUED CAUGHT

Deputy Constable Daniel Finnegan of Luxemburg Arrested While Chasing Peddlers.

Deputy Constable Daniel Finnegan of Luxemburg Wednesday evening arrested two peddlers in a wagon for selling oleomargarine without a license. Mr. Finnegan got into their wagon and drove to the house of Justice of the Peace Noeber. He told the peddlers to wait outside.

The peddlers waited until Finnegan was in the house, then they drove on. Finnegan came out of the house to see his quarry flying down the street. There was a horse and buggy across the street. Finnegan jumped into the rig and started after the peddlers.

Through the streets of Luxemburg the two vehicles went at a great pace, Finnegan shouting for the residents to stop the wagon ahead. But the residents' sympathy with the officer was confined to cheering him as he went by.

The chase led into Carondelet and along Broadway. Here the peddlers gained and soon were two blocks ahead. So Finnegan took out his revolver and fired three shots in the air.

Policeman Arrests Constable.

Policeman Donohue of the Carondelet Station, was roused by the shots. He saw the peddlers' wagon going by, the horse in a mad gallop. Then he caught sight of Finnegan's buggy. He ran into the street and with drawn revolver brought the pursuer to a stop.

Finnegan's protest was of no avail. "You can tell the desk Sergeant about that," said Donohue, as he climbed into the buggy and drove to the Carondelet Police Station with the constable.

Thursday morning Finnegan was arraigned before Judge Kleber of the Wyoming Street Police Court on a charge of discharging firearms. After Finnegan had explained he was discharged.

"EVERYBODY WORKS BUT--" HE SUES FOR DIVORCE

MRS CATHERINE ROBSON

His feet propped high above his head on a mantelpiece, Edmond Robson was wont to sit in an easy chair in front of a grate fire, his wife says, and read novels and the racing sheets—an appropriate setting, she declares, for the rendition of "Everybody Works but Father" by his 14-year-old daughter at the piano.

The song was too much for Robson. He was mortified and chagrined, according to his divorce petition filed in the Circuit Court Wednesday afternoon. For him, he says, the song caused a discord in the domestic harmony that even the wedded bond of 25 years could not withstand.

Mrs. Catherine Robson lives with her five children at 1110 North Twentieth street. She is a well preserved woman of 43 years, with open countenance, clear gray eyes and dark hair streaked with gray. Thursday morning she left her chores to tell her side of the story to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"It was the races," said she, "that came between me and my husband. He is a locomotive boiler maker, and while he worked in the Terminal yards in St. Louis he made $110 a month. He just couldn't keep away from the racetrack. Once he lost $185 in a single bet at Delmar.

The Song Was a Fit.

"Along in the spring of 1906 he quit his job at the Terminal because he didn't like the master mechanic. After that he would sit in front of the fire all day, reading and figuring out the racing 'dope,' as he called it. He was just like the man in the song, even to the easy chair, while I would be out in the kitchen cooking and washing dishes.

"When the song, 'Everybody Works But Father,' came out, you know it was all the go for awhile. My daughter, Fannie, can just make the piano talk. She used to play and sing the song and we all enjoyed it very much—all except my husband.

"He would just sit in front of the fireplace and glower. The song just suited him and he knew it. One time he got right angry and jumped out of his chair and ordered Fannie to quit playing.

"The song was a great favorite, too, of my son John—he is 24 years old and supports me now—and he used to come in the house in the evening whistling and humming it. Then he would see my husband sitting in front of the fireplace and he would quit all at once, and put his fingers to his lips. He was afraid it might hurt his father's feelings.

Children Sung the Tune.

"No, it isn't true that I encouraged the children to sing it or joined in the chorus myself, as he says in his divorce petition. He says that the two younger children would walk up and down in front of him and sing the song. Well, Charles is only 3 and Alfred 6 and I don't think either of them could have done that. Then there is George, who is 19 years old and learning to be a switchman. He may have sung it sometimes. I don't know about that. But anyway the song was a great hit with us—except my husband—and it was heard here pretty often. How true it was to our life!"

DELEGATES LEARN ABOUT THAT SWITCH.

Authorized the Wabash Themselves to Put It Down.

The House of Delegates last Tuesday hurled a boomerang which, flew back and struck that body with great force Thursday. It was a resolution which Delegate Tobin introduced asking that he and his colleagues be informed by what authority the Wabash railroad last Sunday night, laid a switch on Second street, between Montgomery and Clinton.

They learned Thursday that it was by virtue of ordinance 22,939, which the last House of Delegates passed March 15, 1907, and which specifically authorized the switch in question.

Delegates Golden, O'Brien, Priesmeyer, Wiedmer, Kollas, Stannard, Hussey and Connell and Speaker Conran, who were members of the old House, voted for Tobin's resolution and some of them voted for the ordinance.

WANTS TO PULL BRACE AWAY FROM CONCRETE.

Interference With Theater Building Taken Into Court.

The Southern Real Estate and Financial Co. applied for an injunction in the Circuit Court Thursday to restrain Dr. David C. Gamble, of the Century Building, from interfering with the construction of the American theater building at Seventh and Market streets.

Gamble owns property adjoining on the north. In laying the concrete foundation for the building the contractors cut away some of Gamble's ground temporarily and put in a brace to hold the soft concrete until it hardens. Gamble has threatened to remove this brace.

Judge Reynolds issued a temporary restraining order and set May 13 for a hearing on merits.

Oleomargarine Dealer Held.

Frank P. Dwyer, dealer in oleomargarine, of 2545 Benton street, was held under bonds of $300 to appear before the Federal grand jury, following a hearing before United States Commissioner Babbitt Thursday. Dwyer was charged with selling unstamped oleomargarine to Mrs. G. W. Ransom of 933 Chambers street. She appeared as complaining witness.

REDUCTION FAVORED IN GARBAGE WORK

BIG PLANT NECESSARY

Must Be Built Five Miles From City Limits and Away From River.

A new garbage ordinance has been prepared by a member of the Board of Public Improvements and it will be presented to the board in a few days and, in all probability, forwarded by that body to the Municipal Assembly.

It provides that garbage shall hereafter be disposed of by the reduction process, the work to be done at a plant not less than five miles from the city limits and not on the Mississippi River north of the city.

It provides further that the Board of Public Improvements shall let the contract to the lowest bidder. One section specifies that the contractor shall receive the garbage from the municipal garbage collectors in air-tight, non-odorous boxes and not open them until they arrive at the reduction plant.

Provides for Stations.

The proposed ordinance further provides that the successful bidder shall establish two receiving stations on the river front, one in North St. Louis and one in South St. Louis, from which garbage may be shipped to the reduction Bedford, Conn.

The new ordinance is intended to provide for a permanent reduction system. Already there are bidders in the field, one from Pittsburg and one from New Bedford, Conn.

The administration has planned to substitute new wagons for those at present hauling garbage. They will have metal air-tight bodies that are portable. These metal boxes will be turned over to the contractor without being opened. A special ordinance appropriating $12,000 for these boxes will be drawn. It is expected that 400 of them will be purchased.

Another ordinance will be introduced providing for the disposal of dead animals by reduction.

BABY HAD FULL PACK OF PLAYING CARDS.

Little Girl Wanted Policeman to Play With Her.

At the Wyoming Street Police Station Thursday noon the youngest card player ever in the care and custody of the police was under detention. She is a girl 2 years old, blue-eyed and pretty. When taken inside the office the little girl produced a full pack of cards and tried to get Policeman John Ford to play a game with her. He declined. The cards were not confiscated.

The baby was found alone and weeping in Lyon Park, near Broadway and Wyoming street. She was unable to tell where she lived or give her name. Several children escorted her to the police station.

Officer Wounds a Burglar.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AURORA, Mo., May 9.—City Marshal Griffith of Pierce City yesterday shot and probably fatally wounded a burglar who gave his name as William Gibson of Cincinnati, O., while the thief was endeavoring to escape. The tragedy occurred about a mile from the city, Gibson refusing to surrender. Tuesday night several places were entered by burglars and much jewelry was taken. When Gibson was captured nearly all the booty was found.

Engineer Killed in Wreck.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—One man was killed, one fatally and two others seriously injured in a rear-end collision at Jones' Station, seven miles south of Hamilton, O., today. An engine was following passenger train No. 1 on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad, and heavy smoke prevented the engineer from seeing the train into the rear of which the engine crashed. Engineer Frank King of Ivorydale, who was making his second trip as an engineer, was instantly killed, and John Sullivan of Hamilton, superintendent of tracks, probably fatally injured. Jack Ilster, agent of the road at Ivorydale, suffered serious internal injuries, and Thomas Kirk of Jones Station broke two ribs.

"There's a Reason"

OBJECT TO KILLING OF CONSUMPTIVES

St. Louis Physicians and Humanitarians Are Aghast at Dr. Knopff's Plan to Give Morphine Liberally and Thus Make "the End Come Quickly and Painlessly."

Hastening death by liberal administration of morphine in hopeless cases of consumption, the sensational recommendation made by Dr. S. A. Knopff of New York, in an address before the National Tuberculosis Congress in Washington, D. C., has received no second among physicians, clergymen, educators or lawyers in St. Louis.

Dr. Knopff's remarkable utterance appeared in a special dispatch to the Post-Dispatch Wednesday and provoked an outburst of astonishment on all sides. His high repute in medical circles here and abroad emphasized the startling nature of the doctrine which he preached to the world at the Tuberculosis Congress.

Emperor William of Germany is among the notable men who have recognized and rewarded Dr. Knopff's warfare against tuberculosis, in the study and treatment of which he has become one of the greatest authorities. An imperial decoration and a prize of $500 for the best treatise on the dread disease were Emperor William's tribute to the value of Dr. Knopff's work.

In closing his address Dr. Knopff dramatically spoke this advice, which seems destined to provoke a wider and fiercer storm of protest than even Dr. Osler's famous dictum:

"One thing I wish to say at this point," Dr. Knopff declared, slowly and dramatically. "It is my practice and your duty, when you see a dying consumptive before you, to give the sufferer morphine in plenty, that the end may come quickly and painlessly."

Fight Disease, Not Patients.

Here are a few opinions given to the Post-Dispatch by leaders of professional thought in St. Louis:

Robt. Newton, secretary St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis: Consumption must be fought, not consumptives. Once they imagine that the hands of the world are lifted against them our work becomes hopeless. From this "killing" idea fear will result. The Osler idea caused insanity in many and this will shut the doors of the homes of consumptives in our faces.

Dr. E. H. Little: If the case were absolutely hopeless and there were danger of the disease being transmitted to those about him, I think the administration of morphine would be humane. There are humane societies that look after the lame animals of the street and make their sufferings painless yet the world becomes horrified when a like humanity is accorded a human being.

Dr. Justin Steer, Vice-President St Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis: "No such practice prevails in St. Louis. I can't believe that Dr. Knopff would speak as quoted."

Dr. Adelheid C. Bedal, Woman's Auxiliary Committee: "I never heard of the use of morphine in this way. There may be a half dozen physicians in the whole profession who would advocate that kind of treatment, but I know of none. Help consumptives, don't kill them."

Thinks Knopff Misquoted.

Dr. Wm. Porter, one of the directors in St. Louis of the National Association: "I am quite sure that Dr. Knopff never made such a statement. I know him personally and he is a brave, kind-hearted man who has done excellent work for the cause.

"No reputable physician would make a statement of this kind. It is natural that patients in the last stages of the disease should ask a physician for something to alleviate their sufferings. I have been asked that several times. But I would as soon think of blowing out their brains with a revolver as of giving them anything that would kill them."

Action Would Be Homicide.

Judge William Kinsey, of the Circuit Court: An act such as that Dr. Knopff recommends in the case of a hopeless consumptive comes within the legal definition of homicide. The law holds that the deliberate taking of human life, even where there is shown to be no hope or means of prolonging it, is always a criminal and sometimes a capital offense. Dr. Knopff's is a dangerous doctrine—a menace to the sanctity and safety of human life. I couldn't think of conceding that any motive, however, humane, could justify the practice he commends."

Judge Matt. G. Reynolds, of the Circuit Court: No matter with what good intention a consumptive or any other sufferer might be deprived of life the act would be unlawful and shocking. I couldn't subscribe to any such teaching.

F. Louis Soldan, Superintendent of Public Schools: Dr. Knopff has made a sweeping statement. The merit and force of his doctrine could not be fully and correctly determined except in an individual case and under particular circumstances. A general statement can be answered only by another general statement. I don't care to make that reply.

Rev. Father David S. Phelan: Dr. Knopff has simply suggested murder. That's all there is to it. No one, except by the authority of God, has any right to shorten the term of human life. It is permissible, of course, to risk life sometimes in the attempt to save it—as when for instance a limb is amputated to save the body, but there can be no justification for the deliberate infliction of death such as Dr. Knopff advocates. It would be murder—humane motives to the contrary notwithstanding.

Rev. William C. Bitting: I favor all medical skill and resource that will mitigate pain, but I could not countenance any such practice as Dr. Knopff advises. Even where death is certain we would have no right to hasten it. Our obligation would be to prolong life to the latest minute. Nothing in human or divine law permits anything else.

DOCTORS TO CURE AND NOT TO KILL, SAY CHICAGO PHYSICIANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Chicago's medical profession was startled by the sensational declaration made by Dr. S. A. Knopff before the Tuberculosis Congress in Washington, advising the killing of consumptives with poison to hasten their end. The idea was denounced on every side as atrocious and a violation of medical ethics and professional conduct. Doctors are to cure and not to kill, is the general reply to Dr. Knopff.

Health Commissioner Evans, however, disagrees with the physicians generally who condemn Dr. Knopff's declaration. Here is what he said:

"It comes up in the practice of every physician, and nearly every day he is called upon to decide whether he is justified in administering morphine to ease the patient. There is no doubt that the giving of morphine to tubercular patients lessens their chance for recovery, but when a doctor is convinced that the patient is near death and suffering needless pain, it is for him to decide whether he is justified in easing that patient's pain, or whether the patient should be allowed to suffer and die without the help of the drug."

Dr. Charles Gilbert Davis: A physician who would make a statement of that sort should be taken out and hanged. The profession has not gotten so low that it must commit murder just because it has not yet discovered a cure for some diseases. There is nothing incurable under the sun. Just because the cure may not have been discovered that does not mean it never will.

Says Idea Isn't Plausible.

Dr. Adolph Gehrmann: Such an idea as that is not plausible. The medical profession would not undertake any such work as that. To kill is not a cure for disease except in the one case. It would not be allowable. Conscience would put a stop to it in a moment. It could not possibly go on.

Dr. L. Blake Baldwin, City Physician: There never was a condition where a physician would be justified in taking the life of his patient. It is the duty of the physician to save life, not to destroy it. He is educated with that purpose in view. There is no law either of man or God, that could give him the right to take a human life or to hasten a lingering death.

Ernest P. Bicknell, superintendent of the Chicago Bureau of Charities, added his voice to the protest against hastening the death of consumptives.

"If Dr. Knopff hastens the death of consumptives by heavy doses of morphine, why should not another hasten the death of a sufferer from some other disease in the same way?" asked Mr. Bicknell. "Why limit the drugs to morphine? Why, in fact, limit the quietus to a drug?"

"Doctors have no more right to take life than anybody else," said Dr. H. I. Davis, in charge of the Detention Hospital. "I do not agree with Dr. Knopff. It is true that consumptives coming in contact with other persons may spread the disease, but there is a better way of stopping the spread than by killing the consumptive. All that would be necessary would be to separate them."

GARRICK MANAGER LAUDS BARNUM SHOW.

Dan S. Fishell Tells of Expensive Modern Circus Methods.

This has been a busy fortnight for Manager Dan S. Fishell of the Garrick Theater. In addition to looking after the interests of his house, he has been entertaining his old friends of the Barnum & Bailey circus, with which he was associated for several years. The Garrick has been headquarters for the Barnum & Bailey advance agents, from General Agent Louis E. Cooke down.

Manager Fishell talks about the Barnum & Bailey circus with the enthusiasm of a man who cannot forget the fascinations of the white tents.

"The standard set by the public for this show," he said this morning, "places a responsibility upon the management that is accepted with all the untiring effort and heavy expense that it involves. What the public will accept and perhaps applaud in a smaller show will not suffice when judging of the Barnum & Bailey greatest show on earth. The public has learned to look to this big institution for all that is newest and most novel in the line of arenic entertainment, and in order to justify this exposition and to satisfy the demand for new sensations, an expensive staff of foreign agents, with offices in all the principal foreign capitals, has to be maintained. The duty of these foreign agents is to keep in touch with every new development in the European circus world, to engage anything and everything of a sensational character worthy of importation, and to make absolutely certain that the Barnum & Bailey circus will be the first to introduce the big foreign cast to the American public.

"The result of the show's European service is, I am told, especially noticeable this year. More novel acts than have ever before been seen in a single entertainment crowd each other on the program, while, I am sure, such acts as the dip of death, in which a young girl drives a somersault-turning automobile; Howelson's ski-sailing sensation, the riding and juggling seal and the Novello acrobatic and trained animal act will repeat in St. Louis the startling impression they have made in New York and other cities."

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hyomei and Relief and Cure Will Be Guaranteed.

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ-killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

WIVES TO PLEAD FOR LONGSHOREMEN

Will Visit Shipping Officers and Tell Managers Wages Are Too Low.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The longshoremen's strike, which is paralyzing the trans-Atlantic and coastwise steamship companies, has assumed more serious proportions. There have been several outbreaks of violence, the congestion of freight is beginning to affect business interests and there is little hope of a speedy settlement of the trouble.

The most serious outbreak occurred in Brooklyn, where the striking longshoremen and sugar refinery employees attacked 300 strikebreakers, and at least 50 persons were injured in a pitched battle that lasted fully an hour.

Resist Strikers' Demands.

Six small steamship lines have granted the strikers' demand for higher wages, but at a meeting of the managers of the great steamship companies it was decided to resist the demands to the end. An effort by the Conciliation Committee of the Civic Federation to have longshoremen agree to a conference, resulted in utter failure.

The strikers maintain that their cause is just and say that they want no arbitration. Police Commissioner Bingham fears that there will be serious rioting before the strike ends. He has sent out an order to all station houses directing that the reserves be held in readiness for trouble.

From the beginning there have been rumors that Strikebreaker Farley has been summoned to help out the companies. The longshoremen are constantly on the lookout for him, and yesterday afternoon, when the hated antagonist of union labor was supposed to be riding in a West street car, the first real riot since the beginning of the strike began occurred.

Novel Demonstration Planned.

It is likely that a novel demonstration will take place before long if the strike continues. The men claim that the increased cost of living is the only reason they are asking for more wages. In this they are supported by their wives and women relatives. Yesterday, when they brought lunches to the hundreds of strikers who are on picket duty along West street, the women planned to visit the various shipping offices and tell the managers that they cannot keep their families decently upon the wages that their husbands are now getting. It is likely that this will take the form of a parade of the wives along West street, according to the talk this morning.

The strikers are confident that they will win. There are now about 12,000 out and the companies are finding it almost impossible to fill their places with skilled help. The longshoremen find their greatest satisfaction in the growing protests of business men over the congestion of freight. The condition grows more serious every day and is beginning to be felt by the country at large. It is estimated that business has suffered to the extent of $600,000 since the strike began, and that it is costing over $100,000 per day. The strikers believe that the pressure brought upon the steamboat companies will compel a settlement upon the basis of the higher wages that they demand.

[illegible]ER WAS ON THE WHITE HOUSE GROUNDS

But Ananias Club Member Refused to Tarry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Ex-Senator William E. Chandler, who was made a charter member of the Ananias Club by President Roosevelt over a year ago when the Railroad Rate Bill was under consideration in Congress, walked through the White House grounds yesterday on his way from the War Department to the office of Spanish War Claims Commission, of which he is a member. Mr. Chandler has not been at the White House since he served as a go-between for the President and Senator Tillman. He has not even been seen passing through the grounds until yesterday.

A number of newspaper men standing on the steps of the Executive offices hailed Mr. Chandler and urged him to join them.

"No admittance," shouted Mr. Chandler, without stopping. "That seems to apply to you also," he added, as he hastened down the walk.

HE WANTS WIFE WITH EARS BUT NO TONGUE

This Widower Will Take Deaf Mute as Last Resort.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANDERSON, S. D., May 9.—Roger Manchester, a Washington County widower of middle age and of moderate means, is advertising for a woman to become his wife who cannot talk. He says he will take to his own a woman who can hear—that, indeed, he prefers one who is not deaf, but he insists she who is to be sharer of his MME. and sorrows must be as dumb as a wooden Indian in front of a cigar store.

He has communicated his wants to several matrimonial agencies and says if they don't succeed in getting the sort of woman he desires to take to wife, he will advertise in the newspapers.

Manchester's wife died a year ago. He was not happy with her. She talked too much. Manchester is reticent and he says he wants a wife who can use her hands, but not her tongue. He will accept a deaf mute if he cannot find an acceptable woman who is dumb only.

Caught With the Booty.

After a chase in which he fired several shots, Joseph Scissors of 514 South Second street, Wednesday night captured Fred Chapman of 1419 Cass avenue, whom he turned over to the police on a charge of stealing brooms from Morris Vatters, grocer, 503 South Third street. Chapman had the brooms when caught.

Excursion Rebates Forbidden.

Rebates to Sunday schools, secret societies, labor unions and other organizations on railroad tickets sold for excursions conducted by them are illegal, according to a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and must be discontinued. The ruling will probably cause the abandonment of a number of excursions that have already been planned, for some of which contracts have been made with the railroads. The roads may still make special rates for excursions, but they must make all arrangements, pay for the advertising and collect the full fare. Heretofore the practice has been for the society conducting the excursion to receive a percentage on all tickets sold.

NOW SAY SHE WAS NOT LEGAL WIFE

Former St. Louis Woman Has Show for the Shumaker Insurance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—When the case of Mrs. Ella Heflick Shumaker against the four insurance companies who have refused to pay her insurance, amounting to $40,000, on the life of her late husband, Alva P. Shumaker, is reached in the United States Court, May 20, among other things that the insurance companies will bring out is the fact that in 1898 Shumaker, while employed in St. Louis, married a young woman there, who afterwards went with him to the City of Mexico, to which city Shumaker had been sent by his firm.

While there Shumaker and his wife became very friendly with a wealthy Mexican planter and his wife. The planter fell in love with Mrs. Shumaker, and Shumaker fell in love with the Mexican's wife. The latter was a woman of the pronounced beauty type. After several months Shumaker and the Mexican agreed to exchange wives, the two women being satisfied.

Soon after this Shumaker left the City of Mexico, and took the Mexican woman with him to New York. There they lived until a wealthy New York man fell in love with the beautiful Mexican woman and she deserted Shumaker. It was then that Shumaker came to Pittsburg and began his career here. The insurance companies will attempt to prove that Shumaker was never legally divorced from his first wife; that if he married the Mexican woman, he committed bigamy; if he was divorced from his first wife, then he was not divorced from the Mexican woman, if he was married to her.

All the facts in connection with the exchange of wives is a matter of record in Mexico City, and it was only a short time ago that a representative of the original Mrs. Shumaker was here securing information to prove the death of Shumaker. She is still living in Mexico with the planter.

Attorneys for both sides are keeping very quiet regarding the case, but it is believed that when it comes to trial it will prove to be one of the most sensational ever heard in the courts of Pennsylvania.

Vote on Home Rule Bill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—In the vote for the home rule police bill, which passed the House by a vote of 91 to 21, eleven Republican members of the St. Louis delegation supported it. Four of them, with two of its Democratic members, were absent and one of the Democratic members voted no. The eleven voting for the passage of the bill were: Biggs, Catlin, Drosto, Haller, Linck, Miller, Phillips, Weber, Willard, Zepp and Brooks. The Republicans absent were: Schuedding, Warner, Wilson and Busche. The absent Democrats were: McDermott and Moroney, and the Democrat voting against the bill was Lucks.

NEW STOCK TO SELECT FROM

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF PATRICK KEENAN

NEW YORK, May 9.—Patrick Keenan, late City Chamberlain, was buried yesterday. His estate will amount to about $200,000. The funeral of Mr. Keenan was the largest and most impressive since that of the late John J. O'Brien. Almost every prominent city official was present. There were 500 coaches containing friends. More than 4000 men on foot followed the cortege.

There were many pathetic scenes among the 20,000 men and women who crowded along the sidewalk as the funeral procession passed. Mr. Keenan during his leadership of 35 years had befriended nearly all of them in one way or other.

Wm. G. Lundbeck Dies.

Blood poisoning caused by a carbuncle resulted in the death of William G. Lundbeck, former United States Boiler Inspector, at his home in Shrewsbury Park, St. Louis County. Mr. Lundbeck was 46 years old. He is survived by his widow and son.

BIGGEST LOCOMOTIVE WEIGHS 204 TONS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—The American Locomotive Co. has completed at its Allegheny plant the largest and heaviest locomotive in the world. It will be used for dragging the Pennsylvania 16-hour Chicago express across the mountains.

The new locomotive with its tender weighs 204 tons, which is many tons in excess of the heaviest engine ever built before. It has three drivers on each side, the drivers being 80 inches in diameter. Just what the monster will be able to accomplish in the speed line will not be known until she is given a trial on the road.

Robbers Spared His Underwear.

James Crockett, 54 years old, of Mineral Point, Mo., rushed into the Chestnut Street Station, Wednesday night, clad only in his underwear and shoes, and told the desk sergeant that he had been robbed of his clothes and watch by two negroes on the Levee. He said the negroes pulled him into a box car and then robbed him.

ELEVEN REPUBLICANS AIDED REMOVAL BILL.

Amendment Makes Attorney-General Assistant Prosecutor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—The bill authorizing the removal of derelict county officials through the institution of civil proceedings, which was passed by the Senate, was taken up and passed in the House by a vote of 80 to 38. But two attempts were made to amend it, and one of these failed. It was sought by Mr. Hill to make the proceedings instituted under the provisions of the bill criminal in their nature, and to have them tried as other criminal cases are heard. This was defeated. The change which went through was the amendment making the Attorney-General, who may be instructed to go into any case brought by the Governor, the assistant and not the Prosecuting Attorney in charge.

Eleven Republicans voted for the passage of the bill. These were, Brassfield, Clark, Ditzler, Kies, Martin, Noyes, Raymond, Shope, Stemmens, Wade of Green and Whitaker.

Of the negative votes, four were cast by the Democrats—Chancellor, Heathman, Inglish and Oliver.

LIGHT TO COST LESS, OR CITY WILL BUILD.

Companies Will Be Asked to Submit Early Bids.

As a first step toward a municipal lighting plant, Harbor Commissioner Whyte will submit to the Board of Public Improvements Friday a bill authorizing that body immediately to advertise for bids for lighting the city at the expiration of the present contract in 1910. The bill has the approval of Mayor Wells.

If low bids are not obtained, it is proposed to begin legislation looking to the establishment of a municipal plant. The present lighting contract is for $550,000 a year, with $25,000 added for lighting public buildings. Supervisor of Lighting Carter has estimated that lighting the city by municipal plant would cost $512,980, while the plant would cost $2,523,000.

STRIKING MACHINISTS OFFERED FORMER PAY

Union Secretary Says Men Will Stand Together.

Striking machinists who return to their old places will have to accept the wages that were paid them before May 1. This announcement was made at a meeting of the strikers Wednesday night by Eugene Sarber, business agent of District No. 9. Mr. Sarber said that the members of the Metal Trades Association had decided to withdraw the offer of an increase to some of their machinists which was made May 1. Mr. Sarber said this decision would strengthen the men and keep them together.

The Payyer Printing Machine Works and the William Gruendler Machine Co. have signed agreements with the officers of the union to pay an advance of 10 per cent in wages.

Burglar Frightened Away.

Mrs. Fred E. Edler of 1804 Papin street, while retiring at 12:50 a. m., Thursday, saw a man at her window on the second floor of her home. She screamed and the man dropped from sight. The police found a ladder against the wall. Mrs. Edler thinks burglary was intended.

SOCIETY

NEWS OF THE DAY

MISS LILLIE ERNST, Miss Virginia Cox and Miss Virginia Stevenson, who took male parts in the Wednesday Club play, did not conform to masculine attire. They did not wear trousers. They wore plain black skirts of the least conspicuous style and cut, and, as Miss Cox said: "Nobody knew whether we had on trousers or not, for the palms at the front of the stage hid us completely from the waist down."

The upper half of their costumes was strictly masculine. Miss Ernst's make-up consisted of a regulation frock coat, high linen collar and bow tie, with silk hat and gloves. She disguised her identity with a curly blond wig and a mustache to correspond. Her appearance was so comical that from the moment she came on the stage until the curtain went down she kept the audience in a ripple of laughter. Miss Cox was no less striking in correct afternoon male costume, minus the trousers. Miss Stevenson's costume was that of an elderly gentleman of quiet tastes.

Mark Twain's Play.

The play was Mark Twain's "Meisterschaft," which has for its motif the experiences of two young American girls, played by Mrs. Lemuel Ray Carter and Mrs. Joseph Lewis—who are sent by an anxious father—played by Miss Stevenson—to study German in a strictly German household where nothing is spoken but the native language.

Mrs. Philip Fouke played the German landlady, with Miss Violet Kauffman for her amusing little maid. Miss Kauffman achieved one of the biggest successes of the afternoon by her graceful dancing. This talented young woman has had much experience in amateur theatricals both at Vassar and in St. Louis.

Miss Ernst and Miss Cox played the American young men who are lovers of the girls and who follow them to Germany. They are unable to speak German, but a tremendous bluff, which works well for three weeks until they are discovered by the irate father. The girls announced their engagements and all ends well.

New Officers Installed.

Installation of new officers preceded the play. Mrs. Robert Atkinson, the retiring president, spoke briefly, and Mrs. Alfred Lee Shapleigh, the new president, responded. A social session completed the afternoon, refreshments being served by Mmes. Arthur Gale, Simeon Ray, Franklin Ferriss, Harold Tittmann, John Schroers, George M. Wright and John Kennard. Some of the members present were Mmes. Isabel Holmes Thompson, Daniel Nugent, Truman Biddle, George W. Parker, Albert Brueggeman, George B. Hoffman, W. B. Homer, Kent Jarvis, George F. Tower, J. C. Van Riper, E. A. Wilson, James Waterworth, Philip North Moore, John Nickerson, Henry Meier, George W. Kimball, Calvin Lightner, Bransford Lewis, E. R. Hoyt, Edward Wyman, Florence Wyman Richardson, Dwight Tredway, Bryan Snyder, S. L. Swartz, Otto von Schrader, Julius Pitzman, Frank Richey, James Hoskins, Everett Pattison, Frank O'Fallon, George Mepham, Max Kotany, the Misses Rumbold, Taussig, Elizabeth Moore.

Return From Mexican Trip.

Mrs. John Doneghy, with her mother, Mrs. Anne Coles, her daughter, Mrs. Anne Doneghy Boone and her sister, Mrs. David Weyer of Kansas City, returned this week from a three months' stay in Mexico.

Mrs. Weyer has been visiting Mrs. Doneghy since their return, but left Wednesday for Kansas City.

"We stayed over especially for the Battle of Flowers, which took place April 28 in the City of Mexico," said Mrs. Doneghy. "It was the most gorgeous spectacle I ever saw. The carriages and automobiles were almost hidden under their decorations of real flowers, and our little party alone threw four bushels of flowers from our balcony."

Way-Forsythe Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Betty Way and Dr. Robert Forsythe took place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kern. Spring flowers were used in decorating and formed the coloring of the bridemaids' dresses. They wore lingerie gowns and each carried different flowers, forget-me-nots, pink carnations and yellow daffodils.

The bride wore a gown of messaline satin trimmed in old point lace, and long tulle veil, with coronet of orange blossoms. She also wore a handsome pendant of pearls and diamonds, the gift of the bridegroom. Mrs. Way wore a robe of black thread lace over white chiffon. Mrs. Kern was in blue silk trimmed in cream lace.

Sunday evening a large surprise party was given to Mr. Harold Rederer, 3331 California avenue, by the Wolfenstein Stags, in honor of his birthday. Mr. Rederer was presented with a diamond studded set watch by the club. Features of the evening were dancing and music, among them the Virginia reel. Young people also participated in many novel games. Several recitations were rendered and also the club yells and songs were given. Mr. Gatson Birge of New York rendered a vocal selection, entitled "Nonsense." At 11:30 p. m. a serenade was given to Mr. Rederer. The house was decorated with the club colors, red and white, and every person was met at the door by a young man dressed as a stag. Upon leaving, each and every one were presented with a miniature stag. Those present were:

We are the Artful Dodgers, don't you see,
We're all that Artful Dodgers ought to be.
With a nickel try your luck,
Make the Artful Dodger duck;
For we're dodging everything but charity.

One of the most attractive concessions at the Charity Carnival will be the Artful Dodger, presided over by a bevy of beautiful sunflowers. This attraction should be a sufficient inducement to even Old Sol to come out and show his appreciation of a noble work for charity and the selection of his favorite flower augurs well for the presence of the "Old Boy," who, above all others, can make the carnival the great success it should be.

MME. YALE'S

Hair Tonic

For Children and Adults

ANTISEPTIC AND HYGIENIC

A HAIR INVIGORATOR—Just what its name implies. It supplies nourishment, the elements of growth, which, when absorbed by the hair, strengthens and beautifies it in the same way that sap glorifies the foliage of a tree. Even when the follicles are seemingly dead, if the scalp is massaged daily with Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic, a vigorous growth will be produced. It has honestly earned its title of "the great hair grower." It stimulates the most stunted growth and makes the hair magnificently healthy and beautiful.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC is prized equally by men and women, particularly when the hair begins to weaken or fade. Cures baldness, grayness, splitting of the hair, dandruff and all diseases of the hair, scalp and beard. One application stops hair falling. A nursery requisite; no mother should neglect to use it for her boys and girls; when the hair is made strong in childhood it remains proof against disease and retains its vigor and youthfulness throughout life.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC is a colorless, fragrant, delightful hair dressing; neither sticky, gritty nor greasy; makes the hair soft, fluffy and glossy. Contains no artificial coloring; will not sell the whitest hair; restores original color by invigorating the scalp and re-establishing normal circulation and proper distribution of the live coloring matter. Beautiful hair redeems the plainest countenance, and anyone can secure it by using Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. Now in 3 sizes: $1 size for 75c; 50c size for 38c; 25c size 19c.

FELLOW-SERVANT BILL UP TO FOLK

Miners' Measure Wins in House With Slight Opposition, 75 to 31.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—The Bradley bill, extending the fellow-servant law to miners, has passed both houses of the Legislature and is now in the hands of Gov. Folk for his signature.

Briefly, the bill provides that mine operators shall be responsible for injuries suffered by employes as a result of accidents due to the negligence of their fellow workmen. The demand for this legislation came not alone from the 40,000 miners of Missouri, but from the masses of organized labor throughout the State. The Post-Dispatch was the first newspaper to direct attention to the unscrupulous methods employed to defeat the bill at the regular session.

Fighting the fellow-servant law were the millionaire mine operators of the State, backed by an almost unlimited amount of capital. Gov. Folk failed to include a recommendation for this legislation in his special message, and, through the Post-Dispatch, legislators pointed out the necessity for such a law. Many of them who had voted against the bill at the regular session declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent that they had done so under a misapprehension.

Following the publication of these expressions of opinion, Gov. Folk forwarded a special message to the General Assembly on fellow-servant legislation. The Senate passed the bill 19 days ago by a unanimous vote. Only a minor amendment was added in the House of Representatives and this was readily concurred in by the Senate today. When the bill came up for final passage in the House yesterday, Representative Lewis of St. Francois County delivered his maiden speech in support of the bill, and surprised the House with his ability in the forensic field.

He found there was opposition to the measure, which was only presented in a half-hearted sort of way, however, by Representatives Roach and Clark. Only a little while did the discussion continue, and the bill went through by a vote of 75 to 31. Many of its friends were in the Senate chamber, listening to the exciting debate over the Pemberton bill, but they could have easily been brought to the rescue had it been necessary. It was a victory more pronounced than appears from the vote, because the opposition had the advantage of having defeated the bill twice during the regular session. This time it goes through with votes to spare.

TEXAS SHERIFF IS COMING FOR H. CLAY PIERCE

Will Arrive in Time to Attend Federal Habeas Corpus Hearing.

FIGHTING FOR LIBERTY

Surrender of Millionaire Oil Man Followed Months of Legal Planning.

Sheriff George S. Mathews of Travis County, Texas, is speeding toward St. Louis, as fast as express trains can bring him, to take into custody Millionaire H. Clay Pierce, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., and a member of John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil Trust, and return with him to Texas to answer a charge of false swearing.

The Texas official is due to arrive in St. Louis Friday morning. If Judge Elmer B. Adams of the United States Circuit Court, decides Saturday, in the habeas corpus proceeding underw hich the millionaire oil man was released on $10,000 bond Wednesday, that Pierce's constitutional rights have not been violated in the extradition procedure, Sheriff Mathews will leave at once with his prisoner for Austin.

City Counselor Bates said Thursday the Law Department of the city merely represented the Chief of Police, Creecy, in the Pierce extradition case. He said he could not tell what course the case would take.

Own Admissions Responsible.

Pierce was indicted in Texas several months ago. His own admissions in the Missouri ouster suits, in which he confessed that the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. is controlled and largely owned by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, were primarily responsible for the institution of the criminal proceedings against him in Texas, because in May, 1900, he made oath that the Waters-Pierce company was not a party to any pool or combination in restraint of trade.

Soon after the indictment Pierce left St. Louis and went to New York. It was given out that his permanent home was in the East. Gov. Folk honored the requisition for Pierce, issued by Gov. Campbell of Texas, and the millionaire oil magnate was thus placed in the attitude of a fugitive from his own State.

Pierce's indictment was the severest blow in the development of the legal proceedings against the company of which he is the nominal head. Attorney-General Hadley was pounding Pierce with legal shot and shell on a charge of violating the anti-trust laws of Missouri and threatening to drive his company from the State. Texas was after him through its legal department for violation of the anti-trust laws, and the United States Government had included him and his company in a sweeping suit to dissolve the great Standard Oil combination.

These suits were matters of minor importance to Pierce, because his personal liberty was not involved in any of them.

Constitutional Question.

After months of study Pierce's legal advisers hit upon the constitutional question by which they hope to save him from extradition. If the Federal courts hold that Pierce cannot be extradited from Missouri, then, so far as the St. Louis police are concerned, they will have to release him, and he will be safe from further molestation in this State. Texas may, however, catch him in some other State, or, if he should visit Texas for any purpose, he would be subject to arrest so long as the indictment stands against him.

If Pierce is taken to Texas he probably will be arraigned in court and required to give bond for his appearance at some later date. The Texas authorities are preparing, in the event he is taken within the jurisdiction of their courts, to have his trial set for some time during the present term.

Gruet Testimony.

John P. Gruet, former secretary of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., did not appear to resume his testimony Thursday in the Texas civil suit against the company to oust it from the State, and assess penalties against it aggregating more than $5,000,000. The depositions are being taken in Attorney J. D. Johnson's office in the Bak of Commerce Building.

During the proceedings Wednesday John P. Gruet Jr. produced a copy of the agreement between John P. Gruet Sr. and Jewell P. Lightfoot, assistant Attorney-General of Texas. Under the terms of this agreement Gruet is to get one-third of the penalties assessed against the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. in consideration of his services and testimony in the case.

Jewell P. Lightfoot, Assistant Attorney-General of Texas, departed for Austin Wednesday night, leaving his associate, George W. Allen, to cross-examine the witnesses appearing before Commissioner Sanborn in behalf of the defense in the civil suit against the Waters-Pierce Oil Co.

Mr. Allen told a Post-Dispatch reporter so far as he knew counsel had not been engaged to represent the District Attorney of Travis County in the hearing before Judge Adams Saturday.

In regard to the agreement between Lightfoot and Gruet the details of this were brought out several months ago at the hearing in Texas, Mr. Allen said. Similarly, he said, the United States Government has, for a long time, given the greater part of fees collected in certain cases to the informers.

Every back yard can just as easily be kept neat and attractive as to be allowed to look like ruins. Barn paints are inexpensive and what wonders of improvement they will work if used on sheds and fences. Call for color cards and prices and we know you will decide to buy. Society Women Read to Blind.

A committee of the Woman's Christian Association Wednesday visited the Blind Girls' Home on Garrison avenue, which is conducted under the supervision of the association. The visitors were surprised at the knowledge shown by the inmates of current topics and literature. The home has 31 inmates. Though only two or under 20 years old, nearly all speak of themselves as "girls." Some of the young society women who take turns at reading to the inmates are Mrs. Edward Dillon, Miss Ella Holden, Miss Emma Shockley, Miss Irene Catlin, Miss Bertha Shafer, Miss Gussie Kalb, Miss Nicholsen and Miss Hand.

GEN. KUROKI TO BE SEC. TAFT'S GUEST

Washington Will Entertain Foreign Army and Navy Officers for Three Days.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—During the next three days Washington will give the many distinguished foreign army and naval officers, now in the United States on account of the Jamestown Exposition, an example of American hospitality and courtesy. The most distinguished of the purely military guests will be Gen. Kuroki, the famous Japanese field officer, second in command in the war with Russia, and Vice-Admiral Ijuin, the ranking naval officer among the foreign contingent in command of the Japanese squadron now in Hampton Roads.

Secretary Taft on Friday night will give a dinner in honor of Gen. Kuroki, which will be attended by a number of prominent military people, including the military attaches of the various embassies and the legations in Washington. Saturday night the Japanese Ambassador will give a dinner in honor of the visitors, but the chief feature in Gen. Kuroki's entertainment will be a reception to him and the other Japanese officers at the White House Friday afternoon and a dinner Saturday night, preceding the entertainment at the Japanese Embassy. Secretary Metcalf of the navy also will give a luncheon to the visiting naval officials at some convenient hour that is yet to be fixed.

A state dinner will be given Friday night by Secretary Root in honor of the officers of the Argentine training ship Presidente Sarmiente, to which he has invited the diplomatic representatives of the various South American countries which he visited in his tour last summer. Friday afternoon the President will entertain at luncheon the Duke de Abruzzi and the Italian Ambassador, Mayer des Planches. Elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of this member of Italy's royal family also have been made by the Italian Embassy.

London Sees "Strongheart."

LONDON, May 9.—Charles Frohman presented Robert Edeson's company at the Aldwich Theater last night in "Strongheart." On the whole the reception was favorable. The critics today are hard on the play itself, but they expect that the extreme novelty and realism of the football scene will suffice to attract good houses.

ROOSEVELT IS AT OUTS WITH HUGHES

But It Is Denied That Campaign Has Been Planned Against the Governor.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—It was denied officially at the White House that friends of President Roosevelt met at Albany, N. Y., Tuesday for the purpose of organizing a campaign against Gov. Hughes and securing the New York delegates to the Republican national convention for Secretary Taft. It was stated officially at the White House that if such a movement is on foot it is without the knowledge of the President, and does not have his sanction.

It is well known that there is a misunderstanding between President Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes, and that they are working at cross purposes, but it is the belief that this trouble will be adjusted and complete harmony will be restored. When there is a better understanding of the President's attitude by the New York element there will be hearty co-operation between the President and Gov. Hughes. The misunderstanding grows out of an announcement made by Gov. Hughes that he had no agreement to co-operate with President Roosevelt in the matter of securing control of the State for the President's choice, and that in return Gov. Hughes was to dictate Federal appointments in New York.

An informal statement was given out at the White House some time ago that there was an understanding between the President and Gov. Hughes. But no notice was given to Gov. Hughes, although the President did talk with Hughes' party associates and supporters. When Hughes saw this announcement he made his statement that there was no agreement. Then trouble occurred over the demand for the resignation of Archie Sanders, the Internal Revenue Collector at Rochester, and the agreement to appoint Dr. Burkhardt, formerly mayor of Batavia, at the dictation of Superintendent of Public Works Stevens, and Representative Porter, who defeated Wadsworth. This led Hughes to believe that his administration was being used in the fight, and he did not like it. This is one of the causes for holding up the appointment of Sanders' successor.

Girl Hurt, Driver Held.

Nellie A. Wilcox, 7 years old, who was run over by a heavy stake-wagon of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. at Grand avenue and Pine street Wednesday afternoon, was reported at St. John's Hospital Thursday as improving. James Roll, driver of the wagon, was arrested. He told policemen that the pavement and lines were wet, and that he could not stop the horses before they knocked the girl down.

JOHN L. VISITS AND TALKS SHOP WITH ROOSEVELT

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—John L. Sullivan and President Roosevelt had a sparring match in private this week. The number of rounds fought and the outcome is a state secret, but, as he left the executive office, Mr. Sullivan declared the President "is all right."

They did not actually put on the gloves, and the contest was not strictly according to the Marquis of Queensbury rules, as the bout was a wordy one. Sullivan opened up the first round with a heavy argument in favor of corkscrew blows on the solar plexus, and the President countered with a stiff uppercut regarding the advantages of a straight one on the point of the jaw.

Then there was a lively mix-up while the President and Sullivan both talked at the same time regarding welter, light, middle and heavy weights, clinches, footwork and feints. It became so furious that it was necessary for Referee Loeb to separate the contestants.

In the breakaway Mr. Sullivan landed a heavy argument in favor of his nephew, for whom he asked a pardon. He was not much winded when he left the executive offices.

Before the bout in the President's private office there was a meeting between two heavyweights — Secretary Taft, weight 280, and John L. Sullivan, who tips the beam at 350.

ROCKEFELLER BARS OLD SOLDIER FROM GROUNDS

NEW YORK, May 9.—William Rockefeller's feud with Oliver Lamora, one of the small land owners at Brandon, in Franklin County, where the millionaire has his big Adirondack preserve, has come to a point, it is reported, where Lamora is denied the right of receiving mail from the Postoffice at Bay Pond. The Postoffice is on the Rockefeller estate and under an injunction obtained by the Standard Oil magnate, Lamora dares not go to it, for he would then become a trespasser.

Information reached New York today through a gentleman who has determined to appeal to Washington in Lamora's behalf, that the old man has not been able to get any mail at the Bay Pond office since January last. He is a Civil War veteran, and his pension, letters and newspapers have been piling up in a pigeonhole.

The nearest postoffice to Bay Pond is at Paul Smith's, nine miles away. Lamora has not a horse or any means of transportation and is too old to walk. His long fight to prevent Rockefeller from driving him from the village has cost him all the personal property he ever owned.

It was in 1904 that William Rockefeller persuaded Henry C. Payne, who was then postmaster general, to transfer the postoffice at Brandon onto his estate at Bay Pond. Payne made the change as a matter of personal friendship for the millionaire, and acted, it is asserted, without consulting Bristow, his fourth assistant, within whose province such a transfer belonged. The transfer, it is charged, was part of the Rockefeller scheme to force the few small land owners that remained to sell their holdings to him.

Seldom has a session of any Franklin County court been held since William Rockefeller went into the Adirondacks that there has not been a presentation of some phase of his feud with Lamora. In all cases Lamora has been charged either with trespass or poaching. Until Rockefeller appeared, he knew of no law that prohibited a man from bringing down any buck that crossed his path, or taking trout from any stream worth fishing. Rockefeller changed this order of things, buying the mountaineers' land right and left.

Lamora Not So Easy.

When it came to dealing with Lamora, however, Rockefeller and his agents discovered that they had a hard nut to crack. Lamora refused to sell. He declared he was going to finish his life in Brandon. Rockefeller's attorneys have claimed ever since that Lamora wants such an outrageous amount for the ground he owns that they will never consent to pay it.

No sooner had Lamora disclosed his attitude than he began to feel the heavy hand of the millionaire. One action in which he was accused of fishing on the Rockefeller estate went to the Court of Appeals and it was decided that the stream from which Lamora had taken his fish was a public waterway, stocked by State Hatcheries. In another suit for trespass Rockefeller got a judgment for 17 cents against Lamora. This was appealed and confirmed, putting the costs of the suit, amounting to $700, on Lamora. There is no personal property to levy on, so the judgment will run against Lamora's land.

Caused Old Soldier to Be Fined.

A few weeks ago Lamora was fined $100 for having been caught with deer meat in his possession. The old man asserts that it was a plot of Rockefeller that got him into trouble. His defense was that one evening a man asked to be harbored in his cabin. He was a hunter, and he gave Laomora and his wife a chunk of venison. Lamora put it in his pork barrel. The first thing the following morning two game wardens appeared, went directly to the pork barrel and uncovered the venison.

Lamora's neighbors have subscribed to pay his fine and now, it is understood they are agreed that the Rockefeller oppression has gone far enough. They are said to want to know if the Standard Oil magnate has absorbed the United States postal service too.

Public Has Access.

A correspondent of the Post-Dispatch was told at the postoffice department in Washington that access to the postoffice at Bay Pond, was not denied the public and that there could not be an injunction forbidding access. First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock said that a report that the public was being excluded from Bay Pond was investigated and found to have no foundation. He said that the postoffice had been transferred from Brandon to Bay Pond because it had been represented that most of the persons in the neighborhood lived on the Rockefeller estate. He added that the transfer was under a stipulation that the public should have free access to it.

"Ordered that the defendant, Oliver Lamora, and each and every one of his associates, agents, servants, employees and all other persons going with or under his instructions, direction or request, is enjoined or restrained from in any manner entering upon the plaintiff's said lands."

GUARDS SUN SELVES AT BIG CAR PLANT.

No Strikers Appear to Require Bluecoats' Services.

Three policemen in uniform—two on foot and one mounted—and two detectives sunned themselves outside the plant of the St. Louis Car Co., in Baden, Thursday, guarding the place against striking painters. The bluecoats and their aids had nothing to do. None of the strikers appeared within sight.

The strikers called a meeting for 2 p. m. Thursday in Walhalla Hall, to discuss plans for the future. More than 100 quit work at the factory and none has returned.

At the meeting it is intended to arrange to press charges which the union has made against Chief of Detectives Smith of wrongful methods in "sweating" certain members of the union in connection with recent thefts of gold leaf at the plant.

To Dissolve University City Co.

A petition to dissolve the University City Realty and Investment Co. was filed Thursday at Clayton by its promoters, E. G. Lewis, its head, announced recently that the dissolution would take place on account of Postoffice Department's opposition to his plan of soliciting subscriptions to bonds of the concern by mail.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening paper in St. Louis receiving the ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS. First in Everything.

RISKED HIS LIFE TO OBEY ORDERS

Fireman Went Back Into Smoke-Filled Building When Captain Called.

It was because Pipeman Charles Kline of Engine Co. No. 2 would not act in accordance with his own judgment, since, to do so would be in conflict with the orders of his captain, that he was overcome by smoke at the fire at the Graham Paper Co.'s plant at 115 North Second street, Wednesday afternoon.

"I was all in, but I was not going to be a quitter," said Kline Thursday morning, just before his discharge from the City Hospital. "I had just come out of the dense smoke on the third floor and my lungs were full of smoke. My captain called on me to come and relieve him and back I went into the smoke."

The building was damaged to the extent of $10,000, and the loss on the stock is estimated at $30,000.

The clanging of the gongs on the fire apparatus as it was drawn up on Olive street and the smell of the smoke which came in through the windows alarmed 20 young women employed in the Becktold printing and bookbinding plant, which adjoins the structure that was burned, and they fled into the street, carrying their hats and wraps.

The building is owned by A. B. Hart, Mrs. E. H. Semple and Mrs. Anna H. Bray. It was insured for $20,000. The Graham Paper Co. carried a stock valued at $100,000. Its loss is covered by insurance.

CONFIRMATIONS KEEP ARCHBISHOPS ENGAGED

Ashbishop Harty of Manila officiated at confirmation services at St. Leo's Church Thursday afternoon. There are 400 in the class and four priests were busy all day Wednesday hearing confessions of those who were to receive first communion. Fifty of them are adults.

Thirty-five children received first communion early Thursday at the Sacred Heart Academy on Taylor avenue. Archbishop Glennon officiated.

Archbishop Glennon went Thursday morning to Florisant, there to confirm at St. Ferdinand's Church, Convent of the Sacred Heart, the German Convent and Loretta Academy.

469,000,000 a Year Increase.

Nothing indexes the prosperity of a nation more accurately than the tobacco industry, especially with respect to cigars and cigarettes. During the past eight years the cigar output has been more than doubled in this country, the sales for the fiscal year being 8,070,672,649, as compared with 4,063,169,097 for 1898. Additional United States internal revenue reports just rendered show an increased sale of 469,000,000 cigarettes for 1906 over the preceding year.

A leading New York jurist declared the other day that the best cigarettes, such as Murads, Helmars or Deities for instance, were by no means injurious in themselves to either adults or minors, so far as he had observed. As the uses, as well as abuses, of tobacco are more thoroughly appreciated, the cigarette appears to be coming in for a square deal.

NEW ASSESSOR'S BOND REJECTED

Action of Supervisor Browning Complicates East St. Louis Situation.

The assessorship contest in East St. Louis became more complicated Wednesday when Supervisor Roy Browning refused to accept the bond of Joseph Vonhamme as Assessor. Vonhamme was appointed Monday by the East St. Louis City Council immediately after that body had declared the office of Assessor vacant on account of the election of John Niemes as City Treasurer.

Niemes was elected Assessor last year by the Citizens' party, although the assessment was not to be made until this year. At the last election Niemes was a candidate on the Citizens' ticket for City Treasurer, and Vonhamme was a candidate for Assessor on the Cook party ticket. Vonhamme was defeated and Niemes was elected.

Cook party officials claimed that when Niemes qualified as City Treasurer he lost his job as Assessor. W. S. Forman appeared as Niemes' attorney and requested the City Council to confirm his appointment of deputies. The Council refused to confirm the deputies and declared Niemes' office vacant.

Vonhamme added complications at this time by filing a contest against Charles Haeffle, who defeated him for Assessor by six votes. If he is successful in this contest he will assess East St. Louis property next year regardless of the present contest for Niemes' job. After the City Council appointed him, Vonhamme prepared his bond and presented it Wednesday to Roy Browning for acceptance.

Browning is County Supervisor from East St. Louis and is a law partner of W. S. Forman, Niemes' attorney. The law requires the supervisor to pass upon the bonds of assessors, and Browning turned Vonhamme's bond down, claiming that he had accepted Niemes' bond and that there was no vacancy in the Assessor's office, ignoring the City Council's action. With the wheels working within wheels, the result is now uncertain.

Vonhamme intended to file suit to compel Niemes to give up the assessment books, but until he is appointed and legally qualified, it is doubtful, lawyers say, whether he could be successful in such suit. Until Browning approves his bond, Vonhamme is not legally qualified. If a suit is necessary to compel Browning to give his reasons in court for refusing to approve the bond, the time which would elapse before the suit was completed would enable Niemes to complete the assessment. In that case lawyers say that Niemes' assessment would stand.

The Council could, however, refuse to pay Niemes' deputies, and compel him to pay them himself. The deputy hire amounts to about $3000 and Niemes' salary is only $1000.

SERUM FROM RABBIT'S BRAIN ALMOST FATAL.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Horace J. Stevens of Houghton, Mich., author of the copper handbook and an authority on copper and its production, is in New Orleans recovering from an experience probably more painful and unique than falls to the lot of men.

It was caused by the injection of infected serum from the brain of a rabbit into his abdomen as a cure for hydrophobia. Mr. Stevens was bitten by a house cat on Dec. 26, 1906, while trying to rescue his young daughter who was attacked by the animal. He was given the Pasteur treatment in Chicago three weeks later and while convalescent had come to New Orleans with his wife and daughter to see the Mardi Gras.

While passing through Southern Indiana a case of cod poisoning developed which became so far advanced by the time he reached New Orleans that Mr. Stevens had to be taken to the Hotel Dieu. There he received most careful treatment for about eight weeks and won in the battle for life when the chances were about 1000 to 1 against him.

Mr. Stevens says that the last injection he received of rabbit's brain must have been decayed and the tablespoonful of that poisonous matter injected into his abdomen produced septicaemia.

It will require four weeks more for the wounds to heal.

Admiral Evans, it is reported, has not been aboard his flagship, the Connecticut, for several days. He is supposed to be occupying a room at the Hotel Chamberlin, Old Point Comfort.

Clubmen Deny Haller's Charge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—Representative Droste of St. Louis presented in the House today an affidavit from J. H. Guyett, president, and William C. Johnson, secretary of the Missouri Athletic Club, relative to Representative Haller's statement that the club is owned by three men. Haller was arguing for the passage of the club bill when he made his assertion. The club officers denounced Haller's representations as being untrue in every particular. Haller attempted this morning to have Colin M. Selph of St. Louis ejected from the floor of the House. Selph represents the clubs. No attention was paid by the members, however, to Haller's request.

BECAME ENGAGED TO HUNDREDS OF MEN

Woman and Daughter Bled One Farmer for $1000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 9.—Postoffice Inspector Hosford of Louisville, Ky., is here to gather evidence against Mrs. Violet Williams and daughter, Garnet, known under the name of Lancaster, charged with using the mails to defraud. The women were arrested for conducting a matrimonial swindle.

They admitted that since they came to Evansville, about five years ago, they have conducted a matrimonial bureau and become engaged to many hundreds of men through correspondence. A search of their rooms on Fulton avenue revealed several hundred letters and numerous photographs of men from all parts of the United States and Canada, who were seeking wives.

Several letters were found from a wealthy farmer named August Mishnick, near Cortland, Neb., who is believed to have sent the women various sums of money amounting to about $1000. He was engaged to marry the daughter and had built a new home near Cortland, where he intended to receive his bride in regal fashion.

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, nervousness or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the great woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs.

It cures Female Ailments, such as Weak Back, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion and invigorates the whole female system. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the kidneys in either sex.

SOLICITING FUNDS FOR NEW COLISEUM.

Committee Will Try to Raise $135,000 in Ten Days.

The soliciting of funds for the proposed new Coliseum at Jefferson and Washington avenues begun Thursday by a committee representing the various trade organizations in St. Louis, and headed by Nathan Frank. The committee hopes to raise $135,000 more, and all the solicitors are expected to report May 20 or earlier.

It is the intention of the committees to utilize the steel framework of the old Coliseum now being wrecked at Fourteenth and Locust streets as the framework for the new building. The steel is in an excellent state of preservation, and is said by those in charge of the movement to be just what they want. Negotiations for its purchase are under way.

UNCLE SAM URGED TO LAY TROLLEY TRACKS.

Solution of Mail Car Problem Is Suggested.

J. M. Masten, a special agent of the Postoffice Department, sent to St. Louis to endeavor to find some solution of the trouble between the city and the United Railways Co. over mail cars blockading Eighth street, began his investigation Thursday.

Before he arrived Postmaster Wyman had a conference with General Manager McCulloch of the company, the result of which was a suggestion that the Government lay its own tracks on the west side of Eighth street and the east side of Ninth street and adjoining the Federal Building. It is said that the Government is entitled to the use of one-half of the street on all sides of the building and that it could lay tracks without interference.

SUNSHINE MADE CUPID HUSTLE

R. Park Von Wedelstadt Married in Chicago a Day Ahead of Time.

RECALLED OLD ADAGE

Bride Is Miss Margaret Lester and Ceremony Was Performed Wednesday.

Sunshine caused R. Park Von Wedelstaedt to advance the time of his wedding to Miss Margaret Lester in Chicago 24 hours.

They had planned and announced that theeir wedding would be Thursday. But when Mr. Von Wedelstaedt reached Chicago Wednesday morning, after two weeks of sunless days in St. Louis and found the weather bright and cheerful, he decided to be married at once, if the bride would consent.

His determination to do so was strengthened by the bulletin of the Chicago weather forecaster that Thursday would be rainy.

Miss Lester, remembering the adage that "happy is the bride whom the sun shines on," assented willingly to the bridegroom's suggestion and the ceremony was accordingly performed Wednesday afternoon at the Church of the Redeemer by the Rev. Mr. Blunt.

Mr. Von Wedelstaedt said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent in Chicago Thursday:

Bride's "Yes" Enough.

"I had not seen any sunshine for weeks. When I saw it in Chicago and some one told me what it was, I was carried away. It was a beautiful day. The sun was shining, the air was cool, the lake was blue, and the only reason that the bird were not singing was that there were no birds.

"When I asked Miss Lester, now Mrs. Van Wedelstadt, if she was willing to make this the day she said that she was, and that was enough."

R. Park Von Wedelstadt is one of the best known clubmen in St. Louis. He has been a widower for about ten years. His first wife was a Miss Garth of St. Louis.

His bride is not known in St. Louis society, but St. Louisans who have met her in the East say she is a charming young woman of the petite brunette type. Her parents formerly lived in New York, but for the past year have been in Chicago.

Mr. Von Wedelstadt has been a frequent visitor to Chicago, having a brother, Dr. Bismarck Von Wedelstadt, there.

Retires After Long Business Career.

After an association of 46 years with the largest collar and cuff industry in the country, Mr. Robert Cluett retires from the presidency of the Cluett, Peabody & Co. and from active participation in business. Mr. Cluett, who has occupied the presidency of the company for the past six years, will be succeeded by Mr. F. F. Peabody, a gentleman whose long familiarity and activity in the direction of affairs of the company eminently fit him for the office.

Mr. Cluett's retirement brings about several other changes in official positions. Mr. Robert Cluett Jr. succeeds to the office of vice-president, formerly occupied by Mr. Peabody. Mr. C. A. Cluett becomes the secretary of the company and the name of Mr. A. Gillespie is added to the Board of Directors.

As the makers of the famous Arrow and Cluett brands of collars, and of Monarch and Cluett shirts, the firm of Cluett, Peabody & Co. is known from one end of the country to the other. The changes above reported will in no way affect the former policy of the business, and it will be noted that Mr. Cluett, in retiring from the presidency, leaves others of his name to perpetuate the reputation of this name which has become so well known in connection with collars and cuffs.

ROBBED OF CLOTHES, WATCH AND MONEY.

James W. Crockett Victim of Thieves on Levee.

Not satisfied with robbing him of his watch and money, two highwaymen who, Wednesday night, attacked James W. Crockett, 54 years old, of Mineral Point, Mo., stripped him of his clothing. Crockett, attired only in his undergarments, was compelled to seek refuge in a Police Station. The robbery occurred on the Levee, between Market and Walnut streets.

Crockett came to St. Louis Wednesday evening and after visiting several saloons started to look for a lodging house. He wandered to the Levee and as he was turning south from Market street a man grabbed him.

Crockett was then dragged into a box car and robbed of $14 and a watch and chain. The robbers then stripped their victim of his coat, trousers, vest, hat and shoes. Crockett went to the Chestnut Street Station and reported his experience.

BOY SICK FROM PINING FOR ISLES OF GREECE.

Frineds Thought Gust Psaros Had Become Insane.

Gust Psaros, the 14-year-old Greek boy who became so homesick that his acquaintances thought he had gone insane, will be turned over to the United States Immigration Bureau by the City Health Department. George B. Geraris, who conducts a store at 812 O'Fallon street, brought the boy to the City Dispensary, asking that he be sent to an insane asylum. After examining young Psaros, Dr. Scott, chief dispensary physician, said he was suffering from a bad case of homesickness.

The boy's home is in Dervenion, Korinthias, Greece. He has been in the United States about a year. He came to St. Louis from New York about seven months ago, and has been supporting himself by shining shoes and doing factory work.

ALL-DAY FIGHT FAILS TO BEAT PEMBERTON BILL

Anti-Saloon Measure Passes Senate, 18 to 14, as Did Breeders' Repeal.

KINNEY HELPS IT WIN

Saloon Keeper Senator Told Lobby Dramshop Men Must Obey Laws.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 9.—Immediately after it is enrolled today, Gov. Folk will affix his signature to the Pemberton bill, which passed the Senate last night after one of the most stirring legislative battles ever witnessed in the old Missouri Capitol.

The adoption of the bill means that the saloons and whisky drug stores must leave the vicinity of the State University. In express terms, it provides that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold within five miles of the institution. Agitation for the passage of the legislation grew out of the demoralizing conditions prevailing at Columbia, as pictured by Boone County's Representative, M. H. Pemberton, and scores of the most prominent citizens of that place.

Testimony was also offered by the student body that, in utter defiance of law, the saloon keepers sold intoxicants to the students freely and that little regard was paid to the State dramshop laws, or the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to pupils of a State educational institution. Senator Dowell of Lewis County made the assertion that during April the Columbia saloon keepers had been fined an aggregate of $1200 for selling liquor to students. After the saloon men pleaded guilty, he said, he was informed they were allowed a renewal of their licenses.

When the debate began shortly after 10 a. m. yesterday there was not a vacant seat in the Senate Chamber. Near the close the aisles and vestibules of the great auditorium were packed with a multitude of men and women. They applauded the speakers liberally.

Like Racetracks' Death Knell.

The contest was featured with the same dramatic touch that marked the end of the racetrack gambling bill two years ago. At exactly the same time, under the same circumstances and by the same vote that racetrack gambling received its death knell at the hands of the Missouri Legislature, the Senate voted to expel the open saloon from the neighborhood of the university campus.

Senator Thomas Ely of Dunklin County, who led the fight for the repeal of the breeders' law, took the initiative in urging favorable action for the Pemberton bill. What appeared at first as a mere local fight soon took on a powerful significance. Finding themselves unable to stem the tide of votes for the bill, the representatives of the liquor interests appealed to the railroad lobby for support.

They found a ready friend in James M. Seibert, legislative agent for the Gould railroad interests. Mr. Seibert made a cunning argument to one of the senators with whom he talked on behalf of the bill. Pretending indifference to its fate, he remarked that he would not like to have such a law extended to the Normal School at Cape Girardeau. His efforts failed, however, to win this particular vote.

Pressure was then brought to bear on Senator Gardner of St. Louis County, who had indicated his intention to support the bill.

"If you don't vote no," was the threat conveyed to Gardner by a Southeast Missouri Senator, "we will give you an excise bill for St. Louis County."

The lobby then laid siege to Senator Methudy of St. Louis. Methudy was to be punished in many ways. But he refused to be swayed. Probably the greatest rebuff suffered by The saloon forces was in the quarter where they least expected it. Enemies of the bill asserted that Senator Thomas E. Kinney of St. Louis, who is himself the owner of a dramshop, would surely line up with the foes of the bill.

Men Must Obey—Kinney.

The lobby tackled Kinney, but it was only a momentary parley. "I can't vote against that bill because it affects too many young people," said he. "There are something like 2000 young boys on the university rolls. Besides, they have three ladies' seminaries over there. I know that strong drink is not a good thing for the young folks. While I believe that much legislation enacted in regard to the liquor traffic is unjust and unreasonable, at the same time I realize that the saloon men must be made to obey the law and they should not be permitted to sell to minors.

"I have fathered the child-labor law and the compulsory education law. Now, to be consistent, I have got to uphold the principles involved in these laws by giving the youth of Missouri a chance to get an education without being exposed to the saloon evil near the college grounds.

"Frankly, I do not like, as a general proposition, to vote for this bill, but then who or what does it affect? Only three saloons. Columbia will probably be better off without them."

And so the lobby withdrew from Kinney. A recess was taken from noon until 2:30, but this availed the lobby little. It gained one vote, but that was the extent of its influence.

Speeches against the bill were made by Senators McDavid of Greene County, Major of Howard, Wornall of Clay, Humphrey of Macon, Drunert of Montgomery and Mayer of St. Joseph.

Senators Ely of Dunklin, Avery of Lincoln, Dorris of Oregon, Dowell of Lewis and Gilmore of Kansas City spoke for the bill.

The debate, that progressed like a heavy fire of cannon all day long, was at times bitterly personal. The foremost leaders of the Senate, Ely and McDavid, were pitted one against the other in the most decisive conflict of the extra session. Ely went after McDavid rough shod and the Greene County member responded with a broadside of keen invectives.

Just Enough Friends.

When the vote was finally taken it was found that the bill had just enough friends to insure its becoming a law. When the result, 18 ayes and 14 noes, was announced, the big crowd broke into cheers and for five minutes the Senate chamber was the scene of confusion and disorder.

A number of men and women crowded around Senators Ely, Avery, Dowell and other champions of the measure to congratulate them, while President McKinley rapped his gavel vigorously. It was several minutes before orcer was restored. Following are the Senators who voted for the bill:

Democrats—Bradley, Brown, Buford, Cooper, Dorris, Dowell, Ely, Fields, Kinney, McAllister and Prendergast. Republicans—Curry, Gilmore, Grimes, Hudson, Methudy and Peck. Total, 18.

Those who voted no are:

Democrats—Wornall, Anthony, Devilbiss, Drunert, Farris, Hayman, Humphrey, McDavid, Major and Mayer. Republicans—Anderson, Bauman, Kammerer, Malang. Total, 14.

Present, but not voting—Gardner (Rep.) of St. Louis County, and Eads (Rep.) of Davies County.

Judge J. H. Hawthorne of Kansas City said: "The passage of the Pemberton bill was a great victory for the Post-Dispatch. I intend to send my son to Columbia next year and I am mighty glad there will be no saloons there then. I recall when the university burned down in 1892 that the question of rebuilding it was largely a question of whether the saloons should be allowed to operate at Columbia. The Columbia authorities promised then that the saloons would be suppressed. That promise has never been kept. The Senate acted wisely in passing the Pemberton bill, and all the people of Missouri will approve its action."

J. M. Batterton, a prominent real estate agent of Columbia, said: "If it had not been for the Post-Dispatch we would not have won. All honor to the Post-Dispatch for the help it gave us."

Prof. George Reaseley, who conducts a normal school attended by 500 young ladies, at Columbia; Manley Huelitz, a farmer, and others expressed themselves in similar terms, expressed thempatch correspondent.

Representative James H. Whitecotton of Monroe County, leader of the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, said: "The credit for this victory in behalf of the State University is due to the vigor displayed by the Post-Dispatch in presenting all the facts of the case. There was no shirking the issue, and every one had to stand up and be counted."

Senator McDavid, Speaker pro tem of the Senate, who led the fight on the bill, said: "I had no interest in the matter, except to view it from the standpoint of my own constituency. We have a normal school at Springfield, and I felt that the adoption of the bill might mean like legislation for us two years hence. I thought also that it was against the principle of local self-government. The Post-Dispatch was such a mighty influence in the contest, however, that I had not much hope."

Senator Humphrey, also an opponent of the bill, said: "Now that the bill has passed, it is up to the Columbia authorities to enforce the law. I believe they will do it and that the absence of saloons from Columbia will redound to the benefit of the State University."

No Baggage Men's Strike.

Officials of Baggage and Parcel Delivery Drivers' Local Union No. 754 announced Thursday that they had succeeded in making individual agreements for an increase in wages with most of the express and delivery companies, and that there would be no strike. Under its terms the drivers will be paid $14 and $15 a week, instead of $12 and $13, the rate up to this time.

Dollar's Worth of Balm.

Richard Lee English of 3840 Laclede avenue has a judgment against Abraham Strickland of 1501 Tower Grove avenue for $1, as balm for a false accusation and a false arrest. Strickland accused English of taking his diamond stud, which a brother of Strickland, it afterwards appeared, found in Strickland's bed, where he had dropped it. English sued for $5000 and in Judge Fisher's court a jury gave him $1.

Obey Law, Says Saloonkeeper, Telling Why He Voted for an Anti-Saloon Law

"I can't vote against that bill because it affects too many young people. I know that strong drink is not a good thing for the young folks. While I believe that much legislation enacted in regard to the liquor traffic is unjust and unreasonable, at the same time I realize that the SALOON MEN MUST BE MADE TO OBEY THE LAW AND THEY SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO SELL TO MINORS.

"I have fathered the child labor law and the compulsory education law. Now, to be consistent, I have got to uphold the principles involved in these laws by giving the youth of Missouri a chance to get an education without being exposed to the saloon evil near the college grounds."

'THE THREE GRACES" OF THE CAVE OF THE WINDS AT THE GREAT CHARITY CARNIVAL FRIDAY

MISS VIVIAN MITCHELL

MISS IRENE RENTCHLER

MISS YSOBEL CHASE

When you go out to Delmar Garden Friday afternoon and evening to behold the splendors of the Charity Carnival you will find an immense throng around the "Cave of the Winds." The usual fine features of this attraction would ordinarily account for the crowd, but on Friday there will be the aditional magnet of three of the prettiest girls in all St. Louis—Miss Irene Rentchler, Miss Vivian Mitchell and Miss Ysobel Chase. These three very handsome young ladies all are winners in the Post-Dispatch Beauty Contest, and, for charity's sake have volunteered to help the Carnival concessionaire in the task of coaxing dimes, quarters and dollars into the fund for which the entertainment is given.

The Murillo studio has contributed a large number of handsome prints of the photograph of Miss Rentchler, shown above. Miss Rentchler, who is exceedingly popular in the younger South Side society set, has consented to the sale of the photographs at the "Cave of the Winds" and will graciously preside at the booth where they are to be displayed. There is certain to be a grand rallying of young men eager to get possession of perhaps the finest art photograph ever made in St. Louis.

The official photographer of the Carnival is the Murillo Studio. A staff of operators will be on the grounds all the afternoon taking pictures of concessionaires, helpers and "barkers." All of these photographs are to be sold outright for the fund. It is planned to take one photograph, over three feet long, of all who are working to make this Carnival the greatest success St. Louis has ever known.

Other attractions at "The Cave of the Winds" will be the Washington University Mandolin Club and the High School Glee Club, both of whom will be heard from 8 to 9 in the evening, some real Indians from Pawnee Bill's show and the loudest, leather-est lung "barker" on the grounds.

BRIGHT SKIES FOR CHARITY CARNIVAL

Good Weather to Put the Finishing Touch on the Success for Which the Workers in Behalf of the Double Benefit Have Striven and Hoped.

With every prospect of the brightest of weather for the Charity Carnival, the earnest workers in behalf of the double charity benefit which will possess Delmar Garden Friday are hastening the completion of the final details of preparation.

The sunshine of Thursday gave renewed vigor to the women who have already accomplished so much and the promises of the weather forecaster for similarly bright weather Friday assured the success for which so much work has been done.

After the long days of rainy weather the sun appeared doubly bright, and its appearance tomorrow will put the finishing touches on the success for which the workers have hoped and striven.

The details of preparation for the Carnival, whose object is to raise money for the benefit of the day nursery of the Salvation Army and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the St. Louis Skin and Cancer Hospital, are nearly completed.

In the city's history never has such universal interest or such generosity been shown as in connection with this effort in behalf of the needy and afflicted.

Every nationality, every religious denomination and every walk in life has contributed. The response from business firms and from private individuals has been remarkable, practically no request having been denied. The spirit of generosity has prevailed in donations of all kinds.

Genuine democracy has been another feature. While in the campaign "society" has done its share in full measure, those most closely concerned are anxious that every individual in St. Louis shall feel it a personal obligation and at the same time a privilege, to aid in making the event a splendid triumph of concentrated and co-operative effort.

The plans were originated by and pushed to their present stage by the untiring efforts of women who lead things social. One and all, their common object has been the success of the undertaking in behalf of the two worthy institutions which will be materially benefited.

The desire is that the attendance shall be record breaking, and the occasion one which will long be remembered for the prodigality of entertainment for the most reasonable amount of expenditure.

The usual prices for the Delmar attractions will be charged and correct change is guaranteed.

The official program will contain the name of every woman who has assisted in any active way and a complete list of the concessions operated especially for the Charity Carnival. These are to be given away in the theater and may be obtained for the asking by those whose advertisements appear therein. These advertisements alone netted nearly $2000.

Free newspaper advertising has amounted to over $10,000, members of the Committee on Advertising and Printing declare.

The Advertising and Printing Committee is the largest of all and the work which has been accomplished by the members is considered marvelous. They have assured success by the contributions and donations which are the results of their efforts.

POLICE CHECK FR SCO STREET CAR STRIKERS

COMMERCE IS TIED UP

Schmitz Calls Famous "Committee of Fifty" to Discuss Crisis.

What the Frisco Strikers Demand.

Street railway motormen and conductors: Demand recognition of union, eight-hour day and wage rate of $3 a day. Total number of men on strike, 4000. Strike called May 1, tying up all the street car lines in the city.

Steam laundry workers: Strike called April 1. Demand eight-hour day and an increase of 10 per cent in wages.

Telephone operators: Demand 12 per cent increase in wages and an eight-hour day.

Linemen: Threatening to go out in sympathy.

Sandstone cutters: Demand flat increase of $1 per day.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—President Calhoun of the United Railroads announces that he will operate cars today on a more extensive scale than attempted yesterday. Cars, he said, would be started out over several lines. Police, mounted and in automobiles, will accompany all cars. Chief Dinan stated that he would again follow the plan pursued by the police yesterday and disarm all the strikebreakers or nonunion men who take out cars. All cars will be boarded by the police as they come out of the barns and the men searched for arms. Chief Dinan hopes by this method to avoid a repetition of the shooting and killing of Tuesday.

Mayor Calls on Committee.

Believing that the city is facing a grave crisis, Mayor Schmitz has called together the famous "Committee of Fifty," which, at his request, took charge and directed the affairs of the city during the dark days following the earthquake and fire of April 17 of last year.

The Mayor last night sent communications to 50 representative citizens requesting them to meet at his office at 10 o'clock this morning, to discuss with him the present industrial conditions in this city and to devise ways and means for their ameliorations. Those who were summoned by the Mayor are, with a few exceptions, the same citizens who composed the committee of 50 of April of last year.

James D. Phelan, Rudolph Spreckels, Francis J. Henry, M. H. DeYoung and several others of the old committee, politically active against the Mayor, were not included in his invitations.

When the committee meets today it is understood that Mayor Schmitz will review the situation confronting the city and ask the committee to co-operate with him in settling the strikes and bringing about industrial peace.

Those of the 50 who could be interviewed expressed their intention of responding to the Mayor's invitation and said that they would willingly co-operate with him in any way that they could to end the strife, which has already culminated in serious rioting and bloodshed.

Police Got Busy.

A strong force of police escorted the two cars run out yesterday on the Nineteenth avenue line and any opposition encountered was speedily suppressed by a vigorous use of clubs. Immediate arrests followed all attempts at violence by hurling bricks and other missiles and the police plainly showed themselvesc masters of the situation.

A number of casualties were reported last night, the result of trouble along the route of the cars yesterday, but none of them was serious. Superintendent Barron of the street car barns was assaulted by strikers last night and his nose was broken.

No further fatalities are reported as the result of the riot on Tuesday last. Including John Buchanan, who died last night, the death record has been limited so far to two, with three others of the wounded in a precarious condition.

Strike breakers continue to arrive from the East and a number of additional cars carrying men for the company are reported on the way. The men are from the leading cities of the East. Those who handled the cars in service yesterday are Kentucklans.

Successor to Miss Haskell.

Miss Catherine Burrowes has been chosen as principal of Monticello Seminary, Godfrey, Ill., to succeed Miss Harriet Newton Haskell, who died last Sunday. She has long been a teacher in the seminary. Miss Kate Armstrong of Alton has been appointed secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Played Hot and Cold.

Hyman Mandel of 1713 Biddle street played hot and cold with his wife, Minnie, according to her petition for divorce, filed Wednesday. She says soon after the wedding he threw a bucket of cold water on her and three months ago he threw a kettle of hot water at her. They were married Nov. 20, 1904, and separated in April, 1907.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening paper in St. Louis receiving the ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS.

NUMBER KILLED IN KANSAS CITY FIRE A MYSTERY

Two Known Dead, Police Believe Other Bodies Are in the Ruins.

TWO COUNTESSES HURT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

KANSAS CITY, May 9.—Search for bodies was begun at daylight this morning in the ruins of the University Building at Ninth and Locust streets, destroyed by fire yesterday. One body, at least, is known to be in the debris, that of Miss Aurora Witterbart, an artist, and it is believed that others may be found.

The fire was still smouldering this morning and it will be late in the day before a thorough search can be made. The known dead now number two, Miss Wittebart and Prof. Beorges de Mare.

It is believed that all of the injured will recover. The most seriously hurt is Miss Alexandra Blumberg, the Russian countess, whose skull was fractured in a fall from a ladder. Her condition this morning was considered serious, but Dr. Eugenia Metzger, her physician, with whom she made her home, expressed the belief that the countess would recover.

Countess Alexanda Andrevna Blumberg, an artist, shared a studio on the third floor with Dr. Metzger. She was taken to the Swedish Hospital in a semi-conscious condition and Dr. Metzger and the entire hospital force bent all their energies toward saving her life. She was conscious at times during the night and this morning was reported somewhat improved.

Two Countesses Hurt.

Countess Blumberg is the daughter of a Russian nobleman, Count Andre Blumberg, once a member of the Privy Council of the Czar, who fell under the displeasure of the crown and was exiled, after his immense estates had been confiscated.

His daughter went to Paris soon after the death of her parents and studied art for several years, being a pupil of Bouguereau, Courtois and James McNeil Whistler. She has traveled in many countries and speaks several languages. Her father was a victim of a friend who had charge of his affairs and absconded, after spending his fortune in Nihilist schemes, thus compromising Blumberg so seriously that he was accused unjustly of aiding the Nihilists and lost his estates.

The Countess is a painter of exquisite portraits and is a woman of great artistic talent. She has been in this country only a little more than a year, coming from Paris with Dr. Metzger, who is a physician and surgeon of note. A great many relics, jewels and valuable miniatures were destroyed in the fire. Among them was the great seal of her father, which was 300 years old.

Well-Known Artist Killed.

Georges de Mare, who lost his life by jumping from his studio on the fifth floor, came of a family more than noted in the art world. His maternal grandfather was G. P. A. Healey, one of the greatest of American painters, who had painted portraits of Clay, Lincoln and other notables. His father, who was a noted painter in Paris, died in that city a few years ago.

The professor himself was born in this country, but was educated and lived in Paris until a few years ago. He held various responsible positions in leading art institutions of the country, especially in Chicago. His mother and two sisters live in Denver, another sister is in Paris, and two aunts, Mrs. Judge Hill and Mrs. Bailey, live in Chicago.

OLD ENGLISH ESTATE CLAIMED BY ST. LOUISAN

Will Made in 1745 Found in Bank of England.

Mrs. Malissa J. Tenbroeck of 3155 Bell avenue believes she is an heir under a will made in 1745, and recently found in the Bank of England, where it had been deposited. The will bequeathed $35,000 to a family named Windel in Fuerstenburg, near Baden, German. The estate which has been increasing at 7 per cent compound interest, is now valued at $7,250,000.

Mrs. Tenbroeck is a daughter of Mrs. John Seaman, who died 25 years ago in St. Louis. Mrs. Seaman was a daughter of Alexander Windel Jr., who moved to Orange County, N. Y., from Baden, nearly a century ago. The father of Alexander Windel Jr. bore the same name and lived in Fuerstenburg.

Mrs. Tenbroeck has employed an attorney to investigate her claim to a share in the estate. She has a brother and two sisters living and they will join her in the investigation. They are Thomas C. Seaman of Princeton, Ky., Mrs. C. A. Alexander of Chicago and Mrs. Hattie L. Day of Denver.

Advisory Board for Hospital.

Dr. John C. Morfit, on behalf of the Joint Medical Council, addressed the West End Business Men's Association Wednesday night in favor of a plan to change the management of the City Hospital. He proposed that executive work be taken out of the hands of the superintendent, and that an advisory board of 12 physicians and surgeons be created to supervise the treatment of surgical and medical cases.

Steamer Starts Up Missouri.

The steamer Julius F. Silber, which is to ply betwen St. Louis and Jefferson City in the proposed revival of Missouri River trade, touched at St. Charles at 9 a. m., Thursday. It was the boat's first trip, and it took aboard a consignment of freight for the up-river voyage.

JACKSON AMAZES ALL KANSAS BY ENFORCING LAWS

BEHIND BREWERY MOVE

Nominated as "Unknown," but Even the Harvester Trust Knows Him Now.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 9.

A YEAR ago, when the campaign before the meeting of the Republican State Convention in Kansas was beginning and was gaining headway day by day, State Senator George E. Tucker from Eureka, Greenwood County, packed his valise and boarded the train for Topeka, the mecca of the politicians.

When the train arrived in Topeka, he boarded a street car and rode to the door of the Copeland Hotel—"Copeland County" as it is called in political parlance because of its being the stamping ground of the politicians.

Tucker marched into the Copeland, checked his valise, registered and threw himself into the surging, milling, button-holing crowd. The cigar smoke hung heavy in the lobby of the hotel. In the upper rooms conferences were being held between the big and the little bosses.

The preliminary skirmishes were being made for the battle that was to be waged against the Democrats on the political field in the campaign.

The first politician that Tucker could button-hole in "Copeland County" he drew out of the milling herd and getting him in a corner said:

Why Just Fred S. Jackson.

"I have a notion that we have a man in Greedwood County who would make a good Attorney-General."

"Who?" asked the politician.

"Who is he?" asked the politician.

That was the launching of the boom for Jackson for Attorney-General.

The politicians had made up their slate for the State ticket and the attorney-generalship was generally conceded to a Northern Kansas lawyer.

Tucker kept on buttonholing and "cutting out" leaders from the herd in the Copeland to tell them about Jackson. The name of Jackson went from tongue to tongue. The politicians' slate was cracked. Then it began to break, and before the convention it was smashed, and when the convention adjourned Fred S. Jackson had been named for Attorney-General.

Even when he was nominated there were not a hundred persons outside Greenwood County who knew Jackson.

All Know Jackson Now.

Ask anybody in Kansas now who is Fred Jackson, and they will tell you that he is the man who has put the big breweries to rout in Kansas; the man who has cut the claws of the Harvester Trust; the man who has started criminal proceedings against the Standard Oil; the man who is enforcing the Kansas Anti-Trust laws and the Kansas prohibitory law, as they were never before enforced.

Fred S. Jackson is the Jerome-Folk-Heney prosecutor of Kansas.

Jackson startled all Kansas two weeks ago by bringing an action in the Kansas Supreme Court to have receivers appointed for all of the property in the State owned by breweries, on the ground that as Kansas has a prohibitory law, breweries were violating that law by maintaining agencies in the State, and that because of the violation of the pohibitory law the breweries had never complied with the Kansas corporation laws, and therefore had no right to do business in the State nor to own or hold property.

The action came as a thunderbolt from a cloudless sky. The breweries, or many of them, tried to have their agents pick up bag and baggage and leave the State before the receivers could be named. One company moved out of Wichita on a freight train at midnight and crossed the State line into Oklahoma with the stock of liquors intact.

The Supreme Court named Judge S. H. Allen, Judge T. F. Garver and Geo. H. Whitcomb, all prominent lawyers of Topeka, as receivers for the breweries, and they are now in possession of the Imperial, Pabst, Heim, Val Blatz, Schlitz and Rochester brewing companies properties in Topeka, Atchison, Leavenworth, Wichita and other Kansas towns.

Ready for the Fight.

The brewery agents announce they will fight Fred S. Jackson's interpretation of the law to the highest court. But Jackson will fight, too.

During the campaign last summer Jackson stated in his speeches on the stump that he would enforce the trust laws and the prohibitory laws and all other laws in Kansas if he was elected. A score of other candidates in the past have made the same promise. Those elected either forgot their promises or could not find a way.

But Jackson has found a way. The harvester trust had threatened to abandon the State on the eve of the big wheat harvest and leave the farmers without means of securing new machinery nor the much-needed repairs. If the Attorney-General did not stop, Jackson laughed. He mentioned the $1,000,000 or more worth of notes the harvester trust has outstanding in the State. There is no danger of the trust leaving the biggest wheat field in the world, says Jackson.

The breweries have threatened all kinds of legal proceedings. Jackson in return hints that the property in the hands of the receivers will be sold and the money turned into the State Treasury.

Almost Converted Brewery Agent.

An agent of one of the big breweries came to Topeka and had a talk with Jackson. When it was over the agent was asked: "What do you think of Jackson?"

"Why," he replied, "I think Jackson is one of the nicest men I ever met. He is fair minded. I like him and I admire him, but —— —— him, he almost talked me out of what I went to talk him into."

Jackson's first move that attracted attention was made before he assumed the duties of the office to which he was elected and was still assistant Attorney-General. He prepared the charges against the mayors and cities of Wichita, Leavenworth, Junction City, Pittsburg and Kansas City, Kan., where open saloons were plentiful from which the cities derived direct revenue. Jackson brought ouster suits against the mayors and enjoined the cities from allowing saloons to operate. After he became Attorney-General, he prosecuted the cases to a successful outcome.

He brought a drouth upon the wide-open towns of Kansas. In the cities where saloons have openly existed ever since the prohibitory law was enacted, he has closed every joint and driven the liquor agents from them. He has forced the city administrations to enforce the prohibitory law.

Works Without Special Aid.

Jackson's success has been wonderful. He has had no special fund or force of detectives or evidence gatherers. He has had only his determination, ability and the law to support him—but they have been enough.

Perhaps abler lawyers, at least many with more experience, for Jackson is a young man, have held the office of Attorney-General, but they have not succeeded in raising the stir that Jackson has in the short time he has been in the office.

Missouri's Attorney-General, Herbert S. Hadley and Jackson are both Kansas products and were classmates in the Kansas University at Lawrence. Jackson was County Attorney of Greenwood County for two terms.

He is modest. He doesn't claim any special credit for what he has done. In fact Jackson just keeps plugging away at the violators of the Kansas statute and appears not to comprehend that he is attracting attention.

Alton Negro School Case Delayed.

Judge Holder of the County Court at Alton ruled Wednesday that the seventh trial of the suit brought by Allen Bibb, a negro, to compel the admission of his two children to a school whose pupils are all white children, must not begin until the Supreme Court decides a motion made by City Counselor McGlasin of Alton that he be allowed to file an amended answer that the Board of Education should be the party sued.

OFFERED GEMS AND CASH FOR NOTE; ARRESTED

Mrs. Joseph Rauer, 3441 Magnolia Avenue, Accused of Snatching Them Back.

WOMAN RUNS TO ALLEY

Son Followed Her to Station and Is Arrested for Carrying Concealed Weapon.

Mrs. Joseph Rauer of 3441 Magnolia avenue, was taken to the Magnolia Avenue Police Station at noon Thursday by a policeman on complaint of an insurance agent, who claimed she had practiced deception to get a note for $660 from him.

Joseph Rauer Jr. followed his mother to the station, and as he was leaving after a dispute with the insurance agent, he was arrested for carrying a revolver.

Mrs. Rauer held a telephone conversation with somebody at the office of the insurance company, the agent represented, and her statements caused them to instruct the police that there would be no prosecution, and she was permitted to go home.

W. O. Roper, agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Co., made the complaint against Mrs. Rauer. He said he had gone to the Rauer home to collect $660 due on a note for $360 which had been given the company.

Agent Tells His Story.

According to Roper, Mrs. Rauer told him she did not have the money, and suggested that pending a final settlement he take $100 in cash and some of her diamonds as security for the remainder. Roper says the arrangement was satisfactory to him and she brought the money and diamonds and placed them on a table.

"I handed over the note," Roper asserted, "and as I did so Mrs. Rauer seized the note, money and diamonds. Then she picked up a gas-pipe and ran me out of the house."

When a policeman and Roper reached the house Mrs. Rauer ran out the back way to the alley. After running a block she was caught.

Mrs. Rauer's son is 28 years old. He reached the police station at the time his mother did and demanded that the company be consulted before further action was taken. Mrs. Rauer gave the company a reference and the order for her release followed.

Roper claims that young Rauer made a threat and told the police he had a revolver. When Rauer left the station he was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon. Later a warrant was issued from the Prosecuting Attorney's office at the Four Courts.

A SELF LUMINOUS IDEA.

In the case of the "materializing medium" who was seized in her own properly materialized person while impersonating a spirit, the Circuit Attorney's office is reported to make a legal distinction so nice that it can hardly be classed except as spiritual in the etherial delicacy of its immateriality.

It is nothing more nor less than that a person who pays a dollar or other sum in evidence of his good faith in expecting to be defrauded, cannot prosecute in the public interest the fraud that did not actually deceive him, because he was not foolish enough to believe in it.

In the case of materialized spirits, this reason may not be specially material. But its immateriality applies, or has been applied in the past, from that same source to prosecutions of bucket-shop operators, Ice-Trust managers, racetrack combinations of get-rich-quick financiers and to other "material interests" with a cinch, a pull or something else which appeals to the holders of an office who seem to have concluded that they were put into it to let as many lawbreakers alone as the law allows, when construed for that purpose.

The acute reasoning this sort of thing calls for at a crisis is likely to appear all along the line, as in this present case. It does not need to have phophorous rubbed over it to make it luminous.

The railroads of the West now have so much business that they are indifferent to the size of the wheat crop. They will soon recover from their 2-cent troubles.

PROGRESS AND THE MILKMAN

Progress along the usual lines is denied the milkman, judging by the announcement that at least some St. Louis milk tastes of gasoline. His business contemporaries may retire the horse and deliver hardware and underwear with motor trucks, but the milkman must cleave to his milk-white steeds, lest his lacteal merchandise absorb the breath of the carburettor.

Pity 'tis, for if there is one business that more than another needs to keep pace with invention, it is the milk business. The dairy is exiled across the city limits, and the dissolvent for the breakfast food must rest upon the back porch ere Aurora's great chariot thunders across the Ends Bridge. Which entails a strict observance of the first line in the old couplet,

Early to bed, early to rise
Makes a good milkman.

Our whole sympathy is with the milkman who tried to be progressive and deliver his milk with an automobile. It is a shame that the milk should taste of gasoline. Indeed, it is simple milkman's luck that milk is, of all liquids, the most susceptible to foreign matter and that gasoline is of all motive powers the most insidious and ill-smelling.

"EUTHANASIA" AGAIN.

As one of the "world's greatest authorities on tuberculosis," Dr. A. S. Knopff of New York appears in the report of the National Tuberculosis Congress at Washington as a subject for immediate investigation by the grand jury.

In the report as telegraphed to the Post-Dispatch, he advises other physicians to kill consumptives "quickly and painlessly by heavy doses of morphine" when their "diagnosis" of the case shows that death is inevitable.

A diagnosis is a physician's opinion. The man who backs his opinions by homicide, committed deliberately in the name of philanthropy, is as much amenable to the laws against murder as if he were controlled by the forms of criminal egotism the law defines as malice or the heat of passion.

When a physician makes openly such a recommendation, he may be presumed to be guilty of what he recommends. His only possible defense, if brought to trial under the forms of law as it now exists, would be insanity. It is charity, perhaps, to conclude in advance that in such a case, the yanity of unchecked egotism has already ended in insanity. But justice demands the test by enforcement of the law against murder.

Those most directly interested in its enforcement are physicians themselves. What national man would dare to call a physician into his family if this is "ethics"?

Against the murder mania involved, the sane, the rational, the beneficent physicians of the country deserve the protection which only law can give them as it protects life from crime.

The criticism of Shakspeare in Pepys' Diary recalls the fact that a few years ago the bard of Avon was pronounced "no good" by Prof. John L. Sullivan.

PIERCE AND PETTIBONE

The State of Texas did not proceed in the right way to get H. Clay Pierce. Instead of having him formally arrested by the authorities of Missouri, the Texas authorities should have kidnaped him or deported him before he had the opportunity to appeal to the courts. Having the consent of Gov. Folk to take him back to Texas, his deportation could have been accomplished with or without the connivance of the Missouri authorities. The Texas authorities could then have tried Mr. Pierce without interference of the Federal courts.

Proceedings of this kind were approved by the United States Supreme Court in the case of George A. Pettibone, one of the men accused with Moyer and Haywood of the murder of ex-Gov. Steunenberg of Idaho, and handed over to the State of Idaho by the State of Colorado as a fugitive from justice, although not residents of the State of Idaho when the crime was committed and when the indictment was found against them. They had not fled from the State. In the opinion of the court delivered by Justice Harlan, it was clearly stated that the court would not go back of the face of the returns. It refused to take up the question of whether or not Pettibone was a fugitive from justice or had been given an opportunity for a hearing before the Governor or before a judicial tribunal; it refused to consider the methods by which his personal presence in the State where the indictment was found was secured, even though they may have been in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

"It is not necessary," said Justice Harlan in that case, "to go behind the indictment and inquire as to how it happened that he came within reach of the process of the Idaho court in which the indictment is pending. And any investigation as to the motives which induced the action taken by the Governors of Idaho and Colorado would, as already suggested, be improper as well as irrelevant to the real question to be now determined."

The court thrust aside all questions as to the propriety of the indictment or the regularity of the proceedings by which the prisoner was taken to Idaho.

Attorney John B. Johnson, for Mr. Pierce, says that under the habeas corpus proceedings the false swearing charge against Mr. Pierce in Texas will be tried practically in the Federal Court here. The petition enters into the merits of the case, asserting that the indictment is not well founded and is not properly drawn. Incidentally, Justice Harlan's decision throws light on this question. Speaking of Pettibone, he said:

"His guilt or innocence of that charge (murder) is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Idaho State Court. The constitutional and statutory provisions referred to were based upon the theory that as between the states, the proper place for the inquiry into the question of the guilt or innocence of the alleged fugitive from justice is in the courts of the State where the offense is charged to have been committed."

The court refused to consider any facts or arguments concerning the guilt or innocence of the accused. In view of the Pettibone-Moyer-Haywood decisions, it will be interesting to note the action of the United States District Court in this city in the Pierce case, where the attorneys propose to go into the merits of the indictment brought against Mr. Pierce. The case differs from the Idaho case in the fact that Mr. Pierce had the opportunity to appeal to the United States Court before he was deported. He was not actually in the custody of the State in which he was indicted and is to be tried; but the principles involved in the question of extradition seem to be the same in both cases.

It isn't the Japanese that is just now bothering Frisco.

FLUSHING BOODLERS.

The new sport of flushing boodlers is evidently becoming a favorite one with ambitious prosecuting attorneys. That legislators in no State are safe from this new form of sport, if they are crooked, is well shown in the story of the Arkansas graft hunt in the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine.

After the Folk exposures in Missouri, it was certainly foolish for the Arkansas legislators to be thrown off their guard. But their downfall was accomplished in a peculiarly subtle manner, the headquarters of the attacking forces in behalf of antiboodle being here in St. Louis and at Jefferson City. In other words, Missouri boodle hunters went out of their way to aid in the battue of the Arkansas corruptionists. Up to date the hunt has been quite successful. But, like that in Missouri, the victims are not the giant corporations and interests that have done the actual work of corruption, but the men who have succumbed to the temptation.

The stories of Missouri, Arkansas, San Francisco and other communities in which boodle exposures have been made seem to show that the only thing needed to uncover similar conditions in any Legislature is a prosecuting attorney of the right kind. And it will always be so while human nature is what it is and while the big bribers are permitted to escape punishment. If a state prosecuting attorney wishes to make himself really famous, let him undertake this task. Put the millionaire corruptionists behind the bars, and the country's redemption will be close at hand.

TO IDENTIFY THE DEAD.

From the Technical World Magazine.

An army general order has recently been issued, stating that in the future all officers and enlisted men will wear, whenever in field uniform, an identification tag, which will be issued by the Quartermaster's Department, at cost price to officers, and without charge to men. This tag is of aluminum, about the size of a half dollar, and will be worn suspended from the neck, beneath the clothing. On the tag will appear the name, rank, company, regiment or corps of the wearer, and it is ordered that when not worn as directed, it shall be regarded as part of the uniform, and be habitually kept in the possession of the owner.

A storm which, had it found us,
Had swept our reason all away,
But haply went around us?

Should you, perhaps, to meet a storm
With a brain that's dark and cloudy,
Just brace up under the mental strain
And greet it with a "Howdy!"

The reason why there was a storm
We allowed a "friend" to blow us.

HISTORICAL FORECASTS.

WASHINGTON, 1910.—Senator Roosevelt called at the White House today to see President Taft. He had to wait in the anteroom 10 minutes, and was furious.

PANAMA, 1915.—The canal work is going on slowly, but the tourist business is booming. The hotels are constantly filled, and the crowds along the canal are such that the few employes can scarcely work.

PITTSBURG, 1908.—Lyndhurst, the beautiful place which was formerly the home of the Thaws, was reopened today with a full staff of servants. It is now the home of Mr. Suremike, chief of counsel for Thaw in the last two trials.

WASHINGTON, 1910.—The Senate bill abolishing the United States Weather Bureau passed the House today, without amendment. The last thing the home office of the bureau did was to go against a hard rainstorm with a forecast of "Fair."

NEW YORK, 1909.—The entire remaining population of the Island of Sicily arrived at Ellis Island this morning on the steamship El Dorado. They report the strange case of one of their number who insisted on staying behind, but was finally run down and delivered on board by the immigration agents.

PARIS, 1907.—The annex to the American bar in the Place de l'Opera was opened today with addresses by the President of the Republic and the American Ambassador. The parade, which was the longest in the history of Paris, was entirely made up of American tourists and resident Americans. They gathered in the Champ de Mars to the number of about 90,000, and marched to the Bar. They made a very fine, thirsty appearance, and were given a continuous ovation along the way by the landlords, wholesale liquor importers, guides and cab drivers of Paris.

——TEN WAYS——
To Make a Woman Care for a Man.

Written for the Post-Dispatch
BY MARGARET ROHE.

NO. 5—MAKE HER AWARE OF YOUR IMPORTANCE.

KEEP her always cognizant of your importance and independence. Show her that no one can get the best of you. The way to do this is to find fault with everything.

At a restaurant, when the garcon brings your order, glance at it disgustedly and send for the head waiter. Demand of him peremptorily, in a loud tone of voice: "What do you mean, sir, by setting such ill-cooked viands before a regular patron of your establishment? Take it away at once and bring me some spaghetti. We hope at least you will know how to cook that."

She will be greatly impressed at your spirited refusal to be imposed upon, and the attention you attract from the other diners will cause her to blush with pleasure and pride at being in your company. Besides, spaghetti is very filling and costs less. During the meal find fault with the service, and when the waiter brings your check quarrel with him loudly over its exorbitance and refuse to give him a tip. This will always make a hit with any woman.

If you take her to the theater, be sure to get seats in the balcony, explaining to her tenderly that the acoustics are better because sound always rises. When the play begins, assume a bored expression, make sarcastic and disparaging remarks about the actors and give her the detailed synopsis of other plays you have seen that have this one skinned to death. Of course, she will find your conversation much more entertaining than the plot.

After the theater, if it is raining, walk her home, explaining that you cannot personally encourage the highway robbery of the cabmen as a matter of principle. She will heartily indorse your spirit of independence.

BALLADE OF WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

By Clark McAdams.

(A phonographic record of Emperor William's voice has been received at Washington. The Emperor desires that it be placed in the Smithsonian Institute after his death.—News.)

ALAS, that Alexander had not handed down to us
A record of his royal voice that might resound for us
And thrill us as it thrilled the Greeks upon Arbela's plain!
And that there were restored to us great Caeser's voice again
Exhorting Rome to win the day on bloody Autun's field
And send the bold Helvetian home hic jacet on his shield!

Alack, that gifted Cicero had not in some machine
Essayed with Mr. Cataline to sweep the chamber clean—
To rouse us as the Senate rose and clamor for his head!
And that Demosthenes might speak to us as from the dead
To that end that we might compare his eloquence to that
Of William Jennings Bryan, living somewhere near the Platte!

Ah me, that Antony had sung, "Sweet friends, lend me your ears,"
To some brass funnel, that we might, in these far-distant years,
And that Napoleon's desert speech to homesick France addrest,
That once swept every Frenchman's heart, might also sweep our own—

Trimming Trees.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Having been asked as to what time of the year was best to trim shade trees, speaking from years of experience, the writer has found that trimming, properly done, is permissable at any time of the year, except in severe freezing weather. The best time, however, is during the growing season, when the tree will, if properly handled, recover more promptly after the operation and wounds made will heal over much faster and more satisfactorily than those made at any other time. The main thing to be guarded against is not the time of year, but the tree butchers who hack and saw regardless of results. Many men who go around trimming trees and advancing arguments regarding the culture of trees, know little if any thing about it and simply take advantage of the ignorance of the owners of the trees. The trimming of trees is as much a of a trade as is surgery and should be so regarded, and a tree trimmed in August by a skilled tree surgeon will thrive and grow as well as one trimmed in February. Natural Laws of Commerce.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. A. B. Stickney in the April 14 issue of your paper says that "some people think the reward of industry could be more equitably divided by brotherly love or by legislation than by the natural law of distribution," but his belief is that "in economic affairs the only way to get a fair share is to be prepared always to fight and when necessary to fight for it." He cites two instances in the world's history where legislation miscarried. In neither case was the natural law of distribution followed nor industry but knavery rewarded.

We of Oklahoma have recently had a striking example of the so-called natural law of distribution and reward of industry. We have had millions of bushels of corn, and thousands of bales of cotton piled along our railroads rotting, waiting for transportation to market and thousands of people going bankrupt or mortgaging their homes waiting in impotent rage, with sidings filled with empty cars and the comforting assurance of the railroad's inability to handle traffic on account of the car shortage. Just across an imaginary line in Texas the produce was invariably moved in three days or the railroad paid heavy fines, for they have a reciprocal demurrage law which is enforced, and loaded cars there move and do not stand on sidings thirty to sixty days within thirty miles of destination as was proven here before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Wheat from Enid to the gulf is 30½c per hundred, from Kansas City five hundred miles farther, through Enid to the gulf is 11½c. Carload lots of potatoes from Shawnee, O. T., to Hobart, O. T., 150 miles, are 62½c per hundred, the same from Shawnee to New York, 1500 miles, 62½c per hundred. The roads are capitalized on an average of $50,000 a mile and pay taxes on an average of $3500 a mile, and yet by a Federal Judge's decision, we are forced to pay dividends on the full $50,000 after having in many instances made them presents of the larger share of the property, according to their own sworn statements. Weeks ago after uncounted losses and bankruptcies, the shippers appealed to the Commission for relief. The evidence was overwhelming as to discrimination and worse, but the Commissioners have not yet decided what to do and the hundreds of thousands whose year's work and sustenance are wasting before their eyes appeal in vain for cars. Our object lessons on natural distribution and industrial reward are manifold and we will yet rise to the plane of the ancient British peasants and the present day Roumanian one if we are forced to.

Praise for Anderson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As an American mother, I feel that I must express my gratitude through your columns that at last there is a man outside of New York bold and brave and pure enough to protest against the vulgar and indecent display of the human form which God intended should be kept hidden. It is high time that the eyes of our children be protected from the sight of vulgar nude figures. Many ladies call Mr. Anderson "ridiculous" and "absurd." Do they know that Socrates was sentenced to death for corrupting the Athenian youth?

Let those among them who have daughters pause and consider whether they wish them educated into the mysteries of nature or forced to forego the pleasure of seeing a pure and moral museum.

POCAHONTAS:

Unique Place in History and Romance Filled by the Little Princess of the Algonquins.

William Ordway Partridge in the May Circle.

SOME historians have said that the little Indian Princess Pocahontas did more to influence the fate of the western continent than any other woman in the world except Queen Isabella. The life of this Indian girl makes a strange appeal to the imagination. Her unselfish devotion, superhuman courage, womanly compassion, youth, sincerity, love, and self-control go to make a character which is romantic beyond any ideal creation of the poet or romancer, and illustrates the truth of the old saying that fact is stranger than fiction.

The savages after a trial and powwow had dragged Smith to two great stones which had been placed before Powhatan, being ready with their clubs to beat out his brains, as the old accounts have it; but Pocahontas, "When no entreaty could prevail, got his head in her arms and laid her own upon his to save him from his death." At the date of this heroic rescue, Pocahontas was not more than 12 years of age, and to all appearance a little Algonquin savage. But this one act showed the courage and determination which ran through her whole short and pathetic life. She repeatedly stood between her father's savage nature and saved the white men at the risk of her own life.

Pocahontas was born in the year 1595; her father, Powhatan, was the lord and ruler of 30 tribes, or clans, of savages inhabiting that vast domain which was then called Virginia, after the virgin Queen Elizabeth. His friendship was dearly sought for by the white men and considered essential to the life and success of the colony. Like most red men, he distrusted the whites and their designs.

In England she was treated with all the honor shown to royalty. Her grace and charm seem to have won all hearts, and she was at her ease with the best in the land. She was presented to Queen Anne's court, attended a ball given by the Bishop of London and visited the Globe Theater to see Shakespeare's "Tempest." In fact, she took on the garb and accessories of civilization with that easy grace which belong to the truly great, and was as much at home in court as in her own Western solitudes. But inwardly she seems to have pined for her own free, open life of the forest, and when she was about to return on the good ship George, she sickened and died at Gravesend, having lived long enough, as one commentator has said, to unite two hemispheres, two races, two civilizations.

THE earth was once "a fluid blaze of light." The whole solar system, in which it is one of the smallest planets, was originally a vast nebula, or swarm of fiery dust and gas molecules, roughly spherical, and more than 5000 million miles in diameter. This nebula was all rotating about its center; it was also cooling, by the radiation of heat into space, and contracting. As it contracted it shed a series of rings at varying distances from the center, each of which, with one exception, gradually coalesced into a planet revolving round the central portion, which formed the comparatively small star which we call the sun.

The four outer rings gave birth to the major planets—Neptune, Uranus, Saturn and Jupiter—which are still in a more or less nebulous condition. The next ring never coalesced, but broke up into a large number of asteroids or minor planets, of which more than 500 have been discovered already. There were still four other rings left behind as the nebula slowly contracted, which formed the four inner and smaller planets—Mars, the Earth, Venus and Mercury.

Our First Glimpse of Earth.

THUS our first distinct glimpse of the earth shows it as a nebulous star, still intensely hot, and with no solid nucleus, rotating on its own axis, and at the same time revolving round the sun in a nearly circular orbit. The earth at present revolves on its axis in 24 hours. But it is steadily losing time. The tides caused by the sun and moon form a friction brake precisely analogous to that which is used on the wheels of railway carriages or motor cars. The retardation thus caused amounts only to a lengthening of the day by one second in about a thousand centuries.

Calculating this secular retardation backwards, Prof. Darwin showed that there must have been a time when the day was only two or three hours in length. The effect of tidal friction also operates on the moon, which is constantly traveling away from the earth, and at the same time revolving more slowly. Working this problem also backwards, Prof. Darwin was able to show that there must have been a time when the earth was rotating in a period of between two and three hours, and the moon was revolving around it at the same period at a distance almost inappreciable.

The Origin of the Moon.

It cannot be a mere coincidence that the calculation of the moon's motion, when it was all but in contact with the earth, shows that it must have made a complete revolution in something between two and two and a half hours. The conclusion is irresistible. Originally the moon formed an integral portion of the earth. But as the speed of the earth's rotation increased under the gravitational pull of the sun it crept up to the critical velocity at which the earth could no longer hold together. There was a vast cataclysm, beyond anything which we can imagine, and the moon was flung off from the spinning earth—possibly in the form at first of a meteoric ring, which eventually condensed into our satellite. As soon as the moon had an independent existence it set up vast tides in its parent earth, which acted as a powerful brake.

The earth's rotation began to slow down again and the moon began to travel outwards in a wdening spiral. This beautiful theory of the moon's evolution is now generally accepted. Thus we can read the history of the first, and still the greatest, geological cataclysm of which there remains any record.

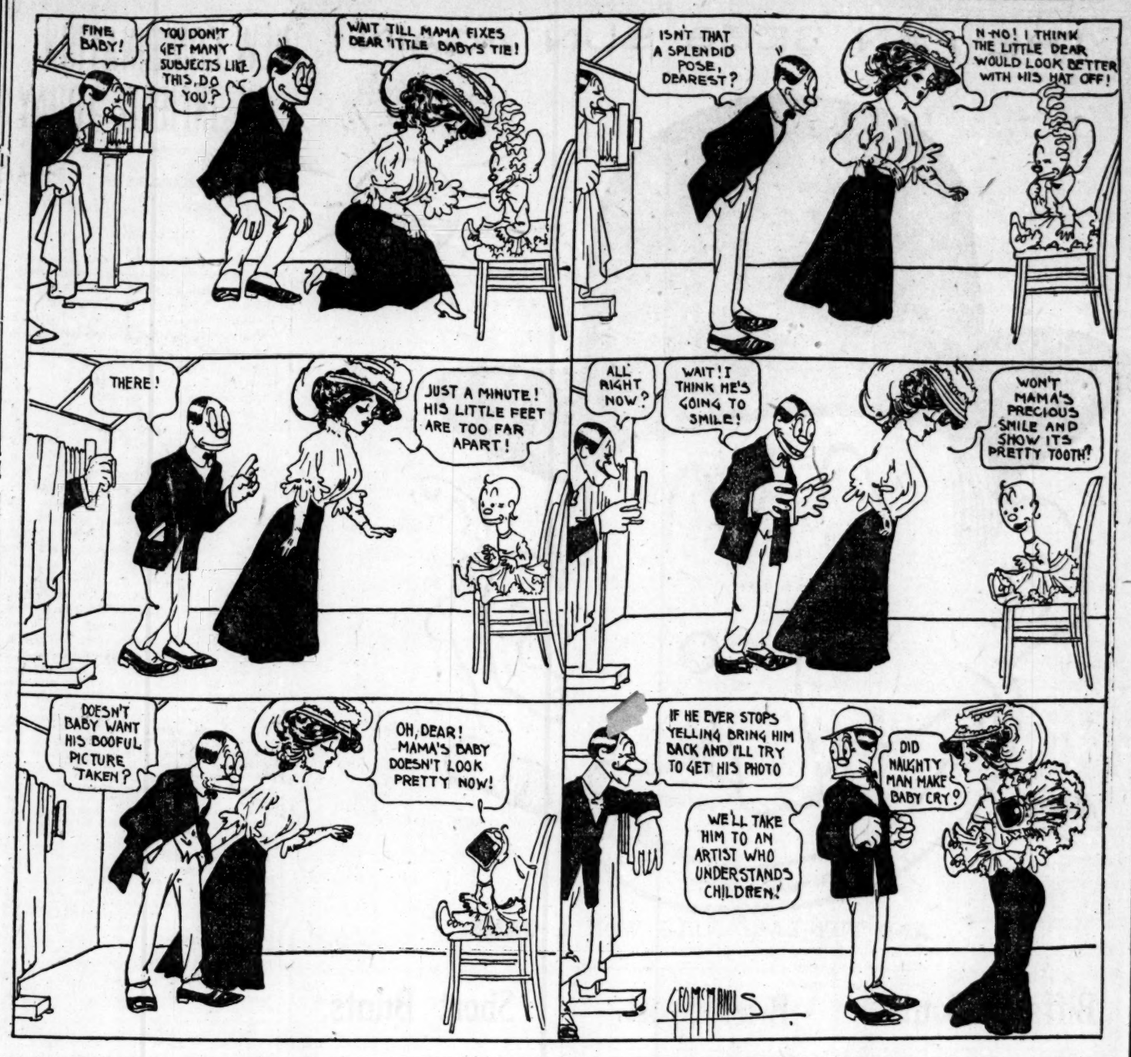

The Earth and Its Envelopes.

The earth as we know it is an oblate spheroid, a globe, that is, which is slightly flattened at its poles, which are the ends of the axis about which it revolves. Its equatorial diameter is about 7926.59 miles, and its polar diameter about 7901.47 miles. Calculation shows that the present shape of the earth is that which would have been assumed by a liquid globe rotating at its present speed, whence we conclude that the earth solidified at a time when its rotational period was practically the same as it is today.

The earth consists of shells, like an onion. It is a globe covered by a solid crust—the lithosphere—which is surrounded by an envelope of air—the atmosphere—and in part by an envelope of water—the hydrosphere.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

From the Chicago Tribune.

DON'T engage a servant without having a clear understanding as to what he or she is expected to do.

Don't give an order and then forget it and contradict yourself.

Don't promise a holiday or any pleasure and then rescind.

Don't go into your servant's rooms unless you have some reason to think they are not clean. They have a right to some privacy.

Don't blame servants for every fault or mistake and then leave good service unthanked.

Don't expect in your servants a perfection improbable in any human being.

Don't expect servants to perform duties without proper utensils. Have dust sheets, cloths, brooms, brushes, pails, cleaners, dusters, etc., and require each servant to look after his or her own articles.

Don't neglect to have an inventory of china, glass, silver and bric-a-brac of each servant coming and going. Without this it is difficult to keep track of various articles.

Cheese Fondu.

ONE teaspoonful of butter, one cupful of fresh milk, saltspoonful mustard, one cupful bread crumbs (fine), two cupfuls grated cheese, two eggs. Put butter in chafing dish; when melted add milk, bread crumbs, cheese and mustard; season with little cayenne; stir continually, and just before serving add eggs, well beaten. Serve on toast.

Tomato Soup.

ONE quart of tomatoes, one quart of milk, one pint of water; boil water and tomatoes together 20 minutes, then add milk and one-half teaspoonful soda; let it boil up after adding milk and soda. Season with butter, pepper and salt; pour through a colander into a tureen. Serve while hot.

Cherry Cake.

POUR hot water over a pound of candied cherries, let stand a moment, drain, dry in a cloth and set in the oven opening to become dry. Take half a pound of crustless bread slices in as much milk as they will absorb. Add four beaten eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, four or warm butter, a quarter of a pound of boiled and grated chestnuts, a dusting of cinnamon. When these ingredients are mixed well add the cherries. Pour into a buttered shallow pan, brush the top generously with butter, strew much sugar and cinnamon, and bake slowly in moderate oven. This is delicious served with chocolate.

SPRING POEMS.

Sun and Rain.

Shine out, Mister Sun,
Be de hottes' stuff!
But don't you burn de worl' up—
We'll all blaze soon enough!

Come down, Mister Rain,
Drench de leaf en limb,
But don't you drown de worl' out,
Kaze all de saints can't swim!

Mutability.

From the Washington Herald.

There was a time when May was fair,
The fairest month we had,
Then pretty flowers were everywhere
To make us mortals glad.
It was a month that all did praise
And poets used to say—
(With real sorrow in the phrase)—
"It is not always May."

But now May brings us sleet and snow
And rain and hail and slush.
We have but little cause, you know,
O'er modern May to gush,
In fact, as we its clouds of ink
Inspect from day to day
We're very much relieved to think
It is not always May.

CZAR WAS DECEIVED.

From Leslie's Weekly.

One of the most interesting of the passages in the much-talked-of memoirs of Prince Hohenlohe is that in which he details the Czar's conversation with him regarding Japan's preparations for war with Russia. Nicholas apparently viewed them without apprehension, being assured, as he said, that with the remnants of the Chinese indemnity once exhausted, the Japanese would have no resources to enable them to complete their preparations in time to be of service in the coming conflict, while, with the trans-Siberian railway finished, Russia would be in a position "to face any eventualities."

As we view this cocksureness after the event, it is almost comical—it would be quite so but for the terrible events of the war—to see how completely the Czar's prophecy was falsified. Japan has reaped the fruits of victory in territory, prestige and material advancement, while her supposedly invincible antagonist is not only beaten in the field, but the prey of internal dissension, and herself on the verge of the bankruptcy predicted for her rival.

BETTY VINCENT'S ADVICE to LOVERS

THE MAN MONOPOLIZER.

VERY often girls write me saying that the young men they are in love with want them to give up the society of other young men entirely. This is a very selfish demand and any girl who accedes to it is making a big mistake. Unless you are engaged, have all the men frends you can. Any man who seeks to take up a girl's entire time without having matrimonial intentions is cruelly selfish. Moreover, he shows that he has a very poor opinion of himself by asking her not to accept the attentions of other men. He should not fear competition and refuse it, but should welcome and overcome it. Young man, let her choose you because she prefers you to other men, not because she isn't permitted to see them. And, young lady, let him see that you have a choice and that you are honoring him greatly by choosing him.

Does She Love Him?

Dear Betty:

FOR four weeks I have been keeping company with a young lady friend who is four months my junior. I have taken her to the theater every week and treated her as much and nicely as any young man could, but she does not show much feeling toward me for it. She says "Thank you," but does not show that she loves me. Kindly advise what else I could do or say, as I love the girl and wish her to love me.

EVERY EVENING.

No girl will love you just because you pay her attention. But the fact that she accepts so much from you shows that she must enjoy your society and is encouraging. Tell her you love her and ask her to be your wife, if you wish to decide things.

Etiquette of Bowing.

WOULD it be proper for me to lift my hat to a young lady with whom I do not speak if (1) I should meet her when I am walking by myself? (2) If I should meet her while I was walking with a friend that does not talk to her? (3) If I should meet her while she was walking with a friend with whom I do talk?

ANGRY.

(1) No. (2) When walking with a friend, yes. (3) Yes.

THE DEEPER NOTE

By Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate of England, in the Independent.

Birds of victorious Spring,
You know nor grief nor pain;
Sing, sing, sing!
Reiterate the strain;
To you life doth not bring
Or loss or gain.

Your unforeboding song,
With each returning year,
Is just as sweet and strong,
As silvery and clear,
As when the Attic throng
Stood, husht, to hear.

Yet something do you miss
Of what to us is lent,
The spiritual bliss,
The whispered message sent
From other world to this,
For our admonishment.

The mystery half-divined
Of "Where," when we depart,
Leaving our loved behind
Alone to bear the smart;
High melodies of mind,
Deep music of the heart.

So would I not exchange
For your my graver lot,
The wider reach and range
Of feelings you have not,
Affections fresh and strange,
And friendships unforgot.

Swinford Old Manor, Kent, England.

A LONG TIME BETWEEN DRINKS.

From the New York World.

The old order had radically changed when the Governor of North Carolina, meeting the Governor of South Carolina at the Jamestown Exposition, must needs refrain from the historic salutation because of temperance scruples on the part of each.

The Southern States are now the stronghold of prohibition sentiment. In 150 of the 250 counties of Texas the sale of liquor is forbidden and 50 others are largely free from licensed saloons. Georgia and Mississippi are overwhelmingly prohibition. The great whisky-making State of Kentucky has 47 prohibition counties. Tennessee and Virginia are "dry" except in a few cities.

The boast of Chairman Jones of the Prohibition National Committee that "the whole Southland appears to be on the warpath to drive out the last vestige of the liquor business" is not extravagant, nor is his prediction oversanguine that licensed drinking will become practically extinct in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas within a decade.

This revolution has been effected through local option, which obtains in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Arkansas, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Mississippi and North Carolina. Only in Florida, where the license fee is $1,000; in Mississippi, where it runs from $600 to $1,200, and in Atlanta, where it is $1,000, has this phase of the question cut any considerable figure. Nor is there any material gain in the voting strength of the National Prohibition party.

The change from the old conditions is the verdict of the Southern conscience on the rum question presented as a local issue and as a menace to the home.

In Kentucky.

From Lippincott's.

Sure Enough.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Joakley: That's nothing.

Coakley: Eh? What's nothing?

Joakley: Zero.

STRANGE STORIES.

From the Chicago News.

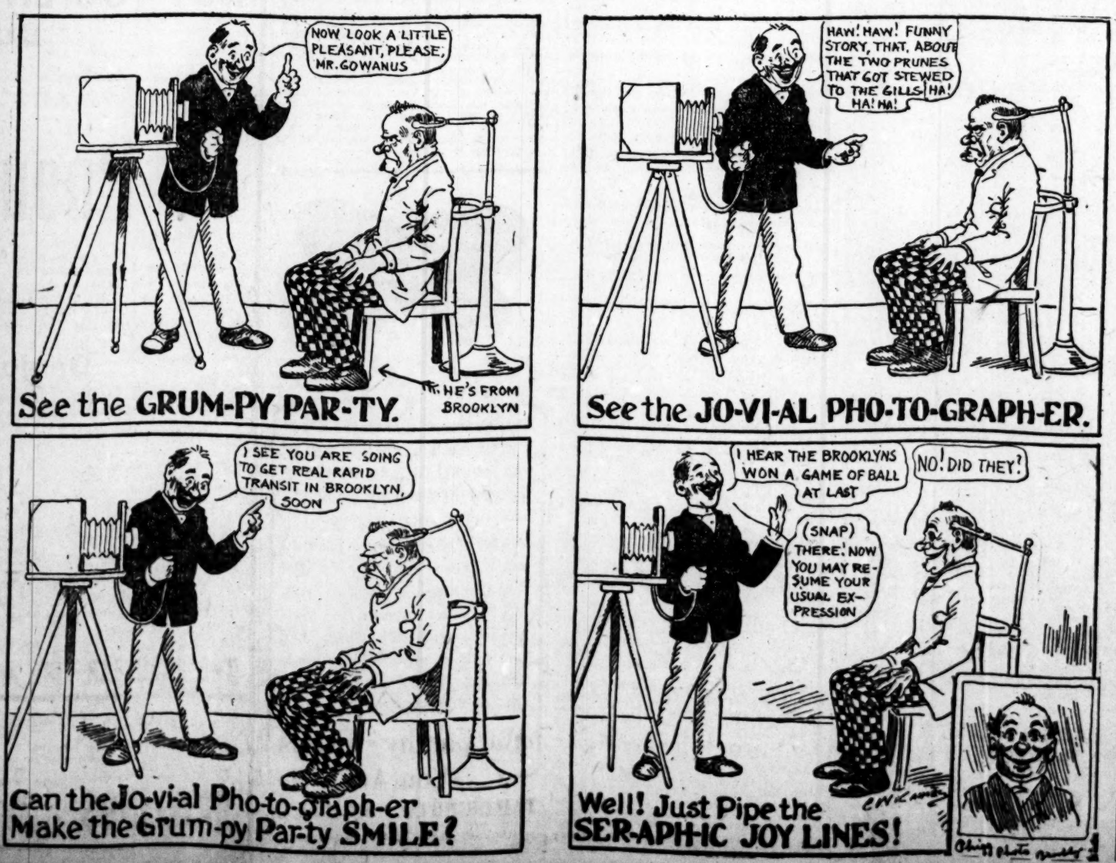

It was falsely reported a few weeks ago that an eminent Italian astronomer had made an awful prophecy as to the havoc about to be wrought upon this planet by a comet. The incident had a memorable precedent in the case of Joseph Jerome Lefrancais de Lalande, the popular French astronomer of a century ago. Lalande differed from Newton's view that Providence had so arranged matters as to make collision of the earth with a comet impossible and wrote a paper to prove that it was only very improbable. This paper, which was to have been read with others before the French Academy on a certain day in 1773, got crowded out; but the Parisian public, hearing of it, made up its mind that Lalande had predicted the impending destruction of the earth and such panic ensued that the police had to order the publication of the paper to reassure the public mind. But even then it was popularly believed that the paper had been deliberately toned down and comet panics continued for a quarter of a century.

Women are now regularly employed as cab drivers in Paris, but the honor of being the first "femme cochere" is said to belong to the Princess de Metternich, who flourished under the second empire. She was frequently to be seen driving her phaeton through Paris. One day two facetious youths took it into their heads to signal to her "Pst! Cochere!" The Princess entered into the spirit of the joke. She drew up. "By the hour," said the two, seating themselves. "Where?" "Bois de Boulonge." She whipped up without another word and drove off to the bois. After a silent tour of something over an hour the merry twain began to tire and asked to be put down. "Very good, citizens," said the "cochere," depositing them, and holding out her hand. "My fare is 300 francs ($60) per hour—for my poor."

Sir Douglas Straight told this tale at a recent dinner of the Journeymen Hairdressers' Trade Society in London: When a young barrister he went into a barber's shop to be shaved and was a little startled to see the woman cashier behind the counter staring at him from time to time through the glass door. When he got outside the shop the policeman said: "I am very glad to find you have come out." The officer explained that he had been anxious because the barber had just come out of a lunatic asylum the previous week and his relatives were wondering whether they would have to send him back again.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Race horses of high degree will go forth from their stables today at Belmont Park to struggle for fame and money. Fourteen of these aristocrats of the turf are named to go in the Metropolitan Handicap—the first of the big handicap classics of the season.

The Metropolitan serves to usher in the high-class racing of the year. Its value of nearly $18,000 is a prize that serves as a magnet of attraction to all the champion racehorses that have been in retirement since last fall. It also takes racegoers to Belmont Park, the most magnificent racecourse in the world.

The meeting at the Acqueduct and Jamaica racetracks, which preceded Belmont Park, are but preliminary affairs—the prologue to the main attraction. Me nand women who are never seen at the minor tracks will now put on their best bib and tucker and will jostle elbows with the regulars who attend the races daily, no matter where the contests take place. Men high and mighty in the financial world will take a day's rest from the cares and worries of Wall street and act as escorts to handsomely gowned women. The management anticipates a crowd of 30,000 persons today if the weather is bright and clear.

The race for the Metropolitan Handicap promises to be a much better contest than it was last year. To every habitue of the local tracks this is apparent, as the list of contending horses is distinctly high class and excels by many pounds the caliber of the cheap to-be-flung platers that made up the field in last year's event. The horses will take part in today's rich race vie with the thoroughbreds that carried their silken colors on the inaugural day at Belmont Park two years ago, when Sysonby and Race King ran their memorable dead heat.

In the list of entries sent out from Belmont Park last night the name of Harry Payne Whitney's Tanya did not appear. As it was known that Mr. Whitney and his trainer, John W. Rogers, had signified their intention to race Tanya, and that she had been shipped from Sheepshead Bay, her home stable, to Belmont Park for that purpose, she was added to the list this morning.

Roseben the Choice.

Roseben is the favorite. This great sprinter's recent fast work—a mile in 1:39 3-5—combined with his great race in the Carter Handicap, which he should have won, makes him the logical choice of the betting. His selection by Mr. Frank Wier, his trainer, over six other candidates for the race, tends to prove that he has an excellent chance to win.

The one great drawback to Roseben's success is his inability to go a mile. He holds the world's record at seven furlongs, but has never yet beaten a good horse at a mile or over, except once. That was when he defeated Ram's Horn, the Brighton Handicap winner. But even the credit of that victory was tarnished by the knowledge that Ram's Horn was sick the day following his defeat.

David Johnson, the owner of Roseben, is sanguine that his horse will win. He agrees with Wier that the great sprinter is faster and better today than he ever was in his life. Both men have told their friends that Roseben has more endurance and more speed than he had last fall at Belmont Park, when he established the world's record at seven furlongs.

That Johnson has sublime faith in his horse's ability to win was made manifest at the Jamaica track yesterday when he bet $3000 to win $9000. "Cad" Doggert, the clubhouse commission, laid one bet of $3000 to $2000 and William Dubois laid $3000 against $1000. Johnson was willing to bet more money at these odds, but Doggert and Dubois refused any more, saying that they thought Roseben had the best chance to win. When Johnson found that he could not secure more odds of 3 to 1 he each.

HEAVY TRACK PROBABLE.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Showery weather threatens in a measure to spoil the opening of racing at Belmont Park, where the rich Metropolitan Handicap is to be decided today. Rain fell early today and the overcast sky indicates that the weather man was right when he forecasted a showery day. However, a goodly sized crowd will journey to the track in any event, even though disappointment will be felt at the fact that the race will probably have to be run in the mud.

was willing to accept 11 to 5 for several thousand dollars, but the offer was not accepted.

The horse that most turfmen regard as Roseben's most dangerous opponent is Tanya. This mare was second only in quality to her stablemate Artful in 1905, among the horses of her sex. She won the Belmont stakes in brilliant style that year and was regarded as a filly of extreme speed and endurance. In that race she raced Wild Mint so leg weary that he was ready to drop from exhaustion and pulled up far in the rear of his field, reeling like a drunken man. In spite of the early fast pace, Tanya won easily.

Tanya Recovers Speed.

Tanya did not race last year. She had a very big knee. Under treatment the swelling subsided and a few days ago she ran second to Sewell in a fast six furlong dash. She carried 126 pounds in that race, eight pounds more than she will carry today. She undoubtedly would have won then if she had not been interfered with. Her best work for the race today was a mile in 1:45 over the Sheepshead Bay track. The move was accomplished very easily and she could have raced much faster. She has had a number of short spins and is in good physical condition.

Among the other horses that have worked and raced well are Tokalon, Dandelion, Glorifier, Dishabille and W. H. Carey.

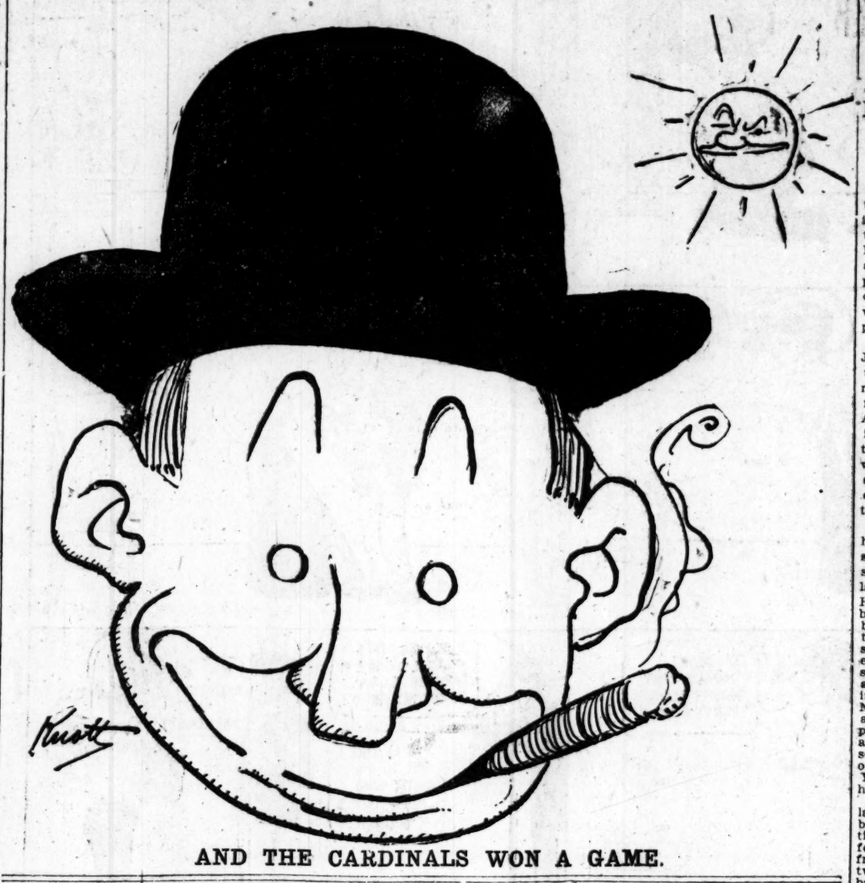

There are four fast 3-year-olds in this race—Superman, Sewell, J. C. Core and Bat Masterson—and if fast work is a true test of a horse's quality, they will certainly cut an important figure in the struggle. In other years youngsters of their age have won, notably Arsenal, Ethelbert and Voter.

These horses did not display as 2-year-olds form that would place them in a class superior to the quartet that will take part in today's event; consequently many of the men who make racing a business and earn a livelihood by picking winners take this as a foundation for their opinion, and say that one of the 3-year-olds will win.

Nealon, Blandy and Zienap are the outsiders in the betting, and are not considered favorably by the rank and file of race-goers.

George Rose, the well-known bookmaker of California, furnished the odds which are published in the Post-Dispatch. He is one of the leaders of the ring, and handles more money than any other layer. In his list of prices he makes Roseben favorite, at 2 to 1; Tanya second choice, at 5 to 1; Dandelion 6 to 1 and Superman and Sewell 10 to 1 each.

THE FAN SEES SUN AGAIN.

AND THE CARDINALS WON A GAME.

Biffs of Bouts.

JEFFRIES says he wants seven months in which to train if he meets Squires. The big fellow declares he has been on the water wagon for some time, but that it will take him months to get in shape for a derby route mix-up.

Another Piccadilly favorite is due to arrive in this country in the next few weeks to try his luck against Yankee mittmen. He is Jack Goldswain, who 13 months ago defeated Jabez White and won the lightweight championship of England.

It looks as if Harry Lewis of Philadelphia will have to win the world's welterweight championship before the public receives him as a worthy opponent for Joe Gans, world's champion of a class nine pounds lighter. Lewis' Match with Gans is virtually off, because no fight club would offer a purse of $20,000 or more for the match, as stipulated in the articles of agreement. The promoters would not offer the money because they did not think the public, believing Lewis would be another soft thing for the Oriole negro, would pay to see the bout.

Brief Sport.

THE Wisconsin crew is now going through twice-a-day practice. The work is at 6 o'clock in the morning and late in the afternoon.

C. E. Rowe of New Orleans, former owner of Colonial Girl, winner of the World's Fair handicap, has decided to race a stable of thoroughbreds this season and will ship to New York his good campaigner, First Mason; his Christmas handicap winner at New Orleans, Allowmaise, and a 2-year-old colt by Bijou St. John.

W. B. West, the Philadelphia sculler, will not compete for the diamond sculls at Henley this year. West had received his new shell from England but a couple of days when he fell downstairs and broke his leg. This will prevent him training this spring, and he has abandoned the proposed trip. West's new boat does not impress the Philadelphia experts, who claim that the lines, bracing and general workmanship are inferior to the American-made boats.

Reports from Japan state that Minoru Fujii, a student at the Tokio University, recently cleared the bar in pole vaulting at 3.9 meters, which is equivalent to 12 feet 9½ inches. This beats the world's record by more than five inches. Fujii is to come to the United States late in the summer and will take part in the American games in the fall. His advent will be awaited with tremendous interest by the American athletes.

The Columbia crew has been picked by Rice, the coach. Up to the end of last week the boating had not been definitely fixed, but since the shake-up, which left only one man in the place he had been accustomed to, the coach has picked the combination that will row against Harvard next Saturday. Rice is fairly well satisfied with the way that the men are catching his ideas of form. Every day last week he had them out tubbing in the pair oars in addition to sending them out in the eight-oared shell.

HOOSIER WANTS A MATCH WITH BAPTISTE

Frank Prindle, 1200 St. Peter street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes that he wishes to challenge George Baptiste for a wrestling match here. He says he is willing to wager from $100 to $250 on the result.

Short Bunts.

HUFF was welcomed back to Illinois with shouts of joy from the rah-rahs. He told the students he had no trouble in Boston, but did not like a professional manager's career.

Washington is trying to trade Stahl for Boston's only southpaw, Jesse Tannehill. Boston won the pennant in 1903 without the aid of a left-handed pitcher.

The "sun-kissed" hair contingent of the Tigers is strong. Besides Jennings there are three auburn-locked players.

Jake Beckley says he has caught 23,491 baseballs in his career at first. He says he's never figured the muffs.

Despite the fact that not a month has passed in the big League race, the Cincinnati Club has begun strengthening up its fences for next year, and President Herrmann announces that every one of his scouts had been sent out. This means that another bunch of new material will be put under the critical eye of Manager Hanlon when next spring rolls arounds, or, possibly, in the fall.

Somebody got busy the other day with a bug on statistics in his head and figured that if a pitcher works in 40 games in a season he has thrown the ball about seventy miles.

It is not President Hedges' intention to go into the circus business as some would imagine because he proposes placing a large three-poled circus tent over his grounds each night. While the other clubs have been playing circus with the Browns, this is now at an end. Watch the new infield work today.

Old Hannibal Jacob Beckley was the hero of the Cardinal-Quaker game at Philly yesterday. He saved the club from sustaining its thirteenth defeat in the ninth inning. With three on, Beckley knocked down a home run from the bat of Titus.

Stony McGlynn got off to a good start and cantered finely up to the ninth. Then he blew up. About a dozen bingles and four runs were hammered out and then old Beckley saved the day.

Byrne, O'Hara, Noonan and Holly each landed two hits each off the Quaker boxmen. Manager Murray used up 14 players during the afternoon's fireworks.

Pfeffer, the star hillman of the Boston National League Club, worked against Cincinnati yesterday and shut them out without a hit or run. The big fellow looms up as quite a star so far this season.

Matty Mathewson, the big Giant whom many critics counted 10 on this winter and spring, handed the Pirates a bunch of cold storage yesterday. Four scattered bingles, two of which were cracked out by Manager Clark, was the Pirates' best. Score 4—0. Look out for the McGrawites from this on. Matty's right.

The Chicago White Sox finally fell before Lajoie's Blues yesterday. Fiene, who twirled for the Sox, was anything but fine. Joss and Moore officiated for the Blues and were both hit hard. It was a close game, 7—5.

Manager McAleer will probably use Harry Howell or big Cyrano Morgan in today's contest. Howell has not worked for several days and should be there as fit as a fiddle.

Manager McCloskey in a letter to a friend, states that his Cardinals are all on the ragged edge. Brown, Karger, Beebe and Fromme, his big staff of twirlers are all in poor form. Mack is to be sympathized with right now.

Jack O'Connor is about ready to get into the game and catch in his turn. He has been working hard since the season opened "on the coaching lines." He will break in and work in his turn for the balance of the season. The Tigers dubbed him "Foxy Jack, king of coachers."

NEW COMBINATION IN INFIELD TODAY

Delehanty Supplanted at Third by Yeager—Niles Goes to Second.

The passing of Jimmy Delehanty from third base will be watched with great interest, particularly by a coterie of enthusiasts, who have been crying for Delehanty's head ever since he donned a Brown uniform. Joe Yeager, the agile, pinch-hitting graduate from Griffith's college in New York, was the athlete whom the wise ones declared was the proper man to place on Sack 3.

Yesterday afternoon when the genial Jimmy McAleer waded his way through the mire into the park he had already made up his mind to scalp Delehanty for his play of the day previous. McAleer thinks Del has in him the making of a star player and probably had the club been winning regularly he would not have been so severe on Delehanty. Yeager can play any position on the infield or outfield for that matter.

Of the infield positions he, however, has always worked best around the second corner. Last season he played short, second and third for the Highlanders. He hit at a .301 clip as well. His work so far with the Browns has been up to the standard though like the balance of the club he can't hit enough to get up a sweat at present. He has shown in 17 games and his swatting average of .203, about 100 points below his speed. The move may eventually prove a winning one as it will bring into the infield at second Harry Niles again. Niles has been hitting like a house afire since the season opened and is at present leading his teammates by over a hundred points. He can play the second sack all right and he should be of just as much assistance to Jones as Yeager was. Niles' only weakness is his inability to slug southpaw twirlers.

The new combination of Yaeger, Wallace, Niles and Jones will be on exhibition today and it will be Joe Cantillon's Senators probably who will suffer from the new arrangement right from the jump. Yeager and Niles are two very speedy men, both on the bases and in doing field work. This pair should make it pretty soft for Wallace. Manager McAleer has made up his mind to keep Charlie Hemphill capering in center field for the balance of the season. Hempy prefers the field and besides he has it on Pickering when it comes to chasing balls on long drives. Pickering is right at home in right and declares that he is pleased over the switch. Delehanty, McAleer says, will not be allowed to grow stale, as he will be used in the utility role and will be asked to hit for the pitchers in pinches.

The Washington Senators arrived in the city last night after tea time. The slugging band, like the Tigers, made their '07 debut here with a brand-new master in charge—Joseph Cantillon. To date the club has got off to a fine start and is at present nestling within a few points of our Browns, who are a disgraceful last. There are several strange faces on the club. Perrine, a St. Louis lad, whom McCloskey tried out, and Ganley, a Pittsburg cast-off, are in the line-up. Anderson, Lave Cross, Schlafly, Hickman and the balance of the lads are old friends. The Senators will be with us for four days, concluding the series on Sunday.

The Western clubs of the National League began their invasion of the Far East yesterday and after the smoke had cleared the factions had nothing to brag of, as Chicago trimmed poor Brooklyn and the Cardinals won their first game in 13 tries from the Murray Quakers. On the other hand New York handed the Pirates a bundle of "0s" and Boston trounced Cincinnati 6 to 0. The race for leadership in the National continues to be very interesting between New York, Chicago and Pittsburg with the former having a few points the better of it.

Hugh Jennings and his fearful, frightful, fighting Tigers decamped for home late last night. Jennings was much disappointed over the miserable weather conditions encountered here. He figured on cleaning up the Browns while the club was in its "streak."

"You see," said Jennings, "I know just how good this Browns club is. The players are probably going poorly at present, their pitchers particularly, but give those old heads a bit of sunshine and they will get back all the games lost so far, and woe be unto the club which meets them when they recover their form. My club has been accused of employing the old McGraw rowdy tactics on the field by critics all over the country. I am opposed to rowdy tactics on the field, and I certainly will not allow any of my men to play other than clean baseball within the rules. True, I have probably instilled some of that McGraw spirit of aggressiveness into my players, but that's only natural with me. We are playing the old Oriole game of bunt, hit and run, and working all the old tricks of 1900. And we're getting away with them every day. When we return to St. Louis later we expect to be right up there on the very top."

THREE BUSY DAYS AT THE STADIUM

Manual Track Meet and "Uninee Circus" Start Off Events Today.

The Washington University Stadium for the next three days will be a veritable "two frolics daily" variety home. This afternoon the much-postponed Manual Training School field day will be the first sketch of the day's bill and, irrespective of climatic conditions, will start promptly at 1 o'clock. Even if swimming races must need be substituted for the track events the Orange and Black boys intend to pull off that pesky meet today.

Following on the heels of the field day and scheduled to throw open its gates at 3 o'clock is the monstrous, wonderful only one of the world of its kind in captivity "Univee Circus." The big show in the main tent will start promptly at 3:30 o'clock while the innumerable side-show attractions, some of which, for instance the attraction the co-eds are financing, namely the Siamese twins, Logan and Castlen, is really an exhibit worth seeing. The "seerkus" will keep open until the hour of 10 o'clock.

The merry dance will still go on tomorrow morning when Smith Academy will hold their annual field day at 10 o'clock. The Red and White have not a very strong track team this year, but the excellency of the performances will be made up for by the interest and keen competition that is bound to arise from closeness of the events. Most of the program is very open and the winners are a mere matter of conjecture. The point trophy winner is supposed to be numbered among Robbins, Campbell, Rutter or Piper, but it is by no means certain that this quartet have a monopoly on the prize and it would not be at all surprising to see some dark horse capture it.

Friday afternoon Washington University will give its school field day. The men have worked conscientiously for the events and it is certain the school records in some will be shattered. Grover is running splendid in the dashes and will win them to a certainty. Ferris should capture the half and mile, and Morton the quarter. Mitchell has a cynosure on the high jump and Von Schrader should annex the pole vault with little trouble. In the hurdles Taylor and Fullerton will furnish a grand struggle and the latter should also win the broad jump. The field events are very open, with Lehman and Bock the most formidable contenders.

Saturday morning there will be no rest for the Stadium, and the different class baseball teams are scheduled to clash. These are the occasions for "much doings" and little ball playing, the latter no one apparently missing.

Saturday afternoon the round of attractions will close with the ball game between Washington and St. Louis Universities. It will be the last game of the series of three, and as Washington has already won two, cinching the championship, St. Louis will strive hard to capture the last game and so retire from the fray with a vestige of glory. Young or Schenck will twirl for the Blue and White, while Hardaway or Gill will do mound duty for the Myrtle and Maroon.

Yesterday St. Louis U. was scheduled to play the State Normals at Cape Girardeau, but rain and wet grounds made the contest impossible, so the squad will get back to St. Louis today with only one victory over the Cape, for the reason that they only played one game. The play in the Stadium tomorrow is due to start at 3 o'clock.

NO CAPTAIN AFTER TWO ELECTIONS

Peculiar Conditions in the Aquatic Circles of the Missouri Athletic Club.

It is a splash that is taking place in the aquatic circles of the Missouri Athletic Club. The election this afternoon of a water polo and swimming team captain has been the cause of the miniature dry land polo game between the teams supposedly captained by Dute Cabanne and Tom Martin, and the outcome of the struggle will not be known until the election this afternoon.

It is quite a muddy muddle and the facts are hard to ascertain, but the situation is presumably this: Dute Cabanne, the present captain of the polo team, had no desire for re-election until he heard rumors that he was to be rolled. This stirred his fighting blood and he immediately sought the captaincy with the avowed intention of resigning if elected. On the other hand Tom Martin, the rival candidate for the honor, in no way sought the position and emphatically says he will not take it, but his friends insist on running him. Hence if Cabanne is elected he will resign and if Martin gets the office he will refuse to accept it, so no matter what way the election turns the team will still be without the object all the hubub was raised to obtain—a captain.

It is said Martin's backers concocted the scheme whereby only one captain will be elected for the entire squad and he will have the power of appointing the polo captain. This arrangement struck Dute as decidedly unfair and more than anything else decided him to seek re-election.

FAMOUS RUNNER IN THE MARATHON HERE.

The entry of S. H. Hatch, the famous long distance runner of the River Forest Athletic Club of River Forest, Ill., has been received for the third annual M. A. C. Marathon run. This is the first out-of-town entry that has come in.

Hatch is perhaps the best consistent running distance man in the country and has contested in more events than any other man. He says he is to run his race and invariably finishes in a creditable position. He won the local Marathon last year and ran second to Forshaw in 1906.

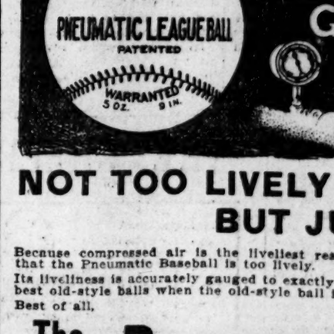

NORMANDIE CLUB PLAY ON SATURDAY.

The medal play for the anniversary cup of the Normandie Golf Club will take place Saturday afternoon and the 32 best scores will qualify for the match play. The final round of 36 holes being scheduled for June 15th.

The winner of the tournament will have his name engraved upon the cup and will also be presented with a gold medal. A silver medal will be given the runner up and a like prize be offered to winner of the consolation round.

THE BEN HURS and Blue Bells met Sunday and the former came out victorious by the score of 16 to 15. The game was a slugging match throughout. The home-run drive of Haupter of the winners was the feature of the game.

THE TANNHAUSERS would like to arrange games for Sunday, May 12, 19, with an out-of-town team. Address Frank Becker, 2318 South Broadway.

Liveliness Accurately Gauged

NOT TOO LIVELY BUT JUST RIGHT

Because compressed air is the liveliest resilient known, don't think that the Pneumatic Baseball is too lively.

Its liveliness is accurately gauged to exactly equal the liveliness of the best old-style balls when the old-style ball is new.

Best of all,

The New Pneumatic Base Ball

is just as lively in the ninth inning as in the first. Any other ball will go soft and punky in a few innings, the Pneumatic can't. Compressed air in the heart of the ball holds it sound and round and it stays at new-ball, Big-League speed all the time.

Pneumatic Baseballs are practically indestructible—nothing to wear out but the cover. Re-covered for forty cents as often as returned with the old cover to the manufacturer for this purpose.

in the game between the Post-Dispatch and Banner Buggy teams at American League Park on Sunday morning, April 28th. That it was not too lively, but just right, was the judgment of the players.

BURTON TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

Ohio Congressman Accepts Invitation of St. Louis Manufacturer's Association.

Congressman Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland, O., chairman of the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors and of the National Commission on Waterways, will speak in St. Louis Monday evening. Mr. Burton comes to the city at the invitation of the Manufacturers' Association.

President L. D. Kingsland of the association received Chairman Burton's telegram of acceptance Thursday morning and at once began preparations for his entertainment while in St. Louis. Options on the Olympic and Century Theaters and the Odeon were obtained, and it is announced that Mr. Burton's address will be delivered in one of these houses.

E. Arza, chairman; L. D. Kingsland, Manley G. Richmond, Antony Ittner, C. A. Eckstromer and H. T. Hafner are the committee appointed by the Manufacturers' Association to receive and entertain Congressman Burton on his arrival. They will meet daily at 1:30 p. m. until Monday to plan the program which will be followed during Mr. Burton's stay in the city. It is expected that a choice of a place for the public gathering will be made at the meeting Thursday afternoon.

Considerable interest was provoked by the announcement that Congressman Burton had consented to appear here and address promoters of a deep channel in the Mississippi River, and incidentally to explain his course as chairman of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, which in the last session of Congress reduced the appropriation recommended for the purpose by local advocates of the improvement.

JUNE 13 GRADUATION DAY OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Mrs. Beeson, Veteran Teacher, Renews Her Resignation.

The graduating exercises of Central High School will be held Thursday morning, June 13; McKinley High School, Thursday afternoon, June 13; Yeatman High School, June 14, and Sumner High School, at the Century Theater, June 17. These dates will be recommended to the Board of Education by the committee on instruction.

The Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis received permission at Wednesday's meeting of the committee to use the school yards during the summer months for open air meetings relative to the disease. Mrs. Susan V. Beeson, a teacher in the Central High School for many years, presented her resignation. She offered to resign last February, but her resignation was not accepted. She was then granted a leave of absence until the close of the term. She has been teaching school for half a century.

Young Adventurer Enlists.

For the next three years Frank P. Reilley of 3036 Lucas avenue, globe trotter, stowaway, banana-ship employe, and lastly war spy for the Nicaraguan Government, will serve as a coal passer on a United States man-of-war. Reilley, who since he was 12 years old has been roaming about the world, returned to St. Louis in March, determined to remain here. His roving disposition overcame this resolve, and Thursday he and three other St. Louis youths left for the Norfolk Navy Yard, where they will go aboard the receiving ship Franklin.

Purse Snatcher Pursued.

A man stole the purse of Mrs. Amanda Blackburn of 4003 McPherson avenue Wednesday night, while Mrs. Blackburn was walking on the east side of Pendleton avenue, near Page boulevard, in company with B. F. Parmlee of 4008 Delmar boulevard. Mrs. Blackburn carried her purse and a package of boiled ham in a hand satchel. The purse contained $3.50. The thief was pursued by Parmelee but escaped. Later a policeman found the ham in an alley.

DRUG TRUST IS BROKEN FOREVER BY SURRENDER

BLACKLISTS FORBIDDEN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 9.—The so-called "Drug Trust" was perpetually enjoined today from continuing its operations by the entering of a decree in the United States Circuit Court for the district of Indiana on the complaint of the United States Government, filed by Joseph B. Keating, United States District Attorney.

The defendants, 92 in number, who are the members, officers, directors, agents and attorneys of the National Association of Retail Druggists, the National Wholesale Druggists' Association, Tri-partite proprietors, "Black List Manufacturers," "Direct Contract Proprietors," "Wholesale Contract Proprietors" and Charles C. Bombaugh, are perpetually enjoined from combining to restain trade in drugs, fix prices by agreement, black-list retailers who cut prices, or to refuse to sell to any retailer on equal terms. All publication of blacklists is forbidden and all contracts and agreements covered by the charges are declared void.

The direct contract serial number plan is prohibited as well as the obtaining of the adoption of schedules for the sale of drugs.

Charles A. Bombaugh was charged in the bill of complaint with being engaged in printing and circulating lists called blank lists, which contained the names of druggists throughout the country who sold proprietary articles and medicines at prices less than those which the alleged combination ordered. As charged, he would send a list each month to every retail and wholesale druggist in the United States who belonged to the association of those accused of cutting prices and as a result of these, "aggressive cutters" as they were called could not buy goods.

Contract Proprietors Enjoined.

It was further charged that those accused of cutting prices on proprietary medicines were unable to purchase any kind of drugs from the members of the several associations. All such practices are perpetually enjoined.

The "direct contract proprietors" are enjoined from continuing the direct contract serial plan and from co-operating with any of the other defendants in carrying out such a plan. They are enjoined from requiring any dealer to enter into a contract restraining trade articles of their manufacture and from placing serial numbers on the retail packages for the purpose of keeping records and tracing sales and from requiring the vendee to keep records of and report sales by serial numbers.

All acts tending to restrict the free purchase of the articles of their manufacture are forbidden.

ROBIN HOOD IS BECOMING TOPER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 7.—If Robin Hood, the 6-year-old race horse, could talk, he could say he is fond of beer. He gave every evidence that he relished it yesterday at the Jamaica track. After he had won the second race he drank a quart of the foaming fluid without taking a long breath.

Robin Hood "cools out" on beer after a race. While other horses, more temperate in their habits, quaff large quantities of water he indulges in his hops, and no panhandler on Park Row will plead and beg harder for a drink of the ambr fluid that cheers than will this thoroughbred son of Kingston-Belle of Maywood. He will rub his attendant's shoulder, decline all water and do everything but ask for his customary foaming "growler." When it is forthcoming he shows his delight by snorting and tossing his head vigorously.

The son of the once mighty Kingston is quite an old toper. He has become so addicted to the beer habit that he now has a paunch such as a policeman would regard with pride. He is fat and thrives under this peculiar method of training, yet he races with a clear head and at speed that might indicate his anticipation of what awaits him after the contest is over.

Robin Hood's victory yesterday was his fourth consecutive purse of the Jamaica meeting. He must have been anxious to earn his reward, as he made all the running and got home two lengths in front of his field.

After the race, and while Robin Hood has his muzzle poked deep within the pail which holds his beer, J. P. Mayberry, his owner, told how his horse quit the ranks of the "Young Thoroughbreds' Temperance Association." It occurred this way, according to Mayberry:

Robin Hood's rubber was drinking a bottle of beer one day while passing the horse's stall and the old fellow poked his nose out and fairly pleaded for a swallow. In a spirit of fun the 'swipe' placed the bottle to Robin Hood's mouth and he drank every mouthful of the beer. Another bottle went the same way. Thereafter the horse showed that he was fond of it, and as a reward he was handed a bucket of beer every time he won a race.

"Harrimanized," the Latest.

From the New York Journal of Commerce.

Great men often add a word to the language. Machiavelli was responsible for the adjective Machiavellian. The Minnesota committee which valued railroad properties in that State has coined the word "Harrimanizing." The word is used thus: "This road (Chicago Great Western) was built by A. B. Stickney, reorganizing and 'Harrimanizing' divers and sundry organizations of Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois."

LONE BAKER PUTS TRUST TO FLIGHT

A. Zimmerman Has Forced Combine to Reduce Price of Bread Two Cents.

HE JOINED ASSOCIATION

Then He Still Cut Prices and Was Expelled From the Organization.

One independent baker, working in a shop four feet by ten, has been able, after four weeks of underselling, to force the Jewish Bakers' Association, composed of 13 master bakers, to make a reduction of 2 cents a loaf on bread and has frightened them into seeing visions of financial ruin.

The Ghetto trust buster is A. Zimmerman of 1455 Biddle street. With the assistance of his wife, he manages to turn out a large quantity of Jewish bread every night. Not only has he cut the prices from under his fellow bakers, but he has taught the thrifty housewives of the neighborhood to apply to his rivals the opprobrious epithet of trust.

When Zimmermann moved into the neighborhood a month ago and began selling bread at 7 cents a loaf, or 1 cent under the price agreed upon by the other bakers, they sent for him and invited him to join the combination.

He very willingly did so, paying his $25 fees. But he did not understand that his membership in the combine would hinder him at all from underselling his competitors whenever he felt like it.

Still Kept Price Down.

So, a few days after he joined, he was detected selling bread at his old prices of 7 cents a loaf. Expostulations failed to make him understand the nature and purpose of combinations to regulate prices, and the other bakers, in despair, ejected him from their organization.

Not long afterwards he horrified his competitors by cutting the price of bread another cent. Their alarm was justified when many of their old customers ceased to trade with them, and when asked the reason, replied that they wanted no "trust bread," and could get the staff of life cheaper from Zimmermann.

The trust bakers held a meeting Wednesday and decided to fight Zimmermann with his own weapons. In a signed statement, published in the Jewish paper, they announced that after Sunday, May 12, they would all sell bread at 6 cents a loaf.

Zimmerman grinned when he read this announcement and began selling bread at 5 cents a loaf. Whether the bakers will meet this reduction is not known.

BURNS HOUSE TO GET RID OF TENANT.

James Keeshan of Atlantic City, a little mining town south of Lander, Wyo., set fire to and burned to the ground a valuable house belonging to him in order to get rid of a tenant who had failed to pay his rent and who had refused to vacate his premises.

The tenant, Michael Brandon, had occupied the house for a year or more, but never had paid his rent. Keeshan sought on a number of occasions to eject him from the house, but he took advantage of legal technicalities and kept possession of it.

Finally Keeshan, thoroughly out of patience, warned Brandon that if he did not vacate the house at once he would set fire to it and burn it down over his head. Brandon paid no heed to the warning. When he awoke in the middle of the night, however, he found that Keeshan had carried out his threat.

The house was on fire, and the flames had gained such headway that he barely had time to escape with his life, all his household goods and personal effects being destroyed.

How Animals Blush.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Animals blush as girls do, but it is fear and not modesty that in their case causes the inrush of blood. Horses blush in their ears, especially in the left ear. When a horse is frightened its left ear will be found hot and swollen. This is also true of rabbits. Cows and all other cloven footed animals blush just above the fetlock. Dogs blush in their tails. When a dog is frightened his tail blushes so that it hangs limp, the dog having absolutely no control over it. Insects blush in their antennae.

When They Start Home.

A nightly frequenter of the "Lighted Way" said the other night:

"You have noticed that at certain points on Broadway there are electric signs that, at regular intervals flash and then disappear, only to flash again. Many stories might be related about the ridiculous effect of these signs on men who have 'looked on the wine when it is red.' But they really do some good.

"In my own case, for instance, if I have spent an evening with the 'boys' and am strolling down Broadway with an abiding and all-consuming thirst, I stop occasionally in front of one of those signs and look at it steadily for a few minutes. Then I look at the others. If I can distinguish between those that are constantly lighted and those which flash only at intervals, I know that I am safe. But if they all flash indiscriminately, then I know that it is time for me to get a lemon and seltzer and start for home.

"And you would be surprised if you knew how many men there are about town to whom these signs are an infallible barometer."

"TEDDY'S ARMY" SONG COMPOSED BY BOOKKEEPER

President of New "Third Term" Organization Pleads Patriotic Zeal.

CONGRESSMAN A MEMBER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 6.—"Secret service men after me; why, what have I done?" said William Finn, manager of the extensive hosiery mills of Rambo & Reagar.

"Are you the president of 'Teddy's Army?'" was asked.

"Yes, but what has that to do with being the object of secret service men?" and the beads of perspiration stood out on Mr. Finn's forehead as if the temperature were 100 in the shade instead of 45 in the sun. When he was informed of the action of the President in seeking out the promoters of 'Teddy's Army,' Mr. Finn explained:

"Some weeks ago there was company at my home and the conversation turned to politics and the probability or possibility of President Roosevelt becoming a candidate to succeed himself. It was the consensus of opinion that it would be for the good of the nation for Mr. Roosevelt to have another, or third, term. Some one suggested the organization of a movement to bring about this result, which was deemed desirable, for none of us ever experienced the prosperity enjoyed during his incumbency.

"How to do it was the question. Why not start a petition pleading with the President to reconsider his announcement on the night upon which he was elected that he would not be a candidate for another term? said one. That seemed good to us all, and we adjourned to meet again.

Had to Meet Expenses.

"After a number of meetings the project crystallized into 'Teddy's Army.' We found that there would be expenses of postage, etc., in having the idea sent broadcast over the country into every village, town and city, and to meet this, William M. Wood, bookkeeper at the Rambo & Reager works, composed a song which was named, 'Teddy, the Tried and the True.' We saw in this means of aiding our movement, or army, and it was agreed that the composer should give the army a portion of the revenue.

"I was elected president, Marcus F. Johnson vice-president, Joseph R. Rittenhouse secretary, Prof. Willard S. Campbell treasurer, and an executive committee composed of these officers with the addition of George Schearer was named. We had a membership button with the picture of the President and the inscription thereof of 'Teddy's Army.' Membership buttons were with the piece of music, selling at 25 cents.

Expected No Trouble.

"The movement, I assure you, was started with the best of intention, and if we have done anything that is not strictly proper, why we certainly want to know it. Had I seen any trouble ahead, or any wrong in what we did I should not have countenanced it for a moment, and I am sure none of the other officers would, for they are all young men of standing in the town."

What Mr. Finn says of his associates is true. Johnson is a stenographer employed by the Lehigh Valley railroad; Rittenhouse, a shoemaker, Campbell of the high school faculty and Shearer a boss machinist at Rambo & Reagar's.

Johnson and the others confirmed what Finn said as to the organization of the movement and Johnson said that President Roosevelt, or his secretary, was communicated with regarding the plans.

Song Not Essential.

"I supposed everything was all right," Johnson said. "I believe it will be all right yet, and I believe that there will be such an uprising to get on our petition, when it becomes known, that everyone who helped give him his unprecedented majority will become members of 'Teddy's Army,' regardless of whether the music feature boom is eliminated. While the initiation fee to the army is 25 cents, the price of the music, inducements are held out, which seems to be the rub for the securing members, or the sale of the music. Every man, woman or child may become a captain in the army by selling ten copies of music, or recruiting ten members, and besides get $1 for his 'patriotism.' The greater the patriotism the greater the remuneration."

The secret service men to whom the President is said to have referred the matter for investigation, have not visited any of the army chiefs as yet. Congressman Wanger of this district is a member of the 'army,' as a button in his lapel attests.

Between plaster showers at the Four Courts, the Sheriff's subordinates are practicing for a ball game Saturday afternoon at Oberbeck's Park, 8000 North Broadway, in which it is expected that the colors of the City Hall team from the office of the Recorder of Deeds, will be used to dust the diamond.

In giving out their batting order Thursday, the Sheriff's office attaches said that the secrecy of their opponents had no terrorizing effects, and that the list of substitutes who are under bond to appear at the park, was made public that Four Court friends would know where to place their money.

RUSSIAN POLES ARE NOT REVOLUTIONISTS

The Pole in Russia, the impetuous, emotional, enthusiastic patriot, the Celt of the Slavic race as he has been called—why is he not a firebrand among Russian revolutionaries? This is asked by a writer in the Literary Digest.

Then he proceeds to answer his own question. The Pole, he says, has his own political grievances, he also has his political ideal and his political dream, but he remains as silent as apparently uninterested during the bursting of bombs, the incendiary gatherings, the election struggles of Russian as Wellington's reserves stood while French artillery was mowing down the squares in Wavry road. This apparent anomaly is explained by Francois Morawski in La Revue of Paris.

We would hardly expect to have Germany handled with excessive tenderness, tolerance or courtesy in the Polish article of a French review. The Poles, he says are preserving their neutrality for fear of playing into Germany's hands. While Germany would like to see a Polish insurrection, would greet with joy the sight of a Polish coalition in arms and gladly join Russia in crushing united Poland at the point of the sword, the best policy of the Poles is at present a policy of conciliation. Accordingly, as Mr. Morawski observes, the Poles within the Russian frontiers, in spite of the way in which their lands are being bought up and settled by Germans by means of subsidies distributed by a pan-Germanizing government and in spite of the suppression of the Polish language in the schools, could not be incensed into armed resistance.

"But this could perhaps be done in Russia!" Accordingly the German press have even encouraged the revolutionaries in Russia in hopes that the Poles would take fire. "A genuine and downright revolt of the Poles in Russia—what a magnificent chance it offered! What new horizons opened out of Poland's watchful friend at the very thought." But, to quote Mr. Morawski:

"Prussia was on the watch for the auspicious moment! We have seen how her calculations miscarried. The Poles in Russia saw the danger and parried it in time. Without ceasing their demand for the restoration of ancient rights, they avoid even the suspicion of contemplating an armed rising. While Moscow was raising barricades, every national party in Poland condemned socialistic anarchy and openly accused the local bureaucracy of trying to prove themselves indispensable by favoring disorders and keeping up the state of siege which was paralyzing all legal and patriotic activity.

Sales Were Moderate.

At the first duma, the Polish deputies were conspicuous for their moderation, and when after the dissolution of that duma the opposition formulated the famous manifesto of Viborg, the Poles refused to sign it. Thereupon the Russian Government, as if in recognition of this, made certain concessions, very inadequate, it is true, to Poland's national requirements, but still sufficient to mark an advance in the re-establishment of a good understanding between the two principal Slavic peoples. The general opinion, based upon full information from a competent Russian source, was that at St. Petersburg, in spite of the disposition of the bureaucracy, a desire was felt to grant the kingdom of Poland administrative autonomy, and that nothing but a direct threat uttered by Prussia had prevented the carrying out of this decisive measure."

According to the writer Prussia is much more than a mere marplot in aggravating the relations between the Poles and the Russians. The specter that haunts her is that of a Polish kingdom established under Russian auspices, and calling up in Prussian Poland the patriotic independence that would at once fling off the yoke of pan-Germanism. "The vision of a Poland in Russia, regenerated, and healed of all her wounds, reconciled with her greater sister, and supported by her, has never ceased to be a nightmare to Berlin statesmen."

Germany, we are told, hoped that the question of independent Slavic nationality would be forever set at rest in Europe by the victory of Russia over Japan, and the consequent internecine struggle between Japan and England for predominance in the Far East. With this end in view William II is charged with having fomented the quarrel between Tokio and St. Petersburg. "But the Poles are now engaged in political regeneration, and are finding their lot ameliorated, but now it is Russia who is raising her voice in their favor, and the idea of a good understanding between the two nations is making way in spite of obstacles opposed by administrative unwillingness, and the inveterate defiance of Russian nationalists."

RODS AND LINES NEED GREAT CARE

Fishing Tackle Should Be Economically Husbanded for the Results Pay.

All fishing rods should have the greatest care, be they of solid wood, split bamboo, or steel. Scrape the rough places carefully with the sharp edge of a piece of broken glass, then revarnish with good coach or piano varnish laid thinly on with a camel-hair brush.

Examine carefully that no crack or opening is seen in the bamboo, and that the silk is not frayed or untied. If the latter, some fine red silk twist carefully wound will replace the frayed parts.

If the thin part of the tip shows weakness extra ties can be wound over it, and if the guides are loose they should be retied; also the ferrules, if only slightly loose, should be taken out, reset and reglued. Then true casting is made more sure.

Personally, says a writer in Outing, I think the plated or silk mountings are a mistake. I do not keep mine polished bright for the reason that the flash in the act of casting scares both trout and bass, especially on bright, sunny days, when the water is low. The time is near, I hope, when makers will produce a rod with mounting of a somber color.

In the proper care of lines one is apt to balk. It is too much trouble to unwind and dry every time one returns from a hard day's fishing, and the most we do is to rewind parts to test if any kinks are there. A silk unvarnished line is the worst to kink, so that it is always advisable after the season is over to take the line from the reels and wind them on a large wheel.

A careful and prudent brother angler has devised a unique plan of winding his lines around a bicycle wheel after the tire has been removed. Placing the bicycle upside down, he works the pedals and winds them through an oiled rag. This softens the lines and keeps them moist and pliable, as well as prevents cracking. I refer to the oiled trout and salmon lines. Plain silk or linen need only to be well dried before winding.

Even the best and most expensive lines become weak and worthless through want of proper care and attention; it is impossible to prevent mildew or rot, unless a line is put away for the winter in shipshape order. The sloven who throws his flies, leaders and lines all in a heap, with the idea of arranging them on arrival at the river, finds himself very miserable and ill tempered, especially when in the company of friends who are kept waiting till his tackle is fit for work.

RELIABILITY TRIAL FOR TOURING CARS.

It Will Be Started in Scotland Next Month.

From Harper's Weekly.

The Scottish reliability trial for touring cars, which will begin June 25 and end June 29 next, will afford an excellent opportunity for the manufacturers of American touring cars to make good their claim that their output equals in reliability and staying qualities the best of the foreign manufactures. The course over which the trial will be conducted will be from Glasgow to Inverness, a distance of 754¼ miles.

At the Scottish trials last year five American touring cars were entered, and while making a good showing as to reliability, were rather outclassed in the matters of hill climbing and fuel consumption. These Scottish trials have a great effect upon public opinion in Europe and other divisions, as people are beginning to realize that the best machine is the one which will give the most satisfaction under, not the best, but the worst conditions.

Thousands of machines are being used in the mining districts of South Africa, and this, as most of the other foreign markets, demands a thoroughly reliable car.

WHITE CORPUSCELS BACTERIA BUTCHERS

The saving of the life of Mrs. Curtis Guild, wife of the Governor of Massachusetts, by "opsonic" treatment after typhoid and other toxic complications had followed an operation for appendicitis, emphasizes, says the New York Times, the value of a very recent discovery of medical science.

The French doctors, headed by Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute, had taught that the defense of the blood against invading armies of microbes is the white corpuscles, which are seen to attack and devour the bacteria. Sir Almroth E. Wright and Capt. Douglas of St. Mary's Hospital, London, and later the Germans, Neufeld and Rimpau, have demonstrated that the white blood corpuscles are merely scavengers, not slayers, the germs they swallow being killed by components of the blood serum called "opsonins," roughly translated "butchers."

When the microbe-butchering constituents of the serum lack potency nothing can resist the onslaught of an infectious disease. But if the germs are vanquished the opsonic power is heightened, the patient is immune, and the disease seldom if ever recurs.

Antitoxins derived from the immunized serum of animals already cure diphtheria and tetanus. Lately carefully graduated doses of sterilized bacilli such as produce typhoid, consumption and pneumonia have been injected directly into human veins, thus increasing the "resistance" of the subject. This treatment is for persons with "weak constitutions," samples of their blood being infected beforehand with living germs to ascertain its precise opsonic weakness.

Mrs. Guild was treated with a typhoid toxin prepared by Prof. Ross of Toronto. The report of this case was made by Dr. Timothy Leary, professor of pathology and bacteriology in Tufts Medical School, together with reports of complete cures by the "opsonic method" of four cases of fairly developed pulmonary tuberculosis.

FIRST AIR BRAKE TEST SUCCESSFUL

The air-brake was ushered into actual use in most dramatic fashion, says Everybody's Magazine. The trial trip occurred in April, 1869. The train selected was the Steubenville accommodation running between Pittsburg and Steubenville, O. When the train was going at full speed, suddenly, as he came around a sharp curve, the engineer saw a stalled wagon in the middle of the track dead ahead. With hand-brakes only, nothing could have prevented a terrible smash-up.

The formal time for the trial of the air-brake had not come, but the brake was there, and in desperation, not believing for a moment that the thing could possibly avail, the engineer threw on the air. But it did avail. The observers in the rear were almost catapulted out of their seats by the shock of the sudden stop.

But when they saw the engine fairly poking its nose into the wagon-bed, so narrow had been the margin between safety and disaster, they forgot all about their shock, and stood in awed silence. The air-brake had come into its own.

BIG STICK HITS BONAPARTE AND HE HITS TRUSTS

Attorney-General Wasn't Prosecuting Very Strenuously, but He Will Begin.

HE SAID HE WAS ILL

Treated by Roosevelt, He Will Go After the Harvester Combine.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Attorney-General Bonaparte is now expected by the President to actively take up the official business of his department and make some long strides in the direction of real trust busting. When the President asked Mr. Bonaparte why nothing was being done in trust prosecutions the Attorney-General said his health was poor, but he expected to be all right in a couple of weeks. He has now made the authoritative announcement that he is in splendid physical condition and the President will be justified in anticipating early progress in suits awaiting Mr. Bonaparte's sanction.

In prompt answer to the President's insistent reminder that something should be accomplished Attorney-General Bonaparte has taken up the case of the International Harvester Trust and decided to institute proceedings for its dissolution. He took up this case because it is distinctly a new suit for which he will obtain full credit. Nearly all pending trust cases were begun under Knox and Moody.

Evidence Already Collected.

Evidence against the Harvester Trust was collected under a resolution offered by Senator Hansbrough and adopted at the last session of Congress, since Mr. Bonaparte assumed office. It directed the Bureau of Corporations to investigate the combination of companies making agricultural implements.

The suit against the Harvester Trust will be based on the contention that through a combination of manufacturers all competition was restrained both as to prices and accommodations. It is expected the suit will be brought in Chicago.

The denial of Mr. Bonaparte that he is in poor health came as a surprise in administration circles, where it was supposed that only a seriously impaired physical condition could account for the Attorney-General's continued absence from the department.

Attorney-General Bonaparte was in his office here at 9 o'clock today, which is an occurrence so unusual as to attract general attention and comment. He disposed of the January pardon case, which has been awaiting action for nine days. It is understood that the President, impatient at the delay, had requested the Attorney-General at the Cabinet meeting to take up the January cas immediately.

He Is Strong Now.

He also prepared a statement regarding criticisms affecting himself and the department. The statement follows:

"In so far as the publications in question reflect on me personally I do not care to say anything at all about them. But they reflect by implication upon my subordinates as well, since they allege, in substance, that the work of the entire department is languid and ineffective; and it is my duty, as its head, to pronounce that statement a bald falsehood, originating either in malice, or else in gross and willful ignorance of the facts. The work of the department increases every day, and I do not believe it has ever received more zealous and faithful attention than it receives now from the officers and employes of the department, with the exception, of course, of the Attorney-General himself.

sider it any part of the department's duty to furnish a liberal daily supply of headlines for newspapers, and the department is not administered with that laudable end in view. But for this opinion and its practical application, no one is responsible or should be blamed but my unworthy self."

Defends His Subordinates.

In making this announcement the Attorney-General puts up a straw man and knocks him down. No complaint whatever has been made concerning the faithfulness and zeal of subordinates in the Department of Justice.

It has developed that failure to see the Attorney-General is responsible for delay in prosecuting the Tobacco Trust. It was learned that former Assistant Attorney-General McReynolds, appointed special counsel in the investigation of the Tobacco Trust, was called from New York by order of the Attorney-General for a personal conference and was kept cooling his heels in the outer offices for a week without catching a glimpse of his chief. Finally he completed his mission at the Attorney-General's office in Baltimore, upon the latter's request.

USED HATCHET TO REACH HIS WIFE

Jacob Genzler, driver of a beer wagon, living at 909 North Eleventh street, feels that his wife, Anna Genzler, keeps house for her mother and brothers, who live next door, rather than for him.

So when he went home at 9 p. m. Wednesday, and found the house locked up he went to his mother-in-law's house and being denied admission got a hatchet and began chopping his way to his wife through the back door. This was about half demolished when a policeman interrupted. Genzler is now in the Four Courts holdover, charged with malicious destruction of property.

Wisky Cause of Trouble.

When seen Thursday by a Post-Dispatch reporter Genzler said:

"I began to drink, and by 9 o'clock didn't know what I was doing. I went home and found everything locked up. This enraged me, and I went to my mother-in-law's house, where I knew my wife was. I tried to chop down the door. I owe all my troubles to drink."

Mrs. Charles Grimsley, Husband and Son Arrested.

NEVADA, Mo., May 9.—Charles M. Grimsley, his wife and son, have been arrested as a result of the feud fight yesterday in which Constable Lloyd Gooding and A. W. Corey were seriously wounded. It is said that Mrs. Grimsley stood on the front porch of her home, and urged her husband and son to shoot.

Grimsley was also wounded. The boy was the only one of the four who escaped unhurt. The fight was the result of trouble over a land deal between Corey and Grimsley, who are farmers and live 12 miles southwest of here. Corey is not expected to recover.

Negress Awarded Damages.

Phoebe McElroy, a negress, has a judgment for $150 damages against Mrs. Eudora Leonard, a white woman, living at the Claremont Hotel. Phoebe was arrested Feb. 20, 1906, Mrs. Leonard charging her with theft. She was acquitted and sued for $4400 damages. A Circuit Court jury gave her $150 Wednesday.

NOT ALLOWED TO PAY YOUR BILLS

English Tradesmen Unwilling to Accept Full Settlements of Accounts.

ACCOUNTS RUN FOR YEARS

Quarter day in England, as its name implies, comes but four times a year. For my part I should like it to disappear altogether and in this pious wish I have, no doubt, the support of millions of other law-abiding people. For while quarter day brings checks and other similar liquidations it also signalizes the departure of the majority of one's hard-earned sovereigns from the banking account, says a writer in Town and Country.

This is a bill-ridden country, a nightmare of accounts which are settled quarterly. With the best intentions in the world to pay cash for everything, and so avoid the nuisance of running up bills, the self-respecting householder finds it absolutely impossible to carry out his designs. If you live in a decent house and move in a circle that seems in the face of it to be above the ordinary little wants of the world, you are marked down by the combined trading community as eligible for quarterly booking and nothing on earth will remove you from the list.

You simply cannot escape even though you go week by week with the money in your hand to liquidate your indebtedness. I have just concluded a three days' session of check writing in payment of accounts due to the commercial world, including the drapery establishments, furniture dealers, grocers, butchers, fishmongers, fruiterers, bootmakers, milliners, dressmakers, tailors, doctors, dentists, hosiers, schoolmasters, furnishers, decorators, electricians, plumbers, wine merchants and His Majesty the King for taxes. These bills are in two sets, one in town, the other in the country; and over and above them hovers another little cloud of accounts which will not come in for perhaps a whole year, particularly in the country where the tradespeople have a habit of holding back their bills until one has almost forgotten the details, when they are sent in as a sort of surprise packet.

I had a bill yesterday from a country builder for some work done in digging a well three years ago. When the work was concluded I wrote to him and asked for the bill. No reply. A month or two later I wrote again. Still no reply. Now it has come in, and if I were to send him a check at once no one would be more surprised than this complacent well digger.

How these people manage to exist under such a system is quite beyond my comprehension. It is certainly most unbusinesslike and it has the disadvantage of leaving one constantly in debt to some one or other. The last people to be paid or who expect to be paid are doctors, dentists and tailors. People, as a rule, pay every other account first. My country doctor told me on the last quarter day that I was the only one on his books who paid when the bill was rendered. The peasants, of course, are obliged to pay their half-crown fees when they have had their treatment. Medicine is thrown in and the rule is "No money, no medicine." On the other hand, a well-known county magnate died a couple of months ago and the executors paid to his medical attendant the sum of £1500 for eight years of visits.

The tailor is quite the most remarkable of all the patient waiters for money from his customers. I am certain that if I were to liquidate my indebtedness to him in full it would strike consternation in his shop and would create the suspicion that I was either going bankrupt or preparing to desert him for a rival tailor.

Whenever I try to settle in full by sending a check for the last account the ingenious soul wheedles me into another bill and so keeps the account going; and what is more, if I were to find myself temporarily embarrassed for funds, he would consider it a favor to be allowed to lend me money to be repaid at my convenience.

How do they do it? They simply put in so much interest in the account and so combine money-lending with tailoring. I discovered that many years ago and now I always insist on having my clothes billed to me at cash prices instead of credit prices, three months' credit being looked upon as cash. The American who comes over here to buy clothes from the English tailor and finds things so ridiculously cheap, helps to pay the interest which I decline to entertain, for while he thinks he is doing a good trade he pays cash and gets credit prices, which means 10 per cent added to the bill.

I had a long talk with my tailor yesterday while I was persuading him, apparently much against his inclination, to accept a check in full payment. He told me that the American trade, which is all cash and no bookkeeping, constitutes the backbone of his business. The only objection he has to it is that American customers always insist on having their clothes made to fit exactly, and that they send them back two and even three times until the garments are to their liking. That must be a great nuisance to the average tailor, because Englishmen are not so particular. Furthermore he thinks Americans are too much bound down by their desire to have what is regarded as "the fashionable cut."

"If you will look at this list of names," said my tailor, who is a man of the keenest intelligence, sharpened, no doubt, by years of dealing with the aristocracy and members of the higher professions, "you will see that the majority of my gentlemen have their clothes cut the in the same style year after year. Americans are the slaves of fashion. If some new-fangled tailor manages to get it known that a certain style of pocket is to be the thing for spring wear, they must all have it, though my English customers would never dream of changing, unless I felt disposed to make the alteration on my own initiative.

"The same thing applies to hats and gloves and shirts and boots. I have here the name of a Marquis who is known on both sides of the Atlantic. Every year I make for him a dozen suits of clothes cut in almost precisely the fashion that I made them for him 25 years ago. There may be a trifling difference here and there, but in the main the cut and style are the same. The only changes are the fashion in material; and this applies to hundreds of my customers, yourself included."

Which is true, because whenever I want more clothes I send for samples of material and the tailor does the rest. I have the same lounging suits, the same morning suits and the same style of dress clothes that I had a dozen years ago, and if perchance the fit is not as fine as it should be I no longer consider myself the most ill-used person in the world, but don the garments in the philosophic state of mind that goes with a good digestion and the consciousness that clothes, while they cover the body and protect from rain and wind, do not, after all, make the man.

That's What Hurt.

GREAT AILSA CRAIG VICTIM OF TRADE

Stupendous Crag Off Scotland's Coast Leased to Quarry Firm.

Great indignation has been excited by the story that the Marquis of Ailsa has leased, for the purpose of quarrying its granite, the noble rock known as Ailsa Craig, says the London Daily News.

This stupendous crag, rising abruptly from the sea to a height of 1114 feet, and having a circumference of nearly two miles, stands sentinel at the entrance to the estuary of the Clyde, almost equi-distant between the Peninsula of Kintyre and the County of Ayr, and within sight of the Irish coast—hence its sobriquet, "Paddy's Milestone."

The rock is an object of great natural beauty, and inspires feelings of wonder and admiration. The thought of its demolition to make paving stones raises bitter resentment among a people who are at present collecting $50,000 to preserve the "Auld Brig o' Ayr" against the dilapidations of time, simply because their beloved peasant poet had endeared that structure in their hearts. Ailsa Craig, stormbeaten by the foaming billows, has enlisted the muse of Keats and Wordsworth, and Daniel Defoe is among the many prose writers who have paid it homage.

Apart from its recognition as Nature's "craggy ocean pyramid," as Keats called it, the rock is of great strategic importance. It is the Gibraltar of the Clyde. Although unprotected, the rock commands the waterway that leads to Greenock and Glasgow. It has besides great geological and historical value. Scientists say it is of volcanic origin—thrown up from the bed of a crater like Berwick L[illegible] and Edinburgh Castle rock. Many basalt columns four, five and six sided, resembling those seen at the Giants' Causeway and the Island of Staffa, are also found there, and there are, besides, several interesting caves.

Above the lighthouse on the eastern side there stands the ruins of an old castle, and the ruins of an old church and burying ground are known to have existed nearby. The castle is said to have been the property of early monks.

Quarrying operations to the extent of the material for 1000 pairs of curling stones have been permitted at the rock for a number of years, but the wholesale deprivation of the granite, of which it is largely composed, is exciting stern opposition.

SPEAKER CANNON IN TILT WITH LUNATIC

Passengers on Street Car Thought Both Were Crazy.

Joseph G. Cannon, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was riding in a street car in Washington, D. C. when an elderly man entered the car and took the next seat to Mr. Cannon. After a short time the man, turning suddenly on Mr. Cannon, demanded: "Do you know what I am going to do?"

"No," replied Mr. Cannon.

"I am going to have all the bones of my ancestors collected, mounted with silver and hung on the walls of my room," said the man.

"I would not do that," said Mr. Cannon.

"Why?" demanded the man.

"Well," replied Mr. Cannon, "you cannot expect to live more than 20 years at the most, and when you die all the bones of your ancestors will be thrown out in the ash barrel, and you would not like that."

"No," said the man; "I never thought of that. I'll have to think that over."

"Do you know what I am going to do?"

"No," replied Mr. Cannon.

"I am going to dig a hole in the earth 100 miles deep and three miles in circumference," said the man.

"I would not do that," replied Mr. Cannon.

"I would not do that," replied Mr. Cannon.

"Why?" demanded the man.

"Because you cannot tell what you would find so far down in the earth," replied Mr. Cannon; "besides, you would be worried to death by the labor unions."

"I never thought of that," said the man. "I'll have to think that over."

After a slightly longer period of silence the man once more addressed Mr. Cannon.

"Do you know what I am going to do?"

"No," replied Mr. Cannon.

"I am going out West and sink 100,000 artesian wells all over the plains," said the man.

"I would not do that," replied Mr. Cannon.

"Why?" demanded the man.

"Because," replied Mr. Cannon, "I know you do not wish to injure anyone, and as water is scarce out there you would cut off the water supply of many cities and towns."

"I never thought of that," said the man. "I'll have to think that over."

They both left the car as it was nearing the Capitol, and the man remarked: "You and I don't seem to agree."

The other passengers had greatly enjoyed the conversation, and one of them remarked to his neighbor: "Which of those two old gentlemen was the crazier?"

But his neighbor gave it up.—Harper's Weekly.

MEXISAN OUTLAWS OVERRUN COUNTRY

RURALES THEIR ENEMY

Country Police Show No Mercy to Bandits, All Being Shot When Captured.

The mountainous sections of the States of Durango and Sinaloa in Mexico are overrun with bands of brigands. The latest outbreak of outlawry is the worst known since the days following the last interncene strife of the people of the country, when conditions were disturbed and little attempt at preserving law and order was made, says a correspondent in the Chicago Record-Herald.

Brigandage has always prevailed to some extent in the mountains lying between Durango and the Pacific port of Mazatlin, and the rough trail connecting these two cities has long had the reputation of being the most dangerous to travel in Mexico. It became necessary a few years ago to increase the force of rural guards, or country police, in the unsafe region in order to cope with these bands of outlaws.

For a time their depredations were lessened, but during the last few months the banditti have increased to such an extent as to make traveling through any portion of the region covering a territory of a width of 75 miles and a length of more than 200 miles absolutely dangerous. No less than nine bands of brigands are operating in the region named. Ranchmen and peaceable settlers are in a state of terror.

There are now two full regiments of rurales operating in the turbulent territory, and they are showing the bandits no mercy. Many of the outlaws have been killed during the last two weeks, and others are being trailed into the mountain fastnesses, where they make their rendezvous. Many members of the rurales were bandits in former years, and they know all of the wiles and desperate tactics of that class. But, more than this, they know the mountain trails and the hiding places of the outlaws and are able to give quick and effective pursuit when an outrage is committed.

Fight to the Death.

It is said to be President Diaz's order that no quarter be shown the brigands. No prisoners are taken. It is a warfare to the death. There are many rish mines in the turbulent section, and their operation is being seriously hampered by the attacks of these outlaw bands. A number of mining camps have been raided by the brigands during the last few weeks. People have been shot down when any show of resistance was made and stores robbed of money and supplies, which were coolly carried away upon pack mules by the bandits.

The number of murders that have been committed by the robbers during the last few months will probably never be known. News has been received here of not less than twenty such crimes at their hands, and these are only a partial list of their victims. On some of the remote ranches whole families were murdered. The brigands do not hesitate to wreak their vengeance upon the rurales. Only a few days ago six rurales were asleep in their camp in the mountains, when they were attacked by the outlaws whom they were pursuing, and all of the rurales were killed before they could reach their guns.

Encounters between parties of rurales and the banditti are of almost daily occurrence. Several of the bandit leaders have been killed in these affrays recently, but it seems that there are always some ready to take their places and there has as yet been no decrease shown in the outlawry. One of the most notorious of these bandit chiefs was Porfirio B. Obaso, who operated at the head of a select band of only three men. They had committed many bold robberies and a number of murders in the vicinity of Conitaca and were said to be planing a raid upon that town when they were overtaken by a small force of rurales. The bandits were sheltered behind some rocks in the mountains and the battle lasted for some time. It resulted in one of the rurales being killed and two wounded. Obaso was shot through the body and died on the spot.

One Leader Shot.

Gerardo Nunez is another bandit leader who was recently captured and shot. He and his band attacked the ranch of Jesus Uranga Saenz at La Estancia Blanca, situated within 50 miles of Durango. They took Saenz and all of his servants prisoners and bound them with ropes. They then ransacked the building and robbed the place of $7000 in money and valuables. Although Nunez had been captured and shot, it is said that his followers have selected a new chief and are operating as boldly as ever.

A short time ago a band of brigands, led by Jose Serna, made an attack upon a ranch near Tamazula, near the border line of Durngo and Sinaloa. They murdered Tomas Borego, manager of the place, and several of his servants, took all the valuables and drove off several hundred head of livestock. The animals were recovered afterward by a force of rurales, but the bandits made their escape. Serna is said to have been at one time prominent in business circles in Mazatlan. He was crossed in a love affair with a beautiful young woman of the place and disposed of his business and took refuge in the mountains, where he surrounded himself with a desperate gang of cutthroatas and became a professional bandit chief. It is reported that this band has a large cave stored full of the spoils taken in its numerous raids.

Juan Longorio is at the head of a band of brigands that has been operating in the Corsala district, State of Sinaloa, for two or three years. It has raided many ranches and small villages and robbed large numbers of unprotected travelers. Longorio has always shown the greatest courtesy and tenderness toward women. He does not hesitate to take the life of a man if resistance is offered or in attacks, but under no circumstances will he permit a woman to be harmed.

Instances are told of his visiting the home of poor widows at Cosala and placing in their hands money and supplies of food which he had probably stolen from some neighboring ranch. It is on account of these acts of charity and his consideration shown the women of that section that he is not hated as are the other bandits in Western Mexico. The rurales have been ostensibly after Longorio and his band for several months, but it is whispered that the effort to capture the brigand chief is not as real as it might be.

Duty Lived on Cake.
From the London Chronicle.

Italian salt is heavily taxed. Sugar is taxed also, even in the frivolous form of white ornaments on the top of a cake. So a traveler from Alexandria found of late, arriving in Venice with the ill-timed parting present of a decorated cake brought on board by a Egyptian friend. Having no taste for cake, the Englishman sailed into the Port of Venice with his Egyptian sugar uneaten and forgotten. Down upon the cake came the Italian officials, demanding duty. The Englishman protested that cake was not contraband, whereupon the white ornaments were denounced. The English traveler proposed to heave the whole thing overboard into the lagoon. Not so; his arm was grasped. The sugar was now the property of the King of Italy; at his peril would any man heave it, or chuck, or shy.

POST-DISPATCH'S RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

UNION PACIFIC ISSUES BONDS

Authorizes $75,000,000 4 Per Cent Debentures to Holders at 90.

STOCK MAKES A DECLINE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The cause of the strength of Union Pacific today is attributed entirely to the action of the directors, who, at 2 o'clock today, after the meeting announced the authorization of $75,000,000 4 per cent debenture bonds to stockholders at 90 per cent.

Union Pacific stock had touched 149¼ just before the announcement, and it melted at once afterward to 147 in a few minutes.

Notwithstanding the adverse movement of the stock price, which reflects nothing but the money market conditions and was expected, the issue of the debentures to holders at 90 is looked on as something of a melon and will make favorable conditions for the management of the property for such financing as is required in the present year.

Cash prices on corn were somewhat firmer, and the demand was good. Receipts of corn at all primary points were 536,445 bu against 296,265 bu last year, and shipments were 572,549 bu against 342,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 34,165 bu against 142,855 bu last year, and shipments were 131,635 bu. Corn clearances for the day were 222,000 bu.

The oats market was again nominal. There was a sale of May at the start, but thereafter there was practically no interest in the market. Nominal prices closed ⅛c higher for the day. The cash demand for oats was good, and prices were firm. Primary receipts of oats were 458,428 bu against 412,030 bu last year, and shipments were 545,160 bu against 535,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 88,000 bu against 109,350 bu last year and shipments were 66,935 bu. Oats clearances for the day were 4000 bu.

Cincinnati Price Curernt says: The agricultural situation and outlook has made but little change during the week. Cold and unseasonable weather has continued. In Western and Northern sections some snow has fallen, and there have been freezing temperatures at night, with cool and cloudy days. Under such conditions the witner wheat has not made seasonable progress. The plant is irregular in appearance, and what may develop when the weather turns warm is uncertain. In Kansas and Missouri the snow and rains have afforded helpful moisture, and it is believed to have been beneficial in destroying the insects from which damage has been feared. Plowing for corn continues, and considerable ground has been broken, but planting is delayed, as the soil is too cold to receive the seed. Packing 510,000 head, against 460,000 last year.

Howard estimates that the world's available supply of breadstuffs on May 1 was 209,058,000 bu against 207,620,000 bu a month ago and 172,840,000 bu last year. The export sales yesterday included 296,000 bu of wheat, 43,000 bu of corn and 20,000 bu of rye. The wheat sales included 100,000 bu of No. 2 red to Lisbon, 96,000 bu hard to Germany and a cargo of Manitoba to France in addition to some durum.

Cash wheat at Minneapolis was strong, with No. 1 Northern ¾c over July option and No. 2 Northern ½c under. Minneapolis stocks increased 300,000 bu for five days. Following are the Northwestern car lots: Minneapolis, 273, against 75 last year; Duluth, 124, against 30 last year; Winnipeg, 226, against 123 last year; total, 623, against 228 last year.

NEW YORK, May 9 (1 P. M.)—At 1 o'clock the stock market had recovered generally from the depressing influences of the morning. Union Pacific touched 147½, or ¾ above its high of Wednesday. At 114 New York Central was ⅛ above its opening today. At 136¼ Great Northern preferred was even with its high of Wednesday. At 135½ St. Paul just equaled its high of Wednesday.

The Union Pacific meeting today, at which something may develop of importance concerning finances, is said to be the cause of its advance.

NEW YORK, May 9, 9:30 a. m.—The stock market opened lower this morning to decline, marking ½ to 1 point over the general list. Anaconda Copper and Pressed Steel Car common were higher on the industrial side.

Atchison, Colorado Southern common and Delaware & Hudson opened higher on the rail side. Erie, New York Central and Missouri Pacific were also small fractions over the finals of Wednesday at the Thursday opening. Union and Southern Pacific were low openers.

Poor Old Tige.
From Puck.

The lady missionary to India sat up in bed, with a spiteful jerk.

"You are a man-eater?" she said, looking the tiger severely in the face.

"I am," replied the beast, licking his chops with as horrid unction as he could summon.

"Well, I declare to goodness!" cried the lady missionary. "What ever led you to suppose there was a man here? Scat!"

"But, madame"—

Of course the tiger had meant no disrespect, but inasmuch as the lady missionary would listen to nothing, and covered up her head withal, it was only left to him to slink away.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS SELLING BETTER

On Return of Good Buying Bank of Commerce Shares Advance—Commonwealth Sold Easier in Limited Lots at 108 to 109—Good Line of Investment Inquiry Developed.

While the volume of transactions at the forenoon session of the Stock Exchange Thursday recovered materially, the class of stocks dealt in included excellent bank and trust issues and the general inquiry pointed to a recovery of activity in trading.

The brokers who for two days have been trying to get a small order for Third National Bank and Commonwealth Trust stock managed to get 30 shares of Commonwealth at 308 to 309, but were unable to get any Third under 300. There is no pressure to sell either stock under 300 for Third or 311 for Commonwealth, and no Third stock was obtainable.

National Bank of Commerce stock, on fair volume of trading was ⅛ higher at 260, and the inquiry made the closing quotation higher, 259¾ bid, 260½ asked, indicating investment buying of the stock at figures which it is believed will be higher shortly.

The line of inquiry put out for miscellaneous issues indicated a return to activity in trading in those issues, nearly all of which are sufficiently low to encourage investment buying.

While there were no sales in the bond issues, the inquiry there also was good, better than it has been for several weeks. In Ely-Walker 120 for the common and 90 for the second preferred issue is considered good buying. The small sales of Central Coal and Coke at 66 shows the market about unchanged for that issue. Schultz Belting and Cotton Compress are low at 99½ for the first named and 54½ for the last.

FINANCIAL.

An easier money market has developed in St. Louis within the past few days. The increase in deposits and temporary lack of large local demand has caused active competition for outside paper, simultaneously with the decline in quotations at other reserve points, there has been a sharp falling off in quotable rates here. While some of the banks are holding out against the decline to their best ability, the largest institutions are now marking 3 and 4 months paper at 5¼ to 5½ per cent in the extreme, in substantial amounts. Smaller loans naturally command a higher price, but it may be safely said that 5½ per cent is the advance on the general character of paper presented for discount. Rates are lower at Chicago, Louisville, Cincinnati and New Orleans. The change in the situation in St. Louis is simply in consonance with the general movement toward lower money rates.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for Thursday, $9,659,966; last week, $10,349,411. Balances for today, $721,197; last week, $1,070,508. Decrease clearings, $689,445; decrease balances, $349,311.

Directors of the North American Co. have declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent, payable June 1, to shareholders of record May 15. As is the custom with this company transfer books will not be closed.

Cleveland's Clothes.
From the Spokesman-Review.

Visitors to Princeton have noted the most complete indifference of Grover Cleveland to what he may wear. During one of the Yale-Princeton games played at Nassau a reporter was told to get an interview with the former President. Arrived at the grandstand, he had pointed out to him a stout man clad in an old homespun suit that didn't look as if it had cost $10. The whole outfit was crowned by a battered slouch hat. Unable to believe this was Mr. Cleveland, the reporter went away without getting his interview. But the shabby figure was the sage of Princeton, the only Democrat in 50 years who has gone to the White House. He was merely indulging in that eccentricity of attire which is one of the prerogatives of fame.

WHEAT FUTURES SHARPLY HIGHER

Strong Cables and Unfavorable Weather Cause Active Short Covering.

Cash Markets Firm—Government Report Out Tomorrow—Trading Rather Light.

There was a good demand, mainly from shorts, for local wheat Thursday and prices closed 1@1⅛c higher for the day. Corn closed ⅜c higher to 1⅛c higher and oats unchanged to ⅛c higher.

May wheat opened ⅛c lower at 80c, and closed at 80½c nominal. July wheat opened ⅛@⅛c higher at 82¼c, advanced to 83⅛c and closed at 83c bid. Sept. wheat opened ⅛c higher at 84c, advanced to 85c and closed at 84⅞c bid.

May corn opened ⅛c higher at 47½c, and closed at 48¼c bid. July corn opened ⅛@⅛c higher at 48⅝c and closed at 49c. Sept. corn opened ⅛c higher at 49c and closed at 49¼c bid.

May oats opened at the last previous sale at 42½c and closed at 42⅝c bid. July oats opened unchanged at 40c and closed at 40⅛c bid. Sept. oats was bid for at 35c, Wednesday's close.

Loverpool cables closed unchanged to ½d higher on spot wheat, and ½d to ¾d higher on the futures. Paris and the continental markets were closed today. The local market was strong throughout. The strong cables, continued bitter cold weather and frosts in the Northwest and Canada, and predictions of less favorable weather in Kansas and the Southwest, caused a good demand at the start, and prices advanced sharply.

The demand came mostly from the shorts and trading was almost entirely local, and was rather uninteresting. Prices advanced steadily, however, and after several temporary setbacks from scattered liquidation, reached a level about 1c higher than Wednesday's close. The late trading was rather quiet, the traders being somewhat inclined to wait for the Government report, which will be issued tomorrow at 12 o'clock. The close was practically at the high point at an advance of 1c to 1⅛c for the day.

There was a good demand for cash wheat and prices were again slightly firmer. The cash market was fairly active. Receipts of wheat at all primary markets were 591,178 bu, against 218,265 bu last year, and shipments were 410,644 bu, against 242,000 bu last year. Local receipts were 29,873 bu, against 24,700 bu last year, and shipments were 24,355 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 386,000 bu.

Corn showed little independent action, but was quite strong in sympathy with wheat. The weather in the corn regions is becoming more favorable and seeding is being done in many sections. There was a good demand and light offerings in the pit, and prices closed ⅜c to 1¼c higher for the day. Liverpool cables closed unchanged on spot wheat and ⅜d higher on the futures.

ALLEGED BLACK HAND MEMBER IS ARRESTED.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., May 9.—Nicolo Bacino, an Italian of means, was arrested by the county authorities on a warrant charging him with having mailed to Nicolas Baldonono, another Italian of Marion, a blackhand letter. The letter was received April . Three other arrests will follow, it is said, the names of other members of the gang having been learned. Baldonono, who received the letter, and his 14-year-old son were arrested Wednesday, on a charge of having waylaid and shot an Italian by the name of Mitchell near here about two weeks ago.

Baldononos' brother was killed here four years ago and it is now thought by the officials that they will be able to get at the bottom of the murder. Much excitement prevails among the Italians of the county.

EDUCATIONAL ENVOY TO SOUTH AMERICA

Dr. William R. Shepherd to Visit All the Big Cities.

The people of Latin America sometimes say that visitors from our country go to them only on commercial and political missions—that is, only when we want something. Now, however, an envoy is going on a different errand, says the Literary Digest. Dr. William R. Shepherd of the chair of history in Columbia University, will spend five or six months next summer visiting the cities up and down the east and west coasts of South America on an educational mission. As the announcement given out by the Bureau of American Republics puts it:

"The object of Dr. Shepherd's trip will be to cultivate personal relations with the leading statesmen, men of letters and men of affairs in South America, and to carry them knowledge of the educational resources and opportunities of American colleges and universities, with a view of bringing about a closer relationship between the Latin-American republics and the United States. President Roosevelt, Secretary Root and the Latin-American diplomats are much interested in Dr. Shepherd's trip. It is hoped that it will reciprocally result in the sending of South American men of letters to the United States."

Closer Acquaintance Needed.

Says the Washington Evening Star:

"There is a waking up all along the line. We have known too little of the Latin-Americans, and they too little of us. And out of this ignorance have grown many misappraisements. We have been dead to the progress making down there, and have clung to the notion that nothing but revolutions and bloody disorders could mark the life there, while the Latin-Americans have been too prone to accept Uncle Sam at the unfriendly description of being but a giant bully scheming for more land and power. They have been repeatedly warned against us, and in some quarters the warning has told to disadvantage.

"Light is being thrown on matters all around. The Bureau of American Republics has done much in the field of business, and will do more. Mr. Root on his visit last summer dispelled a great many clouds that had hovered over hemispherical politics. He spoke well and convincingly on broad lines, and his deliverances were received every where with marked respect and even enthusiasm. And now Dr. Shepherd, whose position warrants the belief that he knows his subject, will present still a third claim of ours to attention.

"The announcement is of far more than average interest, and may the best of luck attend the distinguished educator on his journey. He will bear a message of which all Americans are proud, to people with whom all Americans would be glad to cultivate closer relations of every important character, political, commercial and educational."

Standardizing Medicines.

From Harper's.

Man has heedfully viewed about him the infinite number of things, creatures, plants and metals, and out of them he is compounding or extracting a bewildering number of substances of alleged therapeutic value. In one list of the newer remedies arranged under their trade names there are presented under the single letter A, from Abrastol to Azurin, no less than 418 separate titles. These, most of them, have a value more or less understood. But it is a matter of fact that less than 50 per cent of the "standard" preparations that appear in the Pharmacopoeia have been standardized, and it is true that in the manufacture of the 10,000 drugs and combinations of drugs that are being used by the physicians of the country there is more opportunity for fraud and substitution than in any other manufacturing industry known among men.

Thomas Lawson's Elephants.

In one room in his home Thomas Lawson of Boston has 172 images of elephants, from one inch high, carved from ivory, to old dusky brass models three feet high. Mr. Lawson has arranged them, and takes the greatest satisfaction in exhibiting them to his visitors. He says that he always has been interested in "My Lord the Elephant" since the time that the traveling show appeared in his native village.

Blood poison is either specific or nonspecific. If specific, it has arisen from contagion by the transfer of poison virus, and it is occasionally inherited, in which case it often appears in the form of scrofula, eczema or similar affections. The nonspecific form is ordinary skin diseases, sores, ulcers and eruptions, which are due to the blood becoming laden with impurities from the whole system getting out of gear so that poisonous matter accumulates in the blood.

B. F. French, M. D., Blood Poison Specialist.

In the treatment of all blood diseases the mistakes too often made by specialists are in giving medicines—so-called "blood purifiers," and in taking patent medicines—that are really harmful because they stop the work of the excretory glands in throwing the poison to the surface, so that the outward signs will disappear for a while, and in so doing the poison in the system increases, sometimes to the extent that it attacks the internal organs and becomes fatal. Don't allow the poison to be locked in your system. Have it eliminated, the components of the blood repaired, the tissues restored and your whole system cleansed so that you will always have pure flesh and blood and robust health. My nuclein compound for treating the blood has accomplished all this for many who had despaired of a cure after having been deceived by specialists who had given them "lock-up" remedies in order to have them believe they were cured when the outward signs had gone.

Make it your business to see me and satisfy yourself that I do not offer you, and would not, something that is deceptive and will do you harm in the end. I will tell you what I am giving you and show you what it has done for others; is this not fair enough?

My methods of CURING VARICOSE and HYDROCYSTIC AFFECTIONS, URINARY TROUBLES, PILES, FISTULA, NERVOUS DECLINE and diseases of the KIDNEYS AND BLADDER are also very effectual and are recommended by those I have cured of these diseases.

MONEY BACK IF NOT CURED—NO CHANCE TO LOSE.
I protect my patients against loss by giving them a written contract to return every dollar they pay me for services if they are not completely and permanently cured, and it is because my well-tried, effective methods cure such a large per cent of cases that I am able to give this advantage, which other specialists do not offer.

LONG SKIRTS ARE AGAIN DENOUNCED

British Medical Writer Declares Them Unsanitary and Uncomfortable.

The Municipal Council of Prague, Bohemia, is reported to have issued an edict forbidding women to wear long dresses in the streets. An editorial writer in the British Medical Journal believes that the order is a good one, and contends that women's dresses aid in the dissemination of disease germs.

Continuing, he says: "There is more than evil in long skirts; apart from adding at least something to the weight to be carried, they increase mechanically the labor of what is in itself a very easy matter—putting one foot before the other—necessitate 'holding up,' and thus interfere with the natural swing of the body, and in various other ways lessen the enjoyment of what is in itself, and especially for women, one of the most healthful exercises possible.

"A still more grave indictment is that they collect dust, even if they do not actually sweep the ground, and this is a matter on which women, dainty as they are in most things, show a curious indifference. Provided the streets are not wet, they allow their skirts to touch the dirty pavements, sweep up and down omnibus and other steps, and along uncleanly floors, oblivious of the fact that dirt is dirt, even if it be dirt in the form of dust.

"Moreover, while it is recognized that boots should be wiped upon a mat at an outer door, no corresponding rule applies to dresses, which are more often than otherwise dusted in a bedroom or in an adjoining passage. This is not as it should be; all dust in a dwelling is undesirable, and skirts should be dusted in the open air with regularity and frequency, and their action as dust collectors lessened as far as may be by their ending at least two or three inches from the ground.

"In the circumstances of modern towns, it may be a fallacy to suppose that typhoid germs are often, if ever, to be found in street dust, and it may even be that germs of any well-known pathogenicity are not commonly to be recognized; nevertheless, dust is undoubtedly a hygienic evil, and it is probable that it is responsible for more forms of ill-health than those of which at present it can be accused as the cause with anything like scientific certainty."

Massachusetts is trying to arouse her public school pupils to interest in forestry, and the State Forester, F. W. Rane, has sent out to every school superintendent in the State a circular letter setting forth the desirability of further educating the children in caring for trees. He offers seedlings and seed of white pine, white ash, red spruce, beech, chestnut and acorn trees on payment of the actual expense of digging and express charges.

THOUGH IN LIFE SHE SINNED, IN DEATH ALL WAS FORGIVEN

Bonnie Kate Lamont, "Beauty of Chicago's North Side Levee," Shot in Saloon, Given Honored Burial by Her Townspeople at Chatham, Ont., Who Had Only Words of Love for Her.

KATE LAMONT, who was shot in a North Clark street saloon on April 18, and who was known as the "beauty of the north side levee," was buried a few days ago in Chatham, Ont., a town she left twelve years ago, a beautiful and accomplished young woman and bride of Charles Crabbe, a Chicago traction official, says the Chicago Tribune.

A farewell more elaborate than most girls of that town had received was given when Bonnie Kate left Chatham. She had been born in the town, and was the daughter of Frank Lamont, founder of the Chatham Gas Co. and wealthy land owner. She was one of the most popular young women of Chatham and had received a good education.

When her body arrived at Chatham in the morning many of those who attended the funeral services at the station had been in the merry crowd that extended the farewell to the bride twelve years ago.

Despite the career of the dead woman, well known men of the city arranged for the funeral and acted as pallbearers. Chatham was willing to forget the intervening years, and accorded to Kate Lamont the same respect she received before her departure.

Kate Lamont was in the Sheerin saloon, 105 North Clark street, when she was shot by Charles A. Moore, formerly treasurer of the North Chicago Street Railway Company. The bullet was not intended for the woman, but for Horace A. Lechler, a bartender, with whom the woman was sitting at a table.

Moore and the woman had lived together for sometime. A few weeks before the shooting she left him for Lechler. When Moore saw them in the saloon, he asked her to return to him. She refused. Lechler said something, and Moore drew a revolver. He shot twice, supposedly at Lechler. One bullet struck Kate Lamont. She died the next day, a "charity patient" at Passavant hospital.

All these facts were known to the people of Chatham when the body arrived there. In the group at the station were some of the best known citizens of the town. Rev. Mr. Battisby, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church of Chatham, conducted the service. There were only words of kindness for the girl. All reference to her life antedated the happy wedding party that had gathered at the station. There was nothing to recall the depths to which the woman had sunk in the underworld of Chicago. The pallbearers at the funeral were:

O. L. Lewis, attorney and City Solicitor.

P. S. Coate, manager of the Chatham Gas Co.

R. L. Brackin, attorney and member of the School Board.

W. G. Richards, attorney and member of the School Board.

G. S. Heyward, scuperintendent of Imperial Oil Co.

J. G. Kerr, attorney, town's heaviest taxpayer, and member of the City Council.

Kate Lamont met Clarence Crabbe, a former official of the North Chicago Street Railway Co., at a yacht race at Detroit in 1895. Their marriage followed soon. In 1899 Mr. Crabbe obtained a divorce. The next year Miss Lamont—she resumed her maiden name—returned to Chatham. She was warmly welcomed and assumed her former position in the town. Then the Lamont family met financial reverses. She returned to Chicago, and gradually at first, and later more rapidly, drifted down the social scale.

BIG CHICAGO THEATER MANAGED BY WOMAN.

Elizabeth Schober Successful at Bush Temple of Music.

The theatrical world has known many women who have acted successfully in the capacity of stage and road managers, but few have exhibited the necessary acumen to pilot the career of a metropolitan theater without disastrous results. At present there is but one woman in this country who is the manager of a theater in the strictest sense of the word, who superintends every detail, commercial, financial and artistic, in the intricate business of the theater, says the Theater Magazine.

There are women associated with theaters who have their staff of men to manage the commercial details, but Elizabeth Schober of the Bush Temple Theater, Chicago, stands alone as the successful manager of a stock company in a theater, every detail of the management of which rests in her own hands. Neither the late Mrs. John Drew, when she took over the management of the Arch Street Theater in Philadelphia at one time, nor Mrs. D'Oyly Carte in the management of the Savoy, London, performed their duties with more eclat. Yet Miss Schober has but just finished her third season in a business of which previous to that time she knew nothing.

It is a wide leap from the management of a shoe factory to a theater, but that is the leap which this energetic young woman has taken. With the advantage of a thorough commercial training, gained as the manager of a shoe factory in Dixon, Ill., where several million dollars' worth of business passed through hes hands each yeas, she came to the Bush Temple well equipped to cope with the trying, multifarious details of a stock company house.

"How I came to make the change," said Miss Schober, "is difficlut to explain. It was one of those complete revolutions which come only rarely in people's lives, remaking their whole trend of thought, changing their entire outlook upon life. I was not long in the business to learn that the same methods which bring success in mercantile commerce were equally applicable to the theatrical business; that as you build your organization, so you can measure your success or reap your failure.

"I set about immediately to surround myself in the business and mechanical department with men whom I could trust, who were devoted to my interests, and above all who were interested in the general success. I then set about to gather a company—one which would be evenly balanced—the various members possessing personality, and a resonable degree of unselfishness, and prepared to sink self for the general good. So much for the organization. Now a word as to its workings.

"Make your offering so attractive that the public will come again and go forth as mouth to mouth advertisement of the excellence of your wares. But probably no business has so many ups and downs as that of the theater. The successful manager of today is the failure tomorrow.

"Keep abreast of life in all its phases. Be interested in all things," is the advice of this interesting woman. Gifted with poise, self-confidence, tact, an even disposition, intelligence, energy and a sane interest in all things, she has achieved as much as any man has achieved, given the same conditions, with the added charm of a woman's presence always in the theater.

ALARM CLOCK TURNS LIGHTS ON AND OFF.

Ingenious Chicago Photographer Gets Rid of Mean Job.

Electricity hitched to an alarm clock is the latest time-saver. The scheme was hit upon by Warren J. Scott, a Ravenswood photographer, who could do no business after nightfall, but desired to maintain an illumination in his shop window until 9:30 o'clock in the evening. His home is a mile from the shop. He grew tired of making nightly trips to turn out the light.

"How on earth am I going to get rid of this wearisome business of going to and from the shop?" he asked of a neighbor.

"Sleep in the place," was the laconic answer.

"No, I can't do that—it's too expensive to maintain a double set of lodgings."

"Well, then, do as I do. Go and hire a night watchman," was the advice of the friend who is the owner of a jewelry store. At that moment an alarm clock was heard buzzing in the store. Quick as a flash the photographer said:

"I have it!"

"Have what?" the jeweler said.

"The thing is solved. I will make the alarm clock turn on and off my window lights."

They went into the jewelry store and laid a plan to connect the alarm clock with the switch of the lights in the window. They attached a wire to one of the keys of an alarm clock and then to the switch of the electric lights in the window. When the alarm clock sounded at 7:30 p. m. the lights were turned on instantly. In the same manner another clock turned out the lights at 9:30 o'clock. An ingeniously contrived hook on clock No. 1 lets go when No. 2 begins to take up the slack in the electric-light cord.—Chicago Daily News.

OLD FOUR-POSTERS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Picturesque Cold in Winter and Always Unsanitary.

Little furniture was made in the Colonies during the early years of settlement, and when prosperity came to them all their furniture was imported from England. It was, of course, certain that the styles of the early colonial days would inevitably be what was current in the mother country, says Vogue.

The bed was the most valuable part of the furnishings and more expensive than Sheraton sofas covered with rich brocade, or the Chippendale and Hepplewhite chairs, was the great four-poster which stood on the inventories of household goods. The greater part of the value, however, lay not in the carved bedstead, but in the embroidered hangings and coverlids, the satin quilts and hand-woven blankets, and the huge feather beds which were piled one on the other, until they were so high that steps were necessary to climb into bed.

Even in the wealthiest families a fire in the bed chamber was an unheard-of thing, and as furnaces and heaters were also unknown, the rooms were very cold during the nights of a bitter New England winter. This, perhaps, added to the popularity of the canopy top and hangings, for on chilly nights, when the occupant was in bed, the curtains were drawn and they served to keep out the bitter cold.

Among the less prosperous families the beds were furnished much more simply, the quilts and hangings being made of patch, the spreads of homespun linen and the blankets woven of wool by the good housewives. Many of these old hangings and bed clothes still remain in New England homes, and here and there, though much more rare, is to be found a set of embroidered furnishings.

STRAWTICKS COST 75 CENTS FOR RIDE.

Many Years Ago They Were a Luxury Going West.

"A lower to St. Louis," he said, displaying his transportation.

"Twenty-five years ago," he said, "I bought a berth from Kansas City to California. My bed cost me 75 cents."

"You're mistaken, I think," replied the ticket seller. "Berths are as cheap now as they have ever been."

"No," said the traveler, "they are not. They're costlier. And I'll tell you why. Travel nowadays is different. When I went to California then I paid 75 cents for a straw tick. I bought it on this street right opposite the depot. I don't remember what I paid for my place in the car. But in reality my bed cost me just 75 cents. There used to be a sign on one of those little buildings over there which said:

"Twenty-five years ago that meant luxurious traveling. There were simply curtains to pull down over your seat and you provided your own bedding. You took your sheets (if you wished them at all) and your own blankets. Kansas City was looked upon as the supplying point for all Western travelers. Those men who owned the straw and the ticks in that room across on the avenue did a flourishing business."

L. S. Bangs, general ticket agent at the depot, said that probably 10,000 straw ticks were sold to travelers from that room on Union avenue. "Ticks were a sort of luxury," he said, "twenty-five or thirty years ago. They were in demand, too. The majority of persons who traveled to California did not use the sleeping cars."

Historic Spot Doomed.

From the London Globe.

A good deal of old Paris is disappearing just now, and among the latest bits of the antique city to be threatened is the little spot upon which Charlotte Corday found a fleeting place of rest as she entered the city on her errand of death.

It stands on the street which before the days of the revolution had been known as that of the Vieux Augustins. It now is the Rue d'Argout. The building is the Hotel de la Providence. Charlotte arrived in Paris from Caen on July 9, 1793, slept at the hotel on that and the following night, and on the morning of the 11th walked quietly out of it to slay the monster Marat.

The bedroom is still pointed out which the Norman heroine occupied, and some regret is felt that the place is to be demolished. But the march of progress is merciless. The buildings are needed to extend the Rue du Louvre, and soon human feet will tramp on the spot where the heroine slept her last calm sleep of maiden freedom.

Accidental, of Course.

The New York City Bureau of Weights and Measures reports that though its agents are continually finding scales out of balance, they always vary in favor of the seller. About seven cases of unbalanced scales are found each day.

The hair of rabbits and other animals in Russia is converted into bowls, dishes and plates, which are valued for their strength, durability and lightness. The articles are similar in appearance to varnished leather.

FUND TO PROMOTE WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

ALL CLASSES HELP

Large Element in Philadelphia Favors Granting of Equal Rights.

The biggest thing that has ever been done for the cause of woman suffrage is being done just now by the women of Philadelphia and New York City. The object of this new enterprise is the collection of about $100,000 to be used for five years to encourage the pioneer woman suffrage states in the West, to push forward the fight in Oklahoma in its insistence of a suffrage plank in the Constitution upon admission of the State, and to give the women leaders of the suffrage movement more money for the engineering of this purpose all over the country.

The four most active spirits in this campaign are Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson of Philadelphia, Dean Thomas of Bryn Mawr College, Julia Ward Howe of New York City and Mrs. Russell Sage. Without any flourish of trumpets and without realizing the self-sacrifice of their motive, these four women have been working in this enterprising way very quietly until in a ridiculously short time $80,000 was subscribed for this purpose. Mrs. Stevenson and Dean Thomas have collected the money from Philadelphia suffrage sympathizers in an agreeable but effective way.

Driving in a carriage from house to house of wealthy Philadelphia men and women who have long believed that women ought to vote, they have collected thousands of dollars. This campaign fund is entirely separate from any fund used by the regular suffrage organization and is the very largest lump sum to have been so speedily accumulated in any country of the world for the cause of woman suffrage. The money will be used in the most practical way, and much of it will be directed toward the Western equal rights states, because the example of those being firmly placed in suffrage condition will, it is expected, gradually influence opinion in favor of woman suffrage in the East.

The methods of work of Mrs. Stevenson and Dean Thomas here were as original as they were fruitful of results. Mrs. Stevenson, although not a familiar figure in the suffrage headquarters, on Locust street, has always contended that the logical outcome of women's awakening would be equal suffrage and that in a development of the world both men and women would come ultimately to see the justice of civic rights for men and women.

With this conviction she often discussed questions of the enfranchisement of women to her friends, and she herself admits now how surprisingly large is the element in Philadelphia that does not believe in suffrage for women. It was to people who had expressed themselves in favor of suffrage that the applications were made for checks with such success.

From house to house Mrs. Stevenson, accompanied by Dean Thomas or another suffragist friend, went for several days during the past few weeks, and with a manner that is always fascinating and convincing Mrs. Stevenson persuaded her friends that money was needed for the suffrage cause. Lawyers, judges, doctors, women of fashion, conservative social leaders and people whom it was least expected would have helped in this cause wrote checks for big amounts until it was made known that almost $80,000 had been realized.

TOSSED LAME MAN DOWN THE ELEVATOR.

Good Samaritan's Advances Repulsed the Third Time.

A good Samaritan, passing an apartment house in the small hours of the morning, noticed a man leaning limply against the doorway.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Drunk?" "Yep."

"Do you live in this house?" "Yep."

"What floor do you live on?" he asked; "is this it?" "Yep."

Rather than face an irate wife who might, perhaps, take him for a companion more at fault than her spouse, he opened the first door he came to and pushed the limp figure in. The good Samaritan groped his way downstairs again. As he was passing through the vestibule he was able to make out the dim outlines of another man, apparently in worse condition than the first one.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Are you drunk, too?"

"Yep," was the feeble reply.

"Do you live in this house, too?"

"Yep."

"Shall I help you upstairs?"

"Yep."

The good Samaritan pushed, pulled and carried him to the second floor, where this man also said he lived. He opened the same door and pushed him in. As he again reached the front door he discerned the shadow of a third man, evidently worse off than either of the other two. He was about to approach him when the object of his solicitude lurched out into the street and threw himself into the arms of a passing policeman.

"For heaven's sake, off'cer," he gasped, "protect me from that man. He's done nothin' all night long out carry me upstairs 'n throw me down th' elevator shaf'."—The Bellman.

Children on the Job.

From Harper's Weekly.

"Gracious, Fanny!" exclaimed a mother to her little daughter, "why are you shouting like that? Why can't you be quiet like your brother?"

"And who are you playing?"

"Oh, I'm playing you."

Too Clever for Them.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It was a dark night and he realized that he was pursued by three ruffians. He had money on his person and a gold watch, to say nothing of a diamond pin.

He knew, too, that they were gaining on him. Then he doubled on his tracks.

The ruffians promptly doubled back.

He doubled again.

So did the ruffians.

Once more he doubled.

Then the night prowlers, realizing that he was too good a bridge player to be bluffed, reluctantly gave up the chase.

A Schemer.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Don't you believe it. I know his scheme."

"What is it?"

"Well, when Bingle is invited out to dinner he sips his wine, smacks his lips and then says, 'Ah, good old stuff. I daresay that was brewed about seventeen hundred.' The pleased host naturally agrees, everybody thinks Bingle a wonder and he invariably receives a return invitation."

COSTLY "PLACES" WILL BE EXTENDED

A new exclusive resident district is planned by the West End Protective Association, which has obtained, through a special committee, an option on the Catlin tract, north of Forest Park, from the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. The price to be paid for the tract is $430,000, the option expiring June 15.

Plans for the formation of a corporation to purchase the property were made Wednesday at a meeting of the committee in the office of President James A. Seddon of the association.

The property is 184 feet wide on Union boulevard and the other cross streets, and is nearly 3000 feet long, extending from Union to De Baliviere avenue. The new company plans to abolish all the trackage in the district and to subdivide it for sale as residence lots. Westmoreland and Portland places will be extended west from Union boulevard to Skinker road.

The movement is part of a plan which aims ultimately to get rid of all tracks in the West End. The Rock Island will use the Wabash tracks from De Baliviere avenue through Forest Park into the city.

The promoters hope eventually to induce the Gould interests either to select another route into the city or to depress the tracks, thus making it possible to convert the entire section into a residence district. Final arrangements for the incorporation of the new company will be made next Monday.

PLATT IN CARE OF PRETTY MASSEUSE

Abandons Handsome Apartments That He May Receive Daily Massages.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Quitting the luxurious quarters which had been specifically fitted up for him in the Hotel Gotham as a haven in which he was expected to spend the rest of his days, Senator Thomas C. Platt moved last week to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Abel in the Elmendorf, 133 West Eleventh street.

Senator Platt's departure from the Gotham caused surprise and disappointment from Manager Bennett down. Mr. Bennett has known Senator Platt intimately for years, and had taken especial pains to make him comfortable.

It was explained to Mr. Bennett that Senator Platt was going there so that he could have the constant services of the masseuse who had been attending him at the Gotham.

Senator Platt has been unable to walk without assistance for the last two or three years and he has found it necessary to have his legs massaged constantly. He has been treated for some time by a woman who has given great satisfaction, but she has been unable to be at the hotel later than 8 o'clock at night.

"It is true that Senator Platt is living here privately with us," said Mr. Abel.

"It was stated that Senator Platt went to live with you so that he could have the services of a masseuse constantly," was suggested.

Mr. Abel started to reply, but a woman's voice interrupted him.

"I am Mrs. Abel, she said. "We have known Senator Platt for years and are old friends of his. He got tired of living at a hotel and decided to live here. He is in perfect health and goes to his office at 9 o'clock every morning.

"The Senator gets his massage regularly, and he enjoys boarding here with us much better than living alone and eating all by himself at a hotel."

SHOT CRAWLING THROUGH WINDOW

St. Louisan Wounded by Country Merchant Watching for Burglars.

John Holstein of St. Louis was shot in the hip, breast and face Wednesday night as he crawled through a broken window into the general store of William Jackson at Broscoe, Mo., a village near Troy. He is in a critical condition in the Troy Jail. Jackson suspected an effort was about to be made to rob his store, and had been lying in wait several nights for an intruder.

NEW TEST OF UNITED RAILWAYS' LIABILITY

Supreme Court to Pass on Specific Statute Point.

The matter of the liability of the United Railways Co for deaths caused by street cars while operated by the St. Louis Transit Co. is to go before the Missouri Supreme Court again on a new point.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Miller obtained judgment Tuesday in Judge Foster's court against the Transit company for $5000 for the death of their son, Earl Roy Miller, at Nineteenth and Olive streets, Aug. 31, 1904. The suit was under a specific statute, not under the common law, as were the personal injury cases decided favorably to the United Railways Co.

In this statute the word "owner" occurs in a sense which it will be contended, makes the United Railways Co. liable, though Circuit Judge Foster ruled to the contrary, giving thereby occasion for appeal.

FATHER DRIVES AWAY CHINESE BRIDEGROOM

Thomas Moorehouse Objected to Willie Robinson as Son-in-Law.

WEDDED IN E. ST. LOUIS

Restaurant Keeper and May Moorehouse Fell in Love at World's Fair.

Miss May Moorehouse, aged 18, saw a dapper, queue-less Chinaman during the World's Fair at the Chinese exhibit in the Liberal Arts Building, and fell in love with him, she says, at first sight. He reciprocated, and they were married Wednesday afternoon by an East St. Louis minister.

Thomas Moorehouse, a stone cutter of 7411 Virginia avenue, May's father, did not approve of Willie Robinson, which is the Anglicized name of the man she chose for a husband. Neighbors say that when the couple returned home in the evening and announced their wedding, the father drove both of them from the house, the girl in her white nuptial gown and the Chinaman clinging to a grip.

The girl denied this Friday to a Post-Dispatch reporter. She admitted that her father did not approve of her marriage, but denied that he drove her from home. The girl's father could not be seen.

Thinks Husband Handsome.

"I met Mr. Robinson at the Chinese exhibit," the girl said, "and thought he was just the nicest Chinaman I had ever seen. He speaks English perfectly and is well educated and refined, and I think he is handsome. It was a case of love at first sight for both of us. Mr. Robinson went to Chicago after the Fair to open a restaurant there, and he has lived there ever since. Once in a while he came to St. Louis to see me. Two months ago he proposed marriage and I accepted him. We arranged by letter to meet yesterday afternoon in East St. Louis, and after we came home he left for New York. He is going to open a restaurant there, and in two months I will join him there."

When the couple arrived in East St. Louis they inquired at the laundry of Lee Troy, Sixth street and Missouri avenue, where they could obtain a marriage license. Lee Troy's wife was an American girl, and aid was readily proffered. Lee accompanied the couple to the license office and his wife accompanied them to the home of Rev. Christian F. Meyer, pastor of the German Lutheran Church. The minister lives at 318 North Eighth street.

Mrs. Troy acted as bridemaid and witness. The girl gave the name of May Moore.

It was the fourth marriage of a Chinaman to a white girl at which Rev. Dr. Meyer has officiated in less than a year. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter he would marry any couple that came to him with a license. It was he who united Lee Troy and Mae De Mung last August, and three weeks later he officiated at the marriage of Charles Lung and Grace McKay. March 12 Rev. Mr. Meyer married Lee Hong and Lena Bergman, both of St. Louis. Lee Hong had a restaurant in "Hop Alley," and the girl was cashier for him before their marriage.

LOREE EXPLAINS BIG NOTE ISSUE

Was for Purchase-Money in Hudson Company Deal, He Says.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Following an announcement that the Delaware & Hudson Co. will soon ask its stockholders to authorize an issue of $15,000,000 convertible bonds, there appeared in Wall street a persistent report that an effort was being made by the Delaware & Hudson Co. to cover up a financial situation that has seriously alarmed the directors, and that worry over this matter was mainly responsible for the ill-health and suicide of the late David Wilcox.

Effort was made by circulation of the story to cause it to appear that there is something mysterious about the coming bond issue and that reported changes in executive offices to follow the election of President Loree are the result of this mysterious situation.

The rumors assumed such definite shape, especially in regard to the $5,000,000 and $3,000,000 note issue of the Northern New York Development Co., of which the late David Wilcox was president, indorsed by the Delaware & Hudson, that President Loree yesterday afternoon made this statement:

"There is nothing in the situation to warrant our taking cognisance of the rumors circulated concerning the Delaware & Hudson Co. So far as the notes are concerned, these were purchase-money notes issued in connection with acquisition of the Hudson Valley Railway Co., and have been paid off in the regular course of business."

According to a financial authority the recent rather sensational movement of Delaware & Hudson have been engineered by a prominent Wall street speculator, who sold a considerable amount of it short. There has, of course, been liquidated quite an amount of long stock, notably that acquired by Charles W. Morse and some of his associates, who were interested in the Hudson Valley Railway Co. previous to its sale to the Delaware & Hudson. The speculative operator to whom reference is made, it is understood, based his position on real or imaginary developments in the affairs of the company in the past.

That there will be a radical change effected in the management of the company is generally conceded. It is held that there are many places in which improvement could be made and more economic methods of operation pursued. Following the annual meeting, when some changes will be made in the board of managers, as previously announced, steps will be taken toward overhauling the executive department. That Mr. Loree will be re-elected president by the new board is rgarded as a foregone conclusion.

SAYS BRYAN WILL BE THE NEXT PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Oh, Bryan will be the Democratic nominee," said Senator Newlands of Nevada, at the executive offices today, "and I feel confident that he will be elected. These are Democratic days, anyhow. Roosevelt, Taft, Folk and Bryan are all Democrats. It looks to me as if we will have a Democratic President in the 1908 elections, no matter who is elected. Yes, Democrats have every reason to be pleased with the outlook."

Medal Finder Won Smile.

The man—he refused to give his name—who returned the lost Altheimer medal Wednesday to Miss Hilda Yelfer of 1710 Wash street, was given a grateful smile for his pains. Miss Gelfer won the medal at the Jewish Educational Alliance night school three weeks ago. She lost it Tuesday while on her way to work. The finder told Miss Gelfer that he found it between the street car tracks at Fourteenth and Wash streets.

DRAWING OF JURORS BEFORE GENERAL TERM

Circuit Judges to Act on Prospective Tie-Up.

The Circuit judges in general term will determine Thursday afternoon whether there will be a tie-up of the courts next week for want of jurors.

The legality of the lists drawn for the week is questioned because the names were drawn from the jury wheel by James W. Corcoran May 2, whereas the general term has declared that his term as Jury Commissioner expired May 1 and has named George B. Teasdale his successor.

If it is decided that the drawing was not legal there will not only be no jurors for next week, but none until the jury commissionership dispute is settled by the Supreme Court, where quo warranto proceedings are pending.

The only remedy would be, it is thought, to compel jurors already summoned to serve indefinitely, but it is objected to this that it would impose too great a hardship.

Denies False Ambulance Calls.

Michael J. Fleming of 1905 North Twenty-fifth street, who was arrested at his home, following a complaint from Night Chief Gillaspy, denies that he is the man who telephoned false ambulance calls to the Chief of Police. Three such calls were sent in early Wednesday.

Peters Shoe Co. Boosts Deep Waterways Project

Steamer Liberty, Loaded With First Cargo Consisting Wholly of Shoes Ever Shipped on the Mississippi---First Boat to Clear From St. Louis for White River Ports Carries Peters' Shoes Exclusively.

With flags flying, whistles blowing, and amid pandemonium generally the Steamer Liberty left the foot of Franklin avenue Thursday loaded with a cargo consisting exclusively of Peters Shoe Co.'s shoes for merchants in northeastern Arkansas—the first boat to clear from St. Louis for White River ports, carrying the first cargo consisting exclusively of shoes ever shipped on the Mississippi. From St. Louis to Batesville, Ark., the final destination of the liberty, it is 1050 miles by water, and the trip will consume about ten days. The Liberty will touch at Cape Girardeau and Memphis before entering White River, and on White River at DeVall's Bluff, Des Arc, Newport, Batesville and other points. Shipments are carried for the following firms, many of whom are represented among the guests on the boat: B. B. Bethell & Sons, Des Arc; Jones-Harvey Merc. Co., Swifton; The J. W. Beck Co., Forest City; St. Francis Merc. Co., Madison; Bland & Co., DeVall's Bluff; A. J. Screeton, Hazen; B. D. Patterson, Carlisle; A. F. Shoffner, Walker; King & Crockett, Searcy; Jack Barnwell, Cabot; J. W. Stewart, Biscoe; Hemmenway Bros., Wheetley; C. T. Doss Jr., Cotton Plant; R. A. Cook & Bro., Griffithville; J. E. Fondren, Kensett; W. S. Cullins, Jamestown; L. R. Simpson, Cushman; E. E. Allen, Newark; Chas. F. Smith, Sulphur Rock; I. C. Nuckolls, Cord; F. W. Brewer, Cove City; M. Stokes, Evening Shade; Geo. M. Sink, Newport; John H. Keel, Ingleside; R. F. Dunn & Sons Co., Tuckerman; McDonald & Bond, Weldon; J. G. Handle & Co., Auvergne; T. D. Lawrence, Tuckerman.

The enterprise, which signalizes the deep interest felt by St. Louis business interests in the deep waterways, was arranged by Mr. J. Wallace Byler, northeastern Arkansas representative of the Peters Shoe Co., and the shoes included in the cargo of the Liberty comprise the spring shipments of Diamond Brand shoes to part of Mr. Byler's customers.
